Soviets Invited To Share Road

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— President Nixon, with the United Nations as his forum, invited leaders of the Soviet Union today to join the United States in traveling a "new road" of peaceful competition aimed at averting a nuclear nolocaust.

In an address for the 25th anniversary session of the U.N. General Assembly, Nixon said the strength of the two superpowers "imposes on them special responsibilities of restraint and vision."

Declaring he saw "no point in responding in kind to traditional cold war rhetoric," Nixon said he wanted to discuss AmericanSoviet relations in terms "not of impossible dreams, but of possible deeds."

For one thing, Nixon said that particularly in the Middle East, "it is imperative that the two major powers conduct themselves so as to strengthen the forces of peace rather than to strengthen the forces of war."

Nixon called anew for continuation of the Middle East cease-fire and resumption of Arab-Israeli negotiations.

He had very little to say about the Vietnam war, stating simply, "in Southeast Asia let us agree to a cease-fire and negotiate a peace."

In a key passage, Nixon said: "I invite the leaders of the Soviet Union to join us in taking that new road—to join in a peaceful competition, not in the accumulation of arms but in the dissemination of progress; not in the building of missiles but in waging a winning war against hunger and disease and human misery in our own countries and around the globe.

"Let us compete in elevating the human spirit, in fostering respect for law among nations and in promoting the works of peace. In this kind of competition, no one loses and everyone benefits."

Nixon said everyone must recognize that the United States and the Soviet Union "have very profound and fundamental differences" that cannot be eliminated simply by improving personal relationships between the heads of the two governments.

However, he cited "four great factors that provide a basis for a common interest in working together to contain and reduce those differences":

—"We have a powerful common interest in avoiding a nuclear confrontation."

—Each country, he said, should welcome an opportunity to reduce its arms burden and to use its resources "for building rather than destroying."

—"It would clearly be in the economic self-interest of each of us if world conditions would permit us to increase ... trade and contact."

—"The pressing economic and social needs around the world can give our competition a creative direction."

Nixon's opening-session address to the General Assembly came a day after he held an unusually lengthy conference with Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister.

Pemiscot Indicts Another

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., The Pemiscot County grand jury has returned another vote fraud indictment, bringing to 17 the number of persons charged in connection with irregularities in the Aug. 4 primary election.

Charged Thursday on three counts of vote fraud was Clementine Hampton, who was an election clerk in the Butler precinct in the northern part of the county.

Results of the election in five county races were reversed following an investigation. Ballots in the Holland precinct were nullified.

U.S. Attorney Daniel Bartlett said an investigation has been launched of the election for possible federal grand jury action.

Scouts Elect Hedrick

Scout leaders were recognized last night at the Okeechobee District Appreciation dinner at Two Tony's Restaurant where more than 100 saw the installation of officers and outstanding men and women scouters receive awards.

New officers are Walter Hedrick, president; Judge Tom Brown, Charleston, vice-president, and John Ensor, district commissioner. They were sworn in by Southeast Council president Connie Hay.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Jim Greenwell, with Scout troop 49 presenting the opening flag ceremony.

A Spencer award, the first to be presented in Sikeston, was presented to the president Hedrick in recognition for highest honors for the district in camping, advancement, new scout registration and troops registering on time.

Southeast Missouri Scout Council President Earl Jarvis made awards to leaders at Morehouse, Oran, Pack 40 Sikeston, and Morley Pack 45. Certificates of appreciation were given to The DailyStandard, radio stations, and to Rev. Durwood Penry.

Matthews Pack 53 was recognized for its summer activities, and Mrs. Joanne Mazaritz, for a cub scout round table.

Training awards went to Earl Woodward and Leo Schott, Charleston, for a key award in scouting; and to Tom Nunnelee for the scout roundup.

The closing ceremony was led by members of Cub pack 40, Sikeston.

Song leader for the banquet was Mike Euer, East Prairie.

THE SPENCER AWARD, for leadership in Okeechobee distric in Scouting, the first of its kind in Sikeston, was presented to the new president, Walter Hedrick, left, by Connie Hay, district council executive, Cape Girardeau.

5 Injured in Accidents

Five persons were injured as a result of area automobile accidents yesterday, the highway patrol reported.

At 1 p.m. at the junction of routes H and E in New Madrid county, a 1970 Oldsmobile traveling west driven by Beulah Woods 76, Sikeston, pulled out in front of a 1961 Chrysler going north driven by Glenda Kelley, 37, Sikeston, the patrol said.

Both suffered minor injuries and were taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, Sikeston.

At 7:45 p.m. yesterday at the junction of highway 84 and route NN five miles east of Kennett, a 1970 Ford traveling north driven by Joe Brewer, 69, Kennett, failed to yield to through traffic on highway 84 and collided with an east bound 1966 Ford driven by Robert Ledbetter, 66, Steele, the patrol reported.

Brewer suffered forehead cuts and a possible broken hip. A passenger in the Brewer car, Burley Wilson, 62, Kennett, suffered forehead cuts and internal injuries. Ledbetter suffered internal injuries.

All were taken to the Dunklin County Hospital in Kennett.

Accused Slayer of Five Arrested Near Scene

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — A young auto mechanic accused of slaying five persons in a hilltop mansion was arrested today about a half mile from the scene of the slaying, sheriff's deputies said.

A spokesman said John Linley Frazier, 24, who was charged with five counts of murder Thursday, was seized in a mountain cabin.

Officers said they had staked out the cabin, where Frazier had lived since two days before Monday's shooting deaths.

The 6-by-6 foot-shanty is on the same hilltop as the mansion, separated by a half a mile and a deep canyon.

Dist. Atty. Peter Chang Jr. said a friend of Frazier told authorities that the young man once remarked that people who lived like the victims "were materialistic and "should be snuffed."

Chang said three long-haired persons who live in a wooded area came to investigators at 3 a.m. Thursday after reading a note left at the slaying scene and released to news media by the sheriff Wednesday.

Chang said the three told investigators the note—which threatened death for those who "misuse the natural environment" and referred to tarot cards symbols—sounded to them as though it might have been written by Frazier.

The hippie community was repulsed by the massacre, Chang said.

The informants provided an address for Frazier's estranged wife who was questioned promptly, Chang added. He would not give her first name and said she was in protective custody.

The wife resides about six miles from the six-foot-square shanty where Frazier lived—across a gully from the mansion of Dr. Victor M. Ohta, 45, who was shot to death Monday along with his wife, Virginia, 43, their two sons, Derrick, 12, and Taggart 11, and Ohta's secretary, Dorothy Cadwallader, 38.

Chang quoted Frazier's wife as saying she last saw her husband Sunday when he set out on foot armed with a .38-caliber pistol and carrying a knapsack with food for several days. She said he also had expensive binoculars which he stole from Ohta's home about six weeks ago.

Mrs. Frazier said her husband left behind a book on tarot cards, often used for fortune telling, and his driver's license and wallet, telling her: "I won't be needing these any more."

The fugitive was believed headed for New York, and the FBI was called in to help in the search for him, Chang said.

Cool, Clean Water Approved 135-0

CANALOU — A man dying of thirst in the desert could not be more unanimous in his desire for water than residents in the Canalou area.

Voters of the Public Water Supply district 4 of New Madrid county have approved a $200,000 special obligation bond issue to provide water for the district 135 to 0.

The Canalou town board met with their attorney, Charles Hatley of New Madrid, Tuesday to sign the proper papers. The engineers, Alex C. Waters and Associates, Sikeston, are finalizing plans to install the system which will supply water to residents of Canalou, Morehouse, Delmo, and persons living along highway H between Canalou and Matthews and along highway E north to Delmo from highway H.

Members of the board are Cordell Bixler, president, Canalou; Norval Harrison, treasurer, Canalou; Louise Croom, secretary, route three, Sikeston; Barbara Nimmo, Delmo; Donald Sexton, Canalou; Paul Joe Witt, route three, Sikeston; and David Croom, clerk, route three, Sikeston.

The vote was held Saturday.

Aunt Susan

Arkansas Man Seeks Whereabouts of Relative

"The two-year-old girl sat on a blanket in the living room waiting for her new parents to pick her up and to take her to a new home though she was too young to realize what was taking place. Her mother had died and her father, having three other young children, was unable to care for them. He was forced to give them up. Susan was the youngest and was the first to go."

This incident took place about 60 years ago on a farm four miles from Sikeston, and today Susan's nephew is trying to locate her.

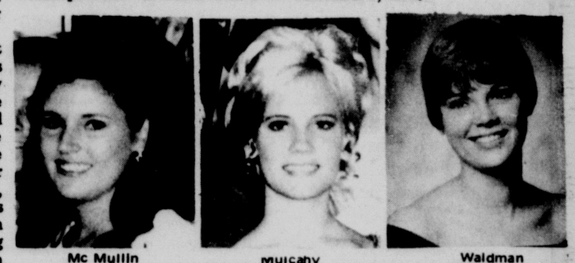

This is how the story goes: Around 1903 a Mr. and Mrs. Davis lived on a farm outside of Sikeston with their four children. In 1907 Mrs. Davis died leaving her husband taking care of four children and a farm. Time being as they were, Davis was unable to care for four children and was forced to give them up. In those days adoption was not a common practice in rural America and the children were taken by someone that could provide for them and that was the only prerequisite.

The two older girls, Veda and Pearl, were taken by a family in Malden named Boaz. The only son, Eltie, went with his father to Evansville, Ind., and Susan was taken by another family.

Since that time Veda and Pearl have died and Eltie is still living in Evansville, but the whereabouts of Susan is unknown.

Joe Mobley, Jr. of Jonesboro, Ark., is Susan's nephew and has been trying to locate her for many years. He does not know the name of the family that took Susan or where they were from, but he assumes they were from this area and if Susan is still alive she might be in the area today.

Mobley's address is 1209 East County Club Terrace in Jonesboro, Ark.

Thieu Declares Readiness

VUNG TAU, Vietnam (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu declared today that his government is "ready to carry out a cease-fire with the appropriate supervision and guarantees."

"The problem is not with our side," he asserted. "It is the stubbornness of the other side."

Thieu talked with newsmen at the end of the first day of a meeting of officials from all over the country, called to accelerate extension of the government's control over the countryside in anticipation of a cease-fire agreement.

There had been speculation that the meeting might produce a unilateral cease-fire declaration, but Thieu told newsmen: "I gave no instructions regarding a unilateral cease-fire. We will never make a unilateral cease-fire. Any cease-fire must be bilateral and agreed to by both sides."

The White House on Wednesday also denied any plans for a cease-fire, saying, "We do not plan to announce any further initiatives."

At a reception in Saigon Thursday night, Thieu said, "If the Communist remain stubborn "and if they do not give in to serious peace talks, then there will be a day the government will definitely withdraw its (Paris peace-talks) delegation back to Vietnam."

However, he set no deadline.

Bridge Toll End to Be Urged

ST. Mary's, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Rep. Vernon Bruckerhoff, D-St. Mary's, says he will urge that the Mississippi River bridge at Chester, Ill., be made toll-free as of Jan. 1.

Bruckerhoff said when the bridge was built in 1940, it was pledged the structure would be made toll-free after it was paid for.

"It can be paid now and I'm going to ask the (bridge) commission to fulfill the promise they made 30 years ago," Bruckerhoff said.

As of December 1965 the Bridge Commission made up of Chester city officials, owed $655,000 on bonds that financed construction of the span, he said.

At that time, Bruckerhoff added, there was a cash balance of $177,819 and treasury notes worth $175,000 on deposit in banks at Chester and St. Louis.

He said the records indicate the bridge toll income is more than $1,000 a day.

HALLOWEEN FOR UNICEF will be observed by young people collecting money from house to house in Sikeston Halloween evening. Money collected will help needy children around the world through UNICEF, United Nations International Children's Education Foundation. Some of the young people from the 30 sponsoring churches are from left, front row, Kathy Jones, Deena Brase, Chip Grant, Mary Moore, Marilyn Cooney, Ann Marie Cooney; back row, Sgt. Leonard Campbell, Charlotte Hale, Chief Arthur Bruce, Patrolman Sammie Hinton Jr., and Sandy Davidson.

Let's Hear That One More Time

The entertinment column that appeared on Wednesday's women's page was erroneous when it stated theater manager Charles Calhoun of Malco Theatre is not available to show movies for review on Tuesday afternoons.

This is not the case.

Charles Blanton III, business manager of The Daily Standard, said today the reason for discontinuance of movie reviews on Tuesdays is more utilization of newsroom personnel.

Plans call for movie reviews to be made on premier nights. The column, now entitled Show and Tell, will appear on the newspaper's television and movie page.

Contributions Sought for Unicef

The United Nations International Childrens Education Foundation will have a city-wide canvas Oct. 31, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., sponsored by 30 churches in the city.

The children will be accompanied by adult church leaders, and will have the cooperation of the city police department for safety during their rounds.

National headquarters have advised all adults and children to observe street crossings, not to cross in the middle of a block, and not to wear dark clothing as a safety measure in the darkness; face masks should not hinder their views while on their walks.

Headquarters for the collections will be at the Bank of Sikeston, where collections will be delivered.

Last year UNICEF collected between almost $800, all of which was sent overseas to help needy children all over the world.

Block Group Meets With City

Curfew Law, Street Improvements Discussed

By MIKE JENSEN

If preparation and concern count for anything these days then last night's special meeting in Sunset of the Block Club was a success.

The group met with City Manager Raymert Miller and Mayor Taylor Noles to discuss plans for street and housing improvements. More time, however, was devoted to discussion of curfew laws.

Miller said a great deal of concern has arisen lately over the violation of curfew laws.

"We have become lax- police and parent, both black and white. This is of great concern because police can't enforce the law without cooperation from the parents," Miller said.

Miller said he is going to inform Chief of Police Arthur Bruce to crack down on violators, but added that any police action would be on the parent, not on the child.

"I know you'll cooperate and I appreciate it. This problem is not just in Sunset but throughout the city," he added.

The law says anyone below the age of 18 shall be off the streets before 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and mid-night Friday and Saturday.

In a question and answer session that followed, Miller said the parents can't evade the responsibility of controlling the child.

"Juveniles will not respect parents unless they exercise parental authority," he added.

The group also discussed the possibilities of using a siren to warn children when the curfew hour has come. It was noted that a lot of confusion has arisen regarding the exact curfew hour, and a siren would help to eliminate the problem.

Noles said:

"The main reason we are here is that this is our city and these are our problems. One of the reasons we have been able to do so well is because we have the right kind of people. You can see the things we've done and you can see the things we've still go to do. We're trying our best to work for you, but we've got to work with you."

Louis Wiggins, president of the Block Club, said this was the first of several meetings with city, county, and possible state levels to discuss the problems of Sunset.

Miller and Noles informed the group about the progress of the street improvement projects such as North St. and about the proper procedure to get street improvement petitions.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

FIVE ACRES — AND WHAT??

Is there anybody around who remembers a very popular, best- selling book of a few years ago called "Five Acres And Independence" by Kains?

Riding on the altogether human predisposition that "the grass is always greener in the other fellow's yard," the theme of the book captured the attention of more than one city dweller with the message that with just five acres of good, rich farmland, a fellow could make a go of it — and with all that fresh, healthy, unpolluted air, too!

A careful reading of the book revealed, however, that you would have to be a pretty shrewd operator. But, by including a fair amount of luck, good growing weather, enough rain and/ or cheap water, a stable market and a few other factors, the author was able to present a rather impressive case for his appealing theory - impressive enough to sell several thousand copies of his book.

Carrol Fey, Editor of the Edgerton Enterprise in Pipestone County, down in the southwest corner of Minnesota, recently asked a few farm folk in the area: "Could you still make a living on a quarter section of land?"

Replied one farmer: "You could if you owned the land and had it paid for, and the hogs and cattle sell for around $30.00. It makes a difference, though, if you are just a man and wife, or if you have children who are going to school."

Another opinioned: "I think I could if I felt like milking 20 to 30 cows." A third replied: "Heck, no. I can't make a living off three eighties." One farm family with a 160 responded; "It's a pretty hard thing to do, but we're still doing it, and we sometimes wonder for how long."

"Five Acres" may still intrigue some people. But they won't produce much income, unless you're a Houdini. And if you're not, that's a lot of grass to mow.

KILL THE PENSION SWINDLE

Missouri voters will get a chance Nov. 3 to kill the pension swindle railroaded through the 1969 regular session of the Legislature. Gov. Hearnes should have vetoed that steal but in deference to the lawmaker-beneficiaries whose support he needed, he didn't. And it is only owing to the determination of an outraged citizens group in which former Gov. Dalton was a leader that the people obtained this opportunity to veto the measure on their own. The Dalton group gathered 186,933 signatures (three times as many as required) on petitions that blocked the pension plan from going into effect and compelled its submission to the people for their decision.

The measure will appear on the November ballot as "Proposition No. 1," and we recommend that voters put their cross in the box opposite the word "Against." The law would make state pensions the only public pension system in the state not funded on at least a pretense of acturial soundness. Other public pension systems in the state —those covering school teachers, say, or municipal employes or firemen, policemen and others — relate the benefits directly to the size of the contributions that are intended to finance the whole pension.

The proposed pension law ignores that elementary rule, which means that in the long run the taxpayers will have to make up the difference between the ultimate cost of the pensions and the demonstrably inadequate contributions of the beneficiaries.

The benefits that the legislators wrote in for themselves and for elected officials like the Governor would run to almost three times those of ordinary state employes, in whose behalf the measure was ostensibly written. Payroll deductions for these officials would be doubled from the present 4 per cent of salary to 8 per cent. But the state's 4 per cent contribution would remain the same. And so when the legislators and elected officials came to retirement age, taxpayers would have to sweeten the kitty out of general revenue to make up the difference. Nobody knows how much this will amount to, most especially the legislators who pushed the scheme through the General Assembly; all they were interested in was the gravy.

Under the existing pension schedule, a legislator who manages to survive at the polls for 20 years may retire at age 60 on $3600 a year. Under the proposed scheme that same legislator could retire at 55 and get $6270 annually, or some 75 per cent of his current salary of $8400 a year. The ordinary state employe with the same basic salary and length of service would have to wait until 60 to retire, at which time he would draw only $2100 a year. A Governor under this swindle could draw $12,000 a year beginning at age 55; and by the time he had reached age 65, the age most Americans now retire, he would already have drawn $120,000 — most of it directly out of the pockets of Missouri taxpayers. Voters who agree to this kind of a shearing will deserve what they get.

There is no question that a compelling case can be made for improving the pension system covering the state's employes, and we hope the Governor will recommend an actuarially sound plan covering the employes to the next General Assembly. First, though, the present raid on the treasury by the lawmakers who are supposed to be its guardians will have to be turned back. Vote Against Proposition 1.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES COMES A LOT OF NONSENSE- AND WORSE

When a ten- year- old child is put on national television to pontificate, "The State is too lenient with the large corporations," then something very silly, sick and sickening is happening to this country of ours.

It is all part of a "revolution," if you please — screaming hordes disrupting courts of law, loudly threatening to "seize power through the barrel of a gun," vandalizing offices of companies vital to the safety and economy of companies vital to the safety and economy of the nation, burning banks, closing colleges and so destroying the chance of decent young Americans to get the education they want and know how to appreciate.

There have been 600 riots in this country in the past five years, and 470 in less than two years on campuses. Every riot and violent protest destroys a little more of your country, your freedom, your savings — and delights this country's enemies. As the Vice President asked, "Will the Government of this country remain in the hands of its elected officials, or will it descend to the streets?" The answer is up to you, because it is your Government. Isn't it time the Silent Majority stopped being silent?

"Much of what government consumer protectors do is the result of the politics of the problem, not the problem itself," commented President Woodrow Wirsig of the New York Better Business Bureau. "Action is too often based on unfounded hunch and emotion, or how it will look at the polls... Almost any product could be made to last indefinitely, without servicing, but I doubt that any consumer would be willing to pay the cost of achieving that perfection."

Whatever may be the final outcome of the highjacking crisis, it is more than ever necessary to look very closely into what and who is behind the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP). It would be a great mistake to accept the idea (which is being widely canvassed) that these people are an irresponsible collection of outlaws without any substantial backing from official sources anywhere.

There may be something much more behind the PFLP's protests against the cease- fire than spontaneous indignation. There may be deliberate planning to substitute one form of offensive for another.

One other thing is to be noted. There have been no demonstrations by students and radical leftists (or at any rate none has been reported) against these acts of piracy and the use as hostages of women and children who have not the remotest connection with the Arab- Israel conflict.

What has suddenly happened to all our "humanitarians"?

THE DOUGLAS DRY-UP

The investigation into the behavior of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has degenerated. If nothing else, it has become a contest between Rep. Emanuel Celler's deafness and some congressmen who are screaming charges at the top of their lungs. Douglas is under fire for accepting payments from a Las Vegas-Pornography axis, and Emanuel Celler's subcommittee was supposed to investigate. Rep. Joe Waggonner has charged that Celler's subcommittee has held six meetings in two months and interviewed 12 persons, none under oath. The investigation is now under its second deadline extension, and that, according to the irate critics, proves that Celler is going to sit on the Douglas case until it dries up and blows away. There is another way around Celler, called the Wyman resolution which would set up a new panel and an investigation- but the elections grow near and with every tick of the clock, the Celler grin- and-don't bare - it strategy looks like a winner. If Congress were better informed on the changing status of the Federal budget, it would vote more wisely to avoid over -spending Federal income.

This is the argument Rep. Donald Brotzman (Colo.) presents in proposing legislation to require the Bureau of the Budget to give Congress a monthly statement of Federal income and expenditures – like a business profit or loss statement – for the current year.

A poll of business owners by the National Federation of Independent Business finds 44 percent agreeing such legislation would be desirable.

But almost as many, 43 percent, believe it is either not needed because of Treasury reports now available or would be ignored by Congress.

Another 13 percent take a noncommitted position.

Businessmen in Missouri responded with 48 percent for the measure, 37 percent against it, with 15 percent undecided.

Whether Congress would act more economy-minded if a clearer, up -to -date picture of Federal finances were available is a good question, in view of Federal deficits in 26 of the last 30 years.

The Administration's budget request for the 1971 fiscal year is 200.8 billion with a hoped-for surplus of 1.3 billion. but since the present Congress exceeded budget requests for 1970, thereis grave doubt that it will hold the line.

Rep. Brotzman believes Congress could establish better priorities and a better vote upon specific appropriations oif the complex and changing government financial situation were stated clearly each month by the Budget Brueau. The original presidential budget is soon out of date as Congress adds and subtracts, delets, and originates new spending programs on its own.

However, the fact that Congressmen can obtain current budget estimates from Treasury Department reports apparently convinced a larger number of businessmen that some duplication would be involved in Congressman Brotzman's proposal. And many others doubt that it would work.

The independent proprietors, who have long been outspoken for economy in government and a balanaced budget, have supported two other proposals aimed at restraining Congressional spending. One would require that every bill introduced into the House of Representatives contain an estimate of its cost for the next two fiscal years. This bill by Rep. Robert Denny of Nebraska won approval of 81 percent of the businessmen polled by the Federation.

Sen. Jacob Javits' proposal for a Commission to review Federal budget priorities and spending policy was endorsed by 69 percent of the business owners.

But the businessmen are much less convinced that the answer lies in more government reports. Most would probably agree it lies with the individual Congressman.

WE FAVOR THIS TAX IF - - - - -

State Representative E.J. Cantrell has written Gov. Hearnes, calling for a special legislative session immediately after the election, and asking that he recommend, among other things, putting a 3% sales tax on radio, television, newspaper, billboard, magazine and all other types of advertising. He claims it would raise $35 millions, and he's probably correct.

The Appeal Favors this sales tax proposal, if---

Rep. Cantrell will also include all other types of services, such as lawyers and doctors fees, charges for all types or repair, salaries and other services. Advertising is not a tangible product, while the present sales tax is levied only on tangible products.

It is class legislation, obviously unfair and probably unconstitutional, to tax one type of service without taxing all of them.

If all types of services are charged the 3% sales tax, the State of Missouri would have so much money coming in that it would probably be possible to reduce taxes on real estate and personal property.

H.L. Hunt Says

FACT NOT FANCY

Leftist radicalism and atheistic secularism menace Western Civilization and our freedons, but the forces of the Mistaken can be turned back by informed patriots who pursue reasonable, constructive methods. Shrill cries and unfounded charges help rather than hinder our enemies. If they can discredit a patriot, he is then publicized and held up as typical of everyone who opposes international appeasement, centralized government and moral permissiveness.

The constructive freedomist, the effective American, choose words carefully so that they conform to political facts and realities rather than to rumor, hearsay or speculation. Truth is the enemy's greatest foe and at the same time our greatest ally. The truth makes us free and will preserve our liberty, but no one can expect to set the world aright by throwing a mass of facts, no matter how indesputable, at everyone he meets. He who tries to have answers to every question and preaches, rather than discusses, will soon be labeled a "kook."

Foreign and domestic problems are complex, but the fundamental plans and aims of our adversaries are clear and easily understood. Every constructive pro-freedomist should remember two guiding principles:

Never state as a fact anything for which you cannot offer proof. Always seek to awaken dedication to freedom's philosophy before you discuss threats to the American way. The past and present activities of those committed to our destruction will be seen in their proper light by anyone who knows the glorious song of freedom U.S. A. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--A clash between Soviet and American naval forces in the Mediterranean is a real danger in case of another Middle East flare-up.

This is the chilling conclusion of a secret U.S. estimate which also predicts that the action could be restricted to non-nuclear weapons and could be confined to the Mediterranean.

A secret operations plan, directing how the Sixth Fleet should respond to a Soviet attack, is ready to implement. In every contingency, the "rules of engagement" call for localizing the action.

The danger of a Russian-American outbreak in the Mediterranean is heightened, quite frankly, by the fact that the two countries have supplied combat planes to the opposing sides.

The Israelis, for instance, might have difficulty distinguishing whether a flight of MIG-21s had Soviet or Egyptian markings. This could lead the Israelis, flying American-made Phantoms, to attack Soviet planes by mistake. The Russians, in turn, might not notice the Israeli markings and might conclude that U.S. planes had jumped them.

During the fratricidal fighting between the Palestinians and Jordenians, when the Middle East fuse burned dangerously short, both Russia and the U.S. took pains to avoid a confrontation.

The U.S. admonished the Israelis to guard against any mistakes that might result in attacks upon Soviet planes or ships. And Russian naval units maneuvered with extreme caution around the Sixth Fleet.

There were some breathless moments when Soviet subs began massing in the eastern Mediterranean and, later, when Soviet landing ships full of naval infantry pulled into the Syrian port of Latakia. But the Russians remained carefully non-agressive.

SOVIET SEAPOWER

The Soviets have built up a formidable Mediterranean Naval Squadron of 35 to 40 ships and subs, including modern cruisers and destroyers, both nuclear and conventional attack submarines, combined surface, sub-surface and airborne anti-submarine forces, and landing ships with naval infantry on board.

The Mediterranean Squadron is supported by a dozen auxiliary ships and also has access to shore facilities in Egypt. Some of the combat ships and submarines, incidentally, are equipped with anti-ship missiles, which intelligence reports describe as "the greatest threat" to the Sixth Fleet.

This Soviet naval force still is no match for the Sixth Fleet, which has 45 to 50 ships in the Mediterranean. These include two attack carriers, which are able to put 400 combat planes in the air. A Navy estimate claims that the Sixth Fleet not only has "numerical" but "qualitiative" superiority over the Soviet Mediterranean Squadron.

In an emergency, however, the Soviets have demonstrated that they can quickly augment their Mediterranena force with surface ships from the nearby Black Sea Fleet and submarines from the Northern Fleet.

The U.S. has sought to demonstrate both restraints and firmness in the Mediterranean, a delicate policy calculated to hold the Soviets at bay without precipitating a naval encounter. A series of NATO naval maneuvers - code named "Deep Express," "Reforged" and "Crested" --have been scheduled in the Mediterranean as a show of strength.

FOOTNOTE: Russia has also built up a formidable naval force in the Indian Ocean. An intelligence report frankly concedes, however, that the U.S. has only limited knowledge of these operations "because of the inadequate U.S. surveillance capabilities in the region."

TAX STEAL

The nation's tax coffers have sprung so many leaks -- loopholes of all sizes -- that half the moneydue the government now escapes into the pockets of the privileged.

The loopholes were punched into the tax statutes from the outside by a benevolent Congress, which has used the loophole method to subsidize the rich. But the Nixon administration is now chiseling loopholes into the tax system from the inside.

Big Republican contributors, as a return on their political investment, have called upon the Treasury Department for tax breaks. The pressure has been brought to bear on Internal Revenue Commissioner Randolph Thrower, a genial fellow, who has obligingly issued special tax rulings to benefit the rich.

These ruling are complex and difficult to explain -- all the better to confuse the less-blessed taxpayers who must make up the taxes that the fat cats get out of paying.

For example, Thrower has ruled that banks can borrow moneyto carry tax-exempt bonds and charge off the interest on the borrowed money as a tax deduction. This is anew privilege worth millions to the big banks.

Thrower has also decreed that advance payments, previously treated as income in the year they were received, can now be held as deferred income. This will cost the rest of the taxpayers between $50 million and $100 million a year, a Treasury expert told this column.

Thrower has also allowed the computed industry to write off its programming costs in one year rather than amoritze them, another form of tax deferral that will benefit the computer companies at the expense of the other taxpayers.

In other quiet little way, the Internal revenue Commissioner has been robbing the poor and middle-income taxpayers to help the rich.

FOOTNOTE: All tax loopholes would appear to be a violation of the Constitution, which declares flatly that no money should be drawn from the Federal Treasury except by congressional appropriations. Every dollar that corporations are excused from paying in taxes is the same as a dollar drawn out of the Treasury.

A group, called Tax Analysts and Advocates, is preparing to sue the federal government to close the tax loopholes and require these subsidies to be paid out of direct appropriation. In this way, the taxpayers at least would receive an accounting of the subsidies that go to the rich.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Kicking the GOP Habit: Lindsay Quietly Sounding Out Labor, Liberal Chiefs on Machine For'72 Democractic Presidental Bid

NEW YORK: -- The tipoff came up in Central Park last Sunday morning when former Ambassador Arthur Godlberg went in for touch football. That put him in the running aginst Nelson (The Rock) Rockefeller. Then, John Lindsay's Lancers permitted Goldberg's Gridders to beat them 14 to0. That put coach Goldberg in the big leagues. Central Park is more proletarian than Hyannis. But touch football is the magic vote-getting touch for the people wherever it's played.

So the news (predicted here some weeks ago) that John Lindsay has endorsed the Democratic-Liberal gubernatorial candidate Goldberg is anti-climatic.

The real news is that Arthur Goldberg and Mayor Lindsay now are a team not only claiming touch football as their own -- but are reaching for the White House in 1972. And it matters not that the theatrically handsome mayor said, "I am a Republican and I intend to remain a Republican."

Fact is that the tense soul-searching mayor doesn't intend to remain a Republican -- unless he absolutely has to. At the moment he is simply keeping his options dry. There is no reason for him to bolt the G.O.P. now. He has blasted President Nixon. He has skinned Vice President Agnew. He has accused them of "irrational priorities" and policies. But he has well over a year now to wait for the administration to crack up in some fashion -- either on the war, or on the Middle East, or on a recession, or on some slip of the tongue as Humbert Humphrey slipped when he referred to his maker, Lyndon Johnson, as "paranoid." Barring a Nixon catastrophe, personal or political, MayorJohn V. Lindsay will bolt his party and, while in motion, join the Democrats. He just need not do this during the barren, politically dead year of 1971 -- a year made to order for him. There are no consequential elections. There will be no need for definitive political statements -- only ideological.

There meanwhile is ample evidence of his plans to try for the Democratic Party presidential nomination. He has been sounding out New York and national labor leaders.

Fully aware of their intuitive sense of bargaining he has talked to them privately these past few months. Those he's approached are with him. They want him in "the Party" -- meaning the Democratic Party. There's a little doubt he'll have the backing of Jerry Wurf's American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes -- the land's swiftest growing pluralisitic union. There is little doubt he would have the United Auto Workers with him – or a resonable section thereof.

Of all the notables at the grim funeral of Walter Reuther, the New York mayor was the most buzzed about, the most pointed out, the most discussed that day in Detroit.

Nor is there any doubt that he has some powerful machine backing in New York City. Remember, this was the route John Kennedy went -- via the powerful Bronx and Brooklyn machines, and the wooing of Carmine DeSapio, then leader to Tammany Hall.

Basically these same forces see John Lindsay now as their only hope to win in '72 -- just as they say John Kennedy as their man a deadly decade ago.

Many of these country leaders -- more or less the same men, the same breed, the same fabulous infighters who put over John Kennedy -- have told this to John Lindsay or to his intimates.

They're fascinated with the mayor's move to bolster ex-secretary of Labor Goldberg. They see the secret polls. They know that Steve Smith, the Kennedy brother-in-law, high in his Pan—American building headquarters has one tightly held costly analysis showing that Arthur Goldberg, son of a Chicago wagon delivery-man, is running mightly close for the New York governorship with Nelson Rockefeller, scion of the famed, multibillion dollar philanthropic family.

They know, the anoymous wise men of machine politics, that governors are president makers. They know that the Democratic Party desperately needs a victory in New York. They know that a "Governor" Arthur Goldberg would be a national figure, a power in the next Democratic nominationg convention. Who else would there be heading a delegation as impactful as the powerful New York Delegation?

They know that to date Mr. Goldberg's campaign has been as tepid as the last slug of beer at an all-day summer Sunday picnic. If Mr. Goldberg does win now, it will have been the mayor who did it. And Mr. Goldberg and Mr. Lindsay will be political partners. His Honor the Mayor then will lick his primaries in '72. The reckoning now in City Hall is that the Democratic frontrunner is Edmund Muskie. So John Lindsay will tangle with him -- or with Hubert Humphrey (if the latter wins his Senate race).

But what of Ted Kennedy? Well, he has decided not to get into any primaries. If the national convention is deadlocked between the Lindsay-Goldberg legions of youths and minorities and reformers and nonviolent new-leftists on one side and the Muskie traditionsalists on the other -- Ted Kennedy will be "available." He'll take a draft. If not, the Kennedy machine, still the best in the business, will do business with the mostest at the convention. Sen. Kennedy plans to stay regular. He has time John Lindsay really hasn't. New York is more than a garbage, fear-ridden heap, it's political quicksand.

Impotency not normal for 36 year old husband

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell the millions of men who read your column that if they are not physically able to have sexual relations with their wives to get some help and stop being so confounded proud and foolish.

It is debasing for a woman to beg her husband for sex and get turned down. Take my word for it, Ann, a wife's love can turn to hate when she is told to take a cold shower and forget it. Most women who have families don't want to take a lover on the side, but after months and sometimes years of frustration and rejection they feel justified.

I've discussed this problem with my doctor. He tells me alcohol can be an important factor in impotency among men between 35 and 50. I'm sure my husband's inability to perform is related to his heavy drinking, but he won't admit he needs help -- either for his drinking or his sex life. He insists that for people our age (I'm 33 and he is 36) once a month is enough. He says I'm the one who needs professional help.

Everything I've ever read on this subject makes it plain that impotency in males (as well and frigidity in females) is 98% emotional and has no organic basis. When I try to explain this to my husband he becomes furious.

I am not asking for advice. I've already made up my mind I am not going to lead a sexless life. What I must decide now is whether to accept an offer from an attractive man who insists he's in love with me (his wife has been ill for years) or file for divorce and get some fullfillment.

Please publish this letter for the benefit of the males in your reading audience who are not as rock-headed as my husband. For them it might not be --Too Late

Dear T.L.: Here's your letter, for the males in my reading audience who are not as rock-headed as your husband. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot these days about children who have no respect for their parents. What about parents who have no respect for their children? Here's what I mean: Mon and Dad drag the kids out of bed at 5:00 a.m. to take them on a 350 mile trip. They arrive at their destination and promptly tell the kids they are going to a party to see relatives "so stay awake nad act polite". Next they are dragged to another party -- more relatives. Again: "Stay awake and act polite." They are given a quick refresher course on names so they"l know Aunt Zelda from Cousin Kate. The food consists of tidbits served with drinks, a cheese dip and potato chips. At 3:00 a.m. the kids are put to bed on the floor --22 hours without sleep.

I am an adult who went through this rigorous routine and I was half dead for two days. I know the people who take better care of their animals. any comment? --Tripped Out

Dear Out: Sounds rough, but I'll bet the kids had a good time --- and it's better than leaving them at home. If the parents dragged them around like this every week I'd report them to the Humane Society, but for a one-time thing it's nothing to get excited about. P.S. Kids recover faster than adults.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope And Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Girl from Tahiti attending SHS

by CHARLES F. BRADY

"America's biggest problem, I think, is young people against the government," Esabelle Yao, 14, a freshman enrolled in Sikeston High School, commented.

Miss Yao, a Tahitian who came from that country the 28th of August this year,says people are more free in Tahiti than in America.

Esabelle Yao

"We can leave certain courses in school if we are not interested in that course providing it is not something important," she said. "we have to go to school until we are 16."

She said the United States is a beautiful country although colder than Tahiti.

Commenting on America's structure, she said:

"Tahitians are generally friendly toward America. I approve of the United States government the way it is now. We have no bombing problems in Tahiti and have no problems with Communists. Our government is French."

Miss Yao has had the opporutnity to live in different parts of the world: Greece, France, Africa, China, Tahitit, and, of course, the United States.

She said she liked Greece the best but Tahiti has the friendliest people.

On women's fashions, Miss Yao said:

"I like the mini, midi, and maxi dresses. I decide which to wear by the type of weather and the shape of the dress. The mini is popular in Tahiti.'

She can speak Mandarian Chinese and French fluently. She has some trouble with English and, when she was younger, she spoke Greek.

"I only have a visa here for a year,"she said. "I would like to stay in America longer and go to college here, a California college."

Miss Yao said her favorite pasttime is reading.

"My favorite music is classical. My favorite popular music singer is Tom Jones," she commented.

She has another brother and sister who live in California besides a sister who lives in Sikeston. Her mother has also been living in Sikeston but plans to leave in December for Tahiti and later will teach piano in Taiwan.

"I am in favor of peace dissent but demonstrators and rioters serve no useful purpose," she concluded.

Mrs. Nixon likes people and won't be a phoney

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon has a simple approach to her political campaigning: "I like people and I would never be phony."

Ending a week of cross-country travel in behalf of Republican candidates, the President's wife said she was surprised some people think such campaigning is unusual for her.

She admits she has never been "clear around the country" on her own before, "but I've been in this since 1946." And she plans to be out again next week—in Indianapolis Wednesday and later in San Diego and San Francisco, Calif.

Asked how the campaign shapes up for Republicans, Mrs. Nixon said exuberantly: "It looks great."

Mrs. Nixon proved she's a pro on a day-long trip to Florida Thursday in which she shook hands with at least 2,000 people and got a warm welcome in return. She was given keys to two cities and the mayor proclaimed "Mrs. Richard M. Nixon Day" in Fort Myers.

She smiled, said "Hi, honey," patted hands, hugged youngsters, gave out autographs and 50 or so gold ball-point pens with her name on them, and posed for innumerable pictures with candidates and constituents.

It didn't matter that the main Senate candidate she came to promote—Rep. William C. Cramer—was off seeking votes elsewhere. Mrs. Nixon, touring with Mrs. Cramer, said, "I didn't expect him and knew he was going to be busy."

"I'm not dwelling upon myself," she explained her campaign composure. She did admit her right hand was "all dented up" with fingernail scratches. But, "These things never bother me."

Her day in Florida included appearances at two receptions in Point Brittany and Fort Myers where she stood each time for about 90 minutes without letup, shaking hands.

"This is what I love," Mrs. Nixon said afterwards. "I love to have a word or two with people and have a word with their children. I love people and I think that I completely captiviate them."

Nebraska, Oklahoma Favored In Big 8

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Nebraska Cornhuskers and the Oklahoma Sooners, both undefeated in Big Eight Conference football, are favored to open up more daylight between themselves and the rest of the league Saturday.

Nebraska, 2-0 against conference foes, is picked to win by 21 points over Oklahoma State, 0-1 and Oklahoma, 1-0, by five points over Kansas State, 2-1.

Colorado, 1-2, faces a test for survival in its game at Missouri, 1-1. Kansas plays Iowa State 0-2, at Lawrence, Kan.

By Saturday night, there should be a pretty clear separation of the men from the boys in the championship race.

Oklahoma State will depend heavily on passing against the fourth-ranked Cornhuskers. The Cowboys' have the league's leading passer in quarterback Tony Poiunds, who has a .557 completion percentage, and the league's No. 2 receiver in Hermann Eben, who snagged 27 passes for 482 yards and four touchdowns.

Nebraska, the conference leader in total offense and three defensive departments, will blend the passing of two quarterbacks, Van Brownson and Jerry Tagge, with the running of Joe Orduna and Jeff Kinney. This combination has kept Nebraska unbeaten this season and has established the Cornhuskers as the team to beat in the conference race.

The Sooners staged a major surprise a week ago by upending Colorado 23-15. Oklahoma demonstrated the effectiveness of its new Wishborne-T attack when it had to travel an average of 78.5 yards on every drive. Coach Chuck Fairbanks, who installed the attack after Oklahoma's first three games, hopes it will be just as effective against Kansas State.

Kansas State, a hot and cold team, has seen its running game, spearheaded by Mike Montgomery and Henry Hawthorne, round into fine form in recent games. The running of these two performers and Lynn Dickey's passing could cause the Sooners trouble. Flanker Sonny Yarnell will be back in action for Kansas State.

Colorado, a three-point underdog, must win at Missouri or give up on its hopes for the conference title. Coach Eddie zzcrowder expects offensive guard Dennis Havig back.

"Missouri is as difficult to move the football on as anybody we will play this year," Crowder says.

Missouri's hopes are brightened by return of linebacker Nip Weisenfels, who hasn't played since Sept. 19 because of a knee operation. Guard Dan Kelley also may be ready along with tackle Rocky Wallace. Linebacker Sam Britts, favoring an ankle injury, will miss the Colorado game.

Kansas is favored by 13 points over Iowa State. The Jayhawks will be without offensive guard Gary Cooper, bothered by a sprained ankle. Both quarterback Dan Heck and running back John Riggins, who received minor injuries against Nebraska, are mended. Kansas's improved but still inadequate defense is the Jayhawks' big difficulty.

Iowa State may have to play without quarterback Dean Carlson, who has shared the starting role with George Amundson. Carlson has a bruised knee. Iowa State lost 17-0 to Kansas last week.

ATLANTA (AP) — Tradition is against a successful ring comeback for Muhammad, Ali after a 3½ year layoff, but that doesn't faze the brash and cocky ex-heavyweight champion of the world.

"Man, I'm faster than when I was the fastest," insists the controversial Louisville Lip, capping off training for his Monday night 15-rounder here against Jerry Quarry.

"I am only 28. I have kept myself in shape. I have lived a clean life. I am still the best—the champ. Nobody can beat me."

The black-skinned descendant of a runaway slave, born Cassius Marcellus Clay in Louisville, is not one to pore over ring record books. If he were, his confidence might be shaken.

History shows that many of the great champions, from John L. Sullivan up to the time of Joe Louis, have found ring rust a handicap too great to conquer.

Sullivan, known as the Boston Strong Boy in the bareknuckle era, won the heavyweight crown from Paddy Ryan in front of the Barnes Hotel in Mississippi City, Miss., back in 1882.

He bowled over opponents for the next several years, ran out of foes and did not fight from 1889 to 1892. During this period of idleness, he took a trip to Europe, sparred with the Prince of Wales and played "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands" on the stage.

Returning to the ring in 1892—fat, out of shape and 33—Sullivan was an easy victim of James J. Corbett, who won by a knockout in 21 rounds.

Corbett himself retired in 1895 to become an actor. He tried a comeback only to be knocked out in 14 rounds by Bob Fitzsimmons. Fitzsimmons ultimately lost the title to Jim Jeffries in 1899.

Jeffries, known as the Boilermaker, retired in 1904 and let Marvin Hart and Jack Root fight for his crown, Hart winning. After a five-year lapse, Jeffries tried to regain the title. Pitifully out of condition, he was kayoed by Jack Johnson in Reno in 1910. He was 35 at the time.

—Jack Dempsey, after knocking out Luis Firpo Sept. 14, 1923, had three years of easy living, with no standout opponents. He fought exhibitions, once taking on six different foes in one night, kayoing four.

His once sturdy legs and flicking hands didn't look the same Sept. 23, 1926 when he lost the first of his two decisions to Gene Tunney.

Jimmy Braddock spent two years waiting for Joe Louis and avoiding Max Schmeling and got himself knocked out in seven rounds. Louis himself couldn't find the secret of comeback success and lost to Ezzard Charles in 1950—at the age of 36.

The question at the Municipal Auditorium here Monday night will be: Has Muhhamad Ali, like so many of his predecessors, stayed away too long? Has he lost the spring and the fire that carried him to 29 professional victories, 23 by knockout, with no defeats?

Muhammad insists he hasn't. "I've never been better," says Ali.

"There is no reason he shouldn't be capable of making a comeback," says ex-champion Jersey Joe Walcott, who refereed Ali's second victory over Sonny Liston. "He's young. He's one of the greatest fighters I've ever seen."

"You can't help losing something by a layoff," says Braddock. "It can't be done unless you're a superman."

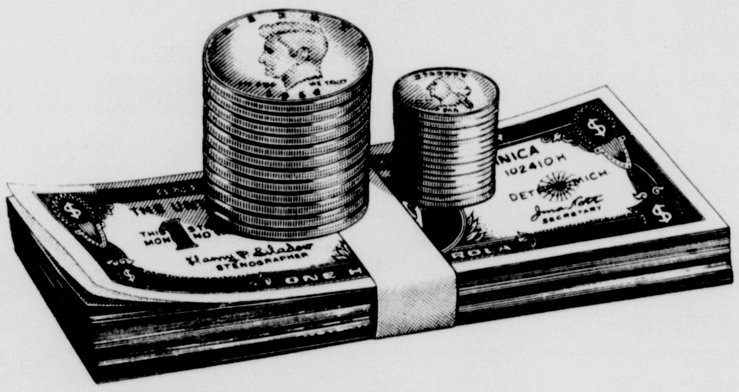

The bout is attracting worldwide attention. Newsmen continued to pour in today from overseas, the list numbering more than 500.

Monday will not be a gala day for all Georgians.

Gov. Lester Maddox, who vehemently opposed the bout, declared it a day of mourning.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes
Sports Editor

Competition is the root of all athletic contests and the same holds true inalmost anything you do, especially if you're the kind of person who likes to be tops, and come to think of it ... who doesn't like to be tops?

Well, we do here at the office, especially in our special little corner at the north end of our building where I'm joined by Mike "Flash" Jensen and Charles "Poet" Brady.

Ever since the start of the season, we've been trying to out-do the other in the predicting of area grid games ... and if I have to say so myself (because none of the others would) I've been tops every week ... well almost every ...

Anyway, we've chosen up sides and have three guest challengers this week in Tony Ford of Sikeston, Randy South of Parma and Grid Iron Harry from East Prairie, who'll try and out predict our office force.

So, without any more gab ... here goes.

CAPE CENTRAL AT SIKESTON --- All-conference back Mike Shaffer was issued equipment at the start of the week and given a doctors release to rejoin the Bulldog grid team .. BUT ... he'll have to wait atleast another week and possibly two before he gets into the action. That mental lift might help the Dogs, but not enough as the consensus of all six of us ... see a Bengal victory.

Flash 52-0	Tony 36-6
Brady 39-7	Randy 42-0
Ron 21-0	Harry 49-0

CHARLESTON AT EAST PRAIRIE --- Rivalry can produce some weird outcomes, especially if both teams are matched as well as those two are. The Bluejays are favored 4-2.

Flash 36-18 (CHS)	Tony 28-14 (CHS)
Brady 20-8 (CHS)	Randy 21-20 (EPHS)
Ron 14-13 (CHS)	Harry 33-30 (EPHS)

PERRYVILLE AT KENNETT --- The Tribe is a solid favorite ... not to score and record its 23rd straight defeat.

Flash 48-0	Tony 48-0
Brady 32-0	Randy 52-0
Ron 28-0	Harry 41-0

DEXTER AT POPLAR BLUFF --- Can the Bearcats repeat their performance of last week when they shutout once-powerful Sikeston, 20-0 ... The consensus is NO... 5 to 1.

Flash 28-7 (PB)	Tony 21-17 (PB)
Brady 25-13 (PB)	Randy 17-16 (DHS)
Ron 21-14 (PB)	Harry 26-14 (PB)

PORTAGEVILLE --- These two squads have been trouble for our prognostication trio all season ... but we seem to be in agreement with our competitors in this meeting ... Portageville all the way.

Flash 18-0	Tony 30-14
Brady 18-7	Randy 20-10
Ron 14-13	Harry 28-19

MALDEN AT CHAFFEE --- Coach Jack Phillips' Green Waves are favored (6-0 to move within one victory of claiming atleast a tie for the Southern crown ... They'll meet East Prairie in the big game next week and end the season in the big, big game.

Flash 32-0	Tony 36-14
Brady 31-6	Randy 37-7
Ron 28-0	Harry 44-7

HAYTI AT ILLMO-SCOTT CITY --- The Rams are 4-2 favorites to keep he Indians out of the win column, for atleast another week. Here's the way it looks.

Flashh 14-7 (I-SC)	Tony 14-3 (I-SC)
Brady 12-0 (HHS)	Randy 12-10 (I-SC)
Ron 28-21 (HHSS)	Harry 20-12 (I-SC)

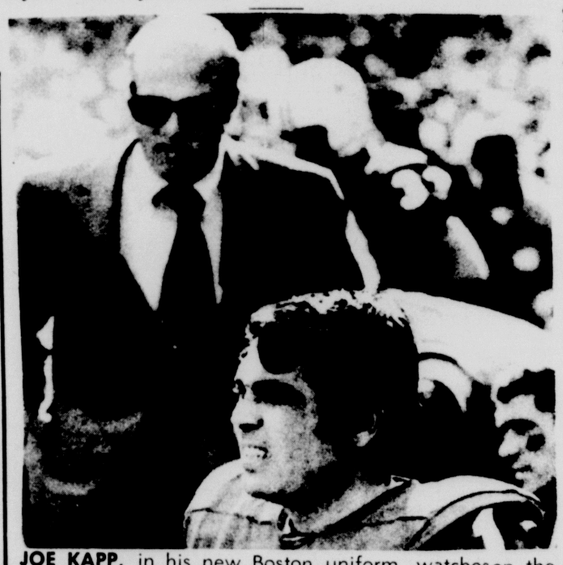

DELTA C-7 AT SOUTH PEMISCOT --- C-7's Chargers are a unamimous choice to finish in the cellar of the Bootheel Division standings.

Flash 18-3	Tony 6-3
Brady 14-0	Randy 7-0
Ron 6-0	Harry 6-0

Now, all six of us will st back and await tonight's final outcome ... watch tomorrow's paper for the results.

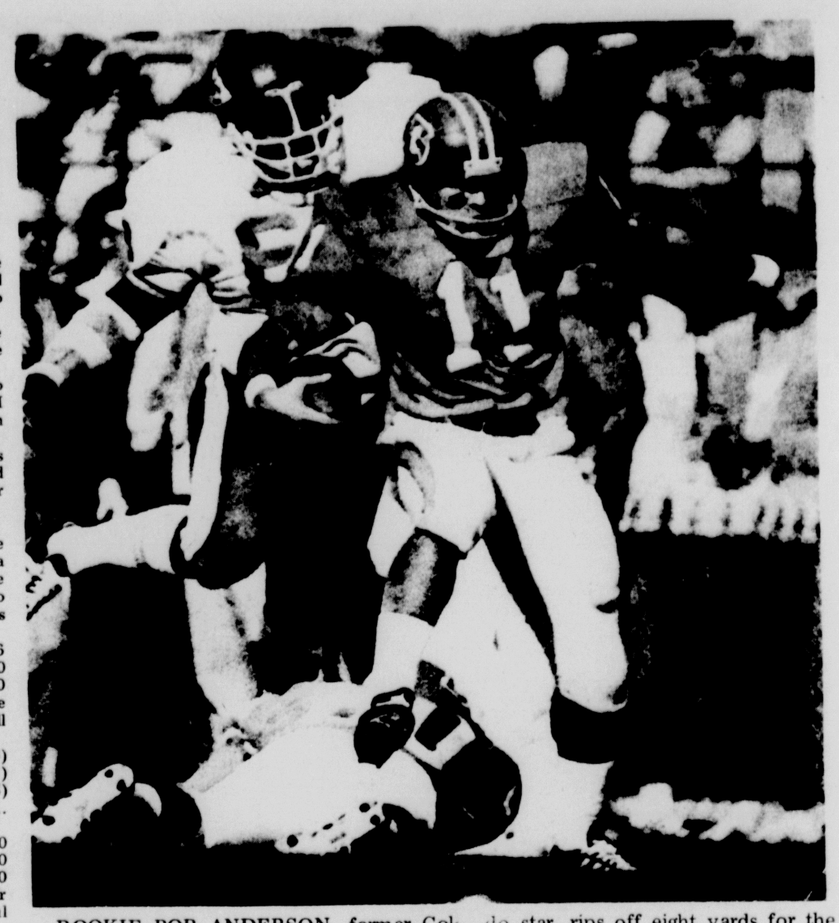

My thanks to Tony, Randy and Grid Iron Harry for their assistance ... More of you try your skills next week.

P.S. -- Tony was 7 of 10 last week while the Flash was 6-3, the Poet 7-2 and your's truly 7-2. By the way Monett is favored 18-7 over Webb City ... A cardinal farm club ... WHAT? .. that's what it says ... Webb City Cardinals.

JOE KAPP, in his new Boston uniform, watcheson the sidelines with the Patriots' coach, Clive Rush.

Homecoming At SHS

Tonight's game at Public school stadium is something special, its not only a clash with the Northern Division leading Cape Central Tigers, it's HOMECOMING...

And the enthusiasm inspired by the student body and the famed "Red Peppers" of SHS, who have decorated the football players houses, should add little needed spark to the team which is 1-5 on the season.

An all- senior lineup is vieing for the Homecoming queen title, which will be bestowed upon either Beth Waldman, Claudia Mulcaha and Peggy McMullin, after the game in ceremonies at the cafeteria.

Coach Bill Priday's pack faces the almost "impossible," as most of the team he started the season with is injured and a number of juniors and sophomores have been called upon.

Cape has lost but one game this season, that to St. Louis county power Parkway West, and has but two defeats to its credit over the past two seasons as it bowed in the semi- finals of the state 4A playoffs last season to perienial champion McCluer.

The Bengals have one of the state's top receivers in Ed Slaughter and have one of the top rated defensive teams in the area.

Coach Priday hasn't had any major problems to correct this season, but has been faced with a lot of little things that experience can only correct.

He's been without his number one quarterback much of the season and has been pleagued with finding the right offensive combinations as the SHS crew has been shutout in four the six games this season.

Good news came earlier this week when it was announced that All- Conference back Mike Shaffer, who has been out all season, has been given a doctors release and has checked out equipment. But, he is doubtful he will see action in tonight's fierce battle, but the news of his return is sure to perk up the Big Red.

Bess Among Speakers At Clinic

The basketball and wrestling coaching clinic sponsored by the Missouri State High School Activities Association in cooperation with the University of Missouri Athletic Department will be held next weekend at the Ramada Inn in Columbia.

Included among the speakers will be Gene Bess, head coach at Three Rivers junior college in Poplar Bluff, who led Oran high school to the runner-up spot in the 1969 State class M tournament, losing the final game to Dixon 76-74. In last six years of coaching in high school ranks, his teams won 15 of 18 championships in conference and invitational tournaments claimed seven conference titles in a row and showed a career mark of 237-95 for stints with Lesterville, Anniston and Oran high schools. Bess went to Three Rivers as an assistant to Bob Cradic last season and now holds the head job as Cradic moved up to Southeast Misssouri State, where Bess is a graduate. He teaches fast break offense.

No Shortage Of Ducks, Geese

By GEORGE SITTERLEY
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — There'll be no shortage of ducks and geese in Missouri when the 1970 waterfowl season opens a half hour before sunrise Saturday.

The State Conservation Department said today there are good concentrations of birds in most areas but hujters may be a bit confused by the complcated regulations, especially on goose hunting.

Duck limits have been raised substantially, reflecting what has been reported to be an exceptional nesting season in the pothole areas.

But Mike Milonsky, a waterfowl biologist for the department, said the duck population may not be as great as estimated earlier. He said Minnesota has reported a relatively poor duck hunting season and the number of ducks in Missouri's Swan Lake zone is substantially below the same date a year ago.

Food and weather conditions may have been partially responsiible, he said. The Swan Lake zone had 50,000 ducks feeding and resting there a year ago. This week the count showed only 32,250.

That's still a lot of ducks. Teal, baldpate and pintails make up the bulk of the duck flock at Swan Lake but some Mallards are coming in. The zone has 92,305 geese, about 5,000 less tha a year ago.

Around Squaw Creek Federa Refuge in Holt County conservation census takers counted 51,000 Blue and Snow Geese, 3,100 Canadas and about 70,000 ducks.

All other popular hunting areas in the northern half of the state have good populations of waterfowl, the Conservation Department reported. The southern areas are still relatively free of waterfowl concentrations.

The weather should be warm for the opening day and there may be some rain, the forecasters have reported.

The season and the limits on ducks are relatively simple.

The season runs from Oct. 24 through Dec. 17. The daily limit is six and the possession limit is eight. But there's a bonus of two scaup daily.

Not more than two Mallards may be taken in a daily limit, with a possession limit of four. Not more than two may be Wood Ducks, with four in possession, and not more than one may be either a Canvasback or Redhead.

That brings up the complicated zone system on geese.

First, there are two zones in which geese may not be taken.

One, the Bull Shoals zone, includes the counties of Barry, Stone and Ozark deep in southern Missouri.

The other is called the Montrose Lake zone and is bounded by Missouri 18 on the north, Missouri 13 and 52 on the east, Missouri 52 and Route K on the south and Route K on the west.

The season is closed there to protect growing flocks of giant Canadas, once thought to be extinct.

The general season — outside the zones—runs from Oct. 24 through Jan. 1 and the daily and possession limits are five and five. Not more than two may be Canadas and not more than two may be White-Fronted Geese.

Here are the seasons and limits in the special zones:

Squaw Creek (Atchison and Holt Counties and the portions of Andrew and Nodaway Counties west of U.S. 71) — season from Oct. 24 through Jan. 1 on Blue, Snow and White-Fronted Geese but the season on Canadas closes Nov. 22. The daily and possession limits are five and five except no more than two Canadas a day and only until Nov. 22.

Swan Lake (bounded on the west by U.S. 65, on the north by U.S. 36, on the east by Missouri 5 and on the south by Missouri 240) — season from Oct. 24 through Dec. 15 except that goose shooting will stop earlier if the harvest reaches 15,000. The limits are five and five except that no more than one Canada may be bagged any one day and not more than four may be a hunter's possession.

The new Lower Mississippi zone is made up ofall Missouri lying east of U.S. 67 south of Crystal City. The season there runs from Dec. 1 through Jan. 24. The daily limit is two Canadas and the possession limit is four.

Fight Errupts, Pistons Win Again

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Lanier continues to impress in his rookie season with the Detroit Pistons.

He made another impression Thursday night — on Bob Christian's nose.

Brawny Bob staggered the Atlanta rookie with a left hook and some fighting-mad players emptied onto the court from the Pistons' ND Hawks' benches.

The would-be battlers soon went back to the business at hand and the red-hot Pistons went on to punch out the Hawks 120-101 in a National Basketball Association game.

The action occurred when Lanier and Christian became entangled in a fight for a loose ball.

Both Lanier and Christian were hit with personal fouls—but neither was ejected. However, referee Darell Garrison said that seven Pistons and four Hawks who left the benches probably would be fined, Under a new league rule, only coaches can leave the benches when a fight erupts.

The New York Knicks were up to their old second-half magic, coming back for a 95-92 victory over the San Francisco Warriors and San Diego beat Cleveland 140-110 in other NBA games Thursday night.

In the American Basketball Association, Memphis outscored Kentucky 109-99, Virginia turned back Carolina 114-110 and the Floridians beat the New York Nets 110-100.

Detroit, only unbeaten team in the NBA, extended its victory string to six. The Pistons had a 17-point lead in the second quarter, but the Hawks, led by Pete Maravich's 23 points, sliced the margin to six. The Detroit scored 13 stright and ran away to hide from Atlanta.

Mike Riordan provided the spark with nine fourth-quarter points that gave the Knicks a comeback victory, their trademark in last year's title-winning season. He delivered the killing blow, a 20-foot jumper with 40 seconds left.

Elvin Hayes put on a powerhouse show, scoring 40 points to pace the San Diego victory over winless Cleveland.

Memphis ran away from a 50-50 halftime tie with a 35-15 third-quarter margin that buried Kentucky. Pros guard Steve Jones rifled in 10 points in the period.

Virginia collected 100 rebounds but had to rally for a last-quarter victory over Carolina. Two free throws by Roland Taylor sent the Squires ahead for good 92-91 at the 9:29 mark.

Larry jones completed a three-point play to snap a 95-95 tie with five minutes left, leading the Floridians over the Nets.

Pitt In Spotlight

Press Sports Writer

The Pitt Panthers, once one of the most feared teams in the country, but just a bunch of tame pussycats the last few years, take the spotlight away from the top-ranked Ohio State Buckeyes in college football Saturday.

The Panthers scored an upset 36-35 victory over West Virginia last week with a fantastic second half rally after trailing 35-8.

That was Pitt's fourth straight triumph after an opening game defeat by UCLA and recalled the glory days of the Jock Sutherland coaching era in the 1920s and 1930s.

How they do against the Miami Hurricanes at Pitt Stadium Saturday should indicate whether the Panthers actually are on the way back or if the upset of West Virginia was just a flash in the pan.

Sutherland's teams were famous for their running game and ability to block and tackle. That seems to be the style of Pitt's current coach, Carl Depasqua. He calls it "fundamentally sound football, Western Pennsylvania style."

The No. 1 Buckeyes, whose trademark also is a strong running attack, play at Illinois and are favored to win their fifth straight against no defeats.

In other games, involving The Associated Press Top Ten, No. 2 Texas plays at Rice and the Longhorns also are favored to make five in a row against the Owls. Third-ranked Notre Dame, 5-0, has an open date, while No. 4 Nebraska, unbeaten, but tied, is host to Oklahoma State.

Michigan, No. 5, goes after its sixth straight against Minnesota at Ann Arbor. Auburn, No. 6, entertains Louisiana State, Air Force, No. 7, is at home to Boston College, Stanford, No. 8, is at UCLA, No. 9, Arkansas, meets Wichita State at Little Rock, and Southern California, No. 10, is at Oregon.

Minnesota at Michigan is one of four games that will be regionally televised by ABC. The others are Penn State at Army, Florida at Tennessee and Dartmouth at Harvard.

The Florida at Tennessee game may provide some fireworks. Doug Dickey, now Florida coach, was the Tennessee coach last season.

Stanford, led by quarterback Jim Plunkett, is aiming for the Rose Bowl and the Indians do not plan to let UCLA upset their hopes.

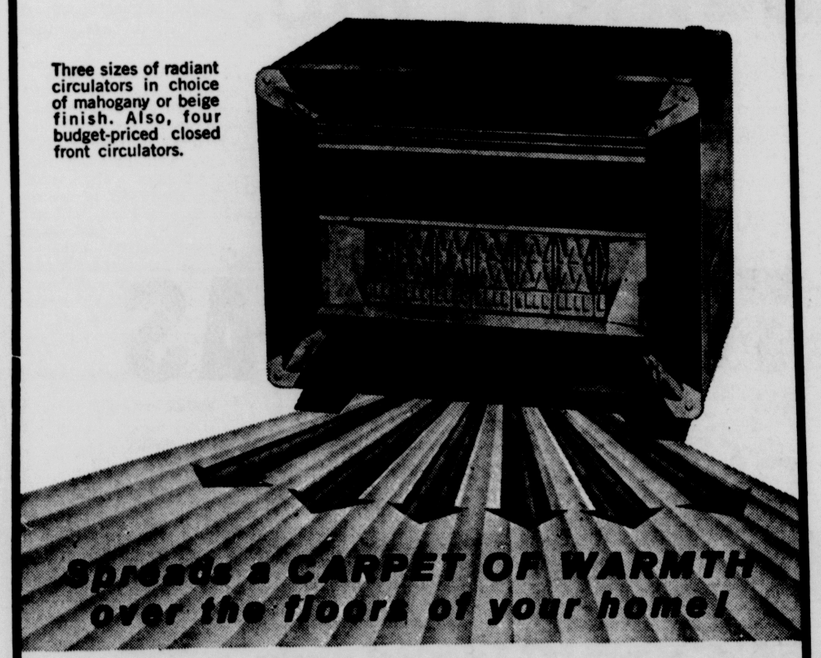

Other leading games include Colorado at Missouri, Kansas State at Oklahoma, Southern Mississippi at Mississippi State, Mississippi at Vanderbilt, Georgia at Kentucky, Arizona at Utah and New Mexico at Wyoming.

Missouri Pacific Expands Systems

ST. LOUIS, -- The Missouri Pacific System has placed orders for 500 new freight cars and 25 diesel locomotoves at a cost of more than $16,000,000, Downing B. Jenks, president, announced today.

Freight car orders include 400 box cars, 50½ feet in length with 70-ton capacity, to be built by the Amcar Division, ACF Industries, at St. Louis, and 100 covered hopper cars of 100-ton capacity, also to be built by Amcar at its Huntington, West Virginia, plant.

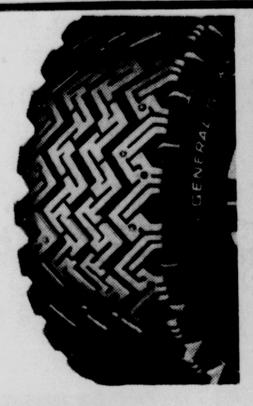

All the new freight cars will be equipped with roller bearings to provide safer, high - speed operation, and the box cars will be equipped with special cushioning devices to provide greater protection for freight.

MoPac has also ordered 25 locomotives of 3,000 HP, including 20 SD-40's from the Electro - Motive Division of General Motors Corp., and five U-30-C's from the General Electric Corp.

Since 1961, when MoPac began an intensive program of plant improvement and modernization and expansion of its equipment, the railroad has purchased 16,600 new freight cars and 373 new locomotives at a cost of more than $322,000,000, Mr. Jenks pointed out.

The Military An Honored Place

by Maj. Gen. R. McC Tompkins

Just a few months ago, there came to my desk the report of the Seapower Subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee.

This vital survey, directed by the Chairman in September of 1968, lays it right on the line. It shows, in excruciating detail that we, the world's greatest naval power, have let things slide backwards to an alarming degree. The average age of our ships, the lack of planned replacements, the unavailability of necessary spare parts for obsolescent ships, and a host of related factors have placed us in a most serious posture.

This vital report is unemotional, factual — and completely frightening in the evidence it presents.

I shall content myself with reading only three short sentences. First, the final sentence in Section 605, under the heading "U.S. Naval Strategy":

"Without a strong and modern Navy, which permits many additional choices in international affairs, the United States could find itself in a position of being unable to carry out commitments or of paying too high a price to do so."

And two sections under the heading "Conclusions":

Section 801: "The U.S. Navy is in a serious condition primarily because of the age of its ships."

Section 802: "That the Navy is as effective as it is now is a great tribute to the efforts and the devotion to duty of its officers and men."

I would like to re - emphasize that final section. That our ships keep going, under the burden of operational commitments more severe than any "peacetime', Navy has ever experienced is indeed a great tribute. And it comes about by the hard work and leadership of a comparatively small percentage of career officers and enlisted men, coupled with the innate pride and patriotism of the the majority of the willing, if noncareer, personnel who man them.

But it is the career men, officers and enlisted alike, who are the key to our success in continuing to operate under today's terribly difficult conditions. If cost - effectiveness ever got around to considering these men, they would be found to be one of America's great bargains. The only trouble is that there are not enough men such as these. And, because this is so, in the long haul the ability of the Navy to serve national policy to the full potential of sea power can only diminish.

The ship - building and modernization program envisaged by the Chairman will ensure, we pray, that by the 1980's the United States should have the required fleet of about 850 ships of modern design and construction.

Someone once said: "A profession is neither a hobby nor an enthusiasm. It is not something embarked on in an emergency, however necessary at times that may be. A profession is something to which you give your life."

And it is one of the inescapable facts of this decade that fewer and fewer young men are attracted to a military career, to adopt it as their profession, to spend their useful life following the Flag. The appeal of a military career is verging on an all - time low. Thousands of fine young Americans serve their obligated service gallantly and without complaint. But to make a career out of it? — "no thank you" at best, or "don't be silly" more frequently.

Why is it that young men who have proven themselves in battle are unwilling to become career men in one of the Services?

There is, understandably, a national weariness with the unending atmosphere of war and crisis. It has gone on for a long time — a perpetual dark shadow over American life. And concurrently there has grown up a not inconsiderable body of opinion in this country that believes the wretched military, by some legerdemain, are at the bottom of the whole mess.

These are not my opinions alone — the unilateral opinions of an aging professional. Far from it.

On 4 June, 1969, the President of the United States addressed the graduating class at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs. Among many other things, President Nixon said:

"... It is open season on the Armed Forces ... The military profession is derided in some of the so-called best circles in America. Patriotism is considered by some to be a backward fetish of the uneducated and unsophisticated."

Cartoonists usually depict the military mind as residing in a gross, venal, medal -encrusted slob, pop -eyed, greedy, and obviously without a redeeming trait.

But the truth of the matter is quite different. Perhaps general Shepherd put the record straight when, in the course of testifying before Subcommittee No. 2 of the House Armed Services Committee on 7 February, 1955, he said:

"There is no more honorable profession than a career spent in the service of one.s Country. The military profession is founded upon ideals of devotion to duty, acceptance of responsibility, and absolute loyalty. Such a career demands of those who follow it complete dedication to these unselfish principles. There are individuals who accept service to their Country primarily for the intangible rewards that follow such loyaltv and devotion."

These are the qualities that I believe are typical of the so-called military mind. And if that be so, and every experience of my service life proves it to be so, then I say "Thank God for the military mind."

For over 30 years, I have had the honor as a professional Marine of following our Flag all over the world. And long before my time, other men followed that Flag and fought for it and all it stands for. But all of us — 1775 and 1970 — have one thing in common and that is an unequivocable belief in the United States. For better or for worse, it is OUR Country.

And I cannot understand how there could be Americans who, in President Nixon's own words, consider patriotism the backward fetish of the uneducated and unsophisticated. Something is badly out of focus.

But all our people should understand exactly what it is that this country of ours is facing — now and in the future.

We, the United States — by default rather than by choice — find ourselves with the fate of the 20th century in our hands. With Britain's decline, our burdens become greater and more inescapable, Ho Chi Minh has stated that Viet Nam is the first of the wars of liberation and others will follow when they have won Viet Nam.

There is no doubt in my mind that for a long time to come, the Armed Services of the United States will be called upon to serve in parts of the globe as yet undreamed of. Granted that it might be rather old - fashioned to mention it in this day and age, but we may find a parallel in the 19th century for our present requirement to fight limited wars.

Between 1824 and 1901, the British Army fought in some 29 wars and campaigns that have been officially dignified by names. And there were hundreds of other bitter little fights that went on in the most improbable places and were never considered of sufficient stature to be listed in the approved battle honors. But a man can get killed just as dead at a trail - crossing on the Khyber Pass as he can in the Argonne or Normandy or Khe Sanh. He just has less company.

But this was the type of burden that Great Britain had to carry — an now the burden is ours. The British Army and the Royal Navy have marched and sailed over the horizon and into the pages of history. They are only a token force of a gallant people.

And we shoulder this burden at a time of unrest and dissent that has not been seen in this beloved Country of ours since those tragic years between 1860 and 1865.

We are fighting this bitter expensive war in Viet Nam. The reasons for our involvement go back 20-22-24 years, depending on how you reckon these things.

But there's no sense in hashing them over now. The fact is — we're there.

I can tell you though that this Country has never been involved in a task more difficult than the one we're facing in Viet Nam. And it is a task that places a heavy burden on our younger generation.

Wars, you know, are fought mainly by young men — the riflemen and their lieutentnts. They are the ones who go forward to the point of contact where war is girt with horrors. And these young men — age 18 to 23, perhaps — endure these horrors and overcome them along with the reasonable promptings of fear and the yearnings of the belly and do what has to be done.

And while the lieutenant and his men are facing the terrible realities of life and death in some stinking rice paddy, we're treated to some pretty curious spectacles here at home where one can safely indulge in all kinds of irrational activities.

There are the infragrant yippie packs caterwauling that America is 200 years mistaken.

Then that irrational, irresponsible minority of nonpeople people whose sole product is division, whose single achievement is the treasonable encouragement of the enemy — collect blood for the Viet Cong, praise Ho Chi Minh and dishonor the American Flag.

And we then have certain circles that choose to emphasize such treason as the "peace movement," mass criminality as "demonstration," and exhibitionistic anarchy as "protest" and "dissent."

It might be well for some of our fellow citizens to understand, as James Mill said, that war is an ugly thing, but it is not the ugliest of things. The decayed and degraded state of moral and patriotic feeling that thinks nothing is worth war is much worse. The man who has nothing for which he is willing to fight, who cares for nothing more than his own personal safety, is a miserable creature who has no chance of being free unless made and kept so by the exertions of better men than himself.

Somewhere there is a long line of silent men who probably watch with consternation and amazement what we are doing to this Country and ourselves. They are the "Better Men" who helped secure our nation in battles large and small from the earliest days down through almost 200 years of our history.

Those half - forgotten actions such as Brandywine and Trenton and Yorktown; San Jacinto and Chapultepec; El CAney; Belleau Woods, Soissons, Blanc Mount, St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

And in our own memory and experience, the great battles of World War II and the bitter fighting in Korea.

Today those "Better Men" are the men who carry that lonely, heavy burden in Viet Nam where there are no 40-hour weeks and no campus riots.

We say that a tour of duty in Viet Nam for a Marine is 13 months. And so it is. But thus far in this war there are over 11,000 Marines who won't be completing their normal tours. They were killed in action.

They didn't stage sit -down strikes. They went because they deemed it their duty — whatever that might mean to you. They went because their Country needed them there.

They went for the guys with the long hair and the protest signs, the draft card burners, the hippies, the anti - everything people who have nothing better to do.

They went for all the men who have fought gallantly on many battlefields to keep our Country free.

They went for all Americans — including those who have abdicated their privileges of being an American.

They went because they were men and, being such, they carried the burden of the free world on their young shoulders.

If and when people comprehend the deadly realities of the confrontation going on today in Viet Nam — and where tomorrow, God only knows — then, and only then, will fighting men be accorded the respect they so richly deserve.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

In case you are wondering whom to blame for this instrusion on your time, I'll tell you that Bill Fahy of the Muscatine Journal helped me find the name of a paper in Sikeston and told me he knew you personally and that you were formerly from Iowa. He did not suggest that I write you-- that was my own idea.

I am trying to help a woman establish her date of birth. She claims to have been born in Morehouse, Missouri on November 25, 1918. Her parents were Elmer A. and Isadora Thompson Delameter. Her name was Violet Frances Delameter.

Sometimes birth announcements are made in newspapers and I thought if you do not keep old issues, perhaps there is a public library there which has old copies. If so, do you know anyone who could make a photo copy of such a birth announcement?

Any kind of a reply will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,
T. F. Beveridge

Montalban Seeks Better Latin American Image

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Spanish-speaking American boy sees Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid wipe out a regiment of Bolivian soldiers. He sees the Wild Bunch annihilate the Mexican army. It's only natural for him to say, 'Gee, I wish I were an Anglo.'"

Ricardo Montalban was speaking about a cause that he and other Latin Americans are devoting themselves to: the portrayal of their race in movies and television.

Three organizations have been formed to combat what the members consider libels of Spanish-Americans. Their objections range from the somnolent peon in movies to the cornchip bandito of television commercials.

Charisma, headed by Ray Martell, is one of the groups. Jusiticia-- Justice for Chicanos in the Motion Picture and Television Industry -- is another. Justicia, led by Ray Andrade, this month held a meeting with leaders of the Actor, Director, Producer and Writer guilds, who agreed to urge the need to "re-create the image of the Chicano in American society."

Nosotros --We -- is the third group and its president is actor Montalban.

"The three organizations differ in degrees of militancy," explained Montalban. ' 'We have had our differences in the past, but now I think we have established lines of communication. I think we all function well together, because we are agreed that something needs to be done."

Nosotros has three major aims, the actor said. They are:

"1. To correct the image of the Spanish-speaking American, who is portrayed either as the sleepy, lazy, pastoral peon or as a bandit. We are the largest invisible minority in the United States, yet no other aspects of our people are shown in films. This is an immense disservice to the young people, who consider themselves outcasts; they cannot identify with bandits or comedic figures.

"2. To make sure that a man is not denied work in the industry because his name happens to be Garcia. There have been many examples of actors who have been unable to find jobs until they anglicized their names. Then they have been turned down for Latin roles ' because you don't look Mexican.' That is ridiculous; Mexicans are as varied in appearance as people in the United States.

"3. To stimulate actors to go further in their profession by study. We want to establish workshops, first for professionals and then as a means of developing talent from the community.

' 'This has been the stickiest part of our program. We have 237 members and a teacher can handle no more than eight to 10 students. We are trying to get the workshop aspect organized; we must crawl before we can walk."

Draft Exemption - Ministerial and Otherwise

A bearded disciple of peace raises his arms, flicks his cigarette lighter and eternally consigns his draft card to purgatory. Then he bugs off to Canada or Katmandu before the feds catch him.

That's draft evasion, Case One.

Case Two. A neat young man in a business suit boards a plane whose destination is the town where his draft board is located. With him is an official of the company where he works. The officials's time, the plane tickets and the night.s lodging upon arrival — all are paid for by the company. Is this draft evasion? Or is it the use of the law to exempt a young man whose services, the company believes, are more necessary to its war contracts than on the battlefield?

Both examples have occurred countless times amid the ever growing controversy about the Draft, or the Military Selective Service Act as it is known. What seems to escape the argument is that the Draft doesn't have to be controversial. It IS controversial, but only because of its inequities, the lies that befall the ears of draft board officials and the special privileges that fall to the rich and influential.

Case Three brings the matter into even greater focus. A loud -mouthed charmer with a gift of gab and a fancy for fractured poetry becomes world boxfight champion, then a minister who will take on all comers except the Viet Cong. He is, of course, Cassius Clay or Muhammed Ali.

Who is to say that his faith is not genuinely felt, that he would not fight in any war? Who can say that Clay is just being choosy about his opponents, that perhaps his evasive tactics are more ideological than theological? The burden upon the draft board is impossible for mere men. It would be better for God to have created the Draft and to make each decision about exemption.

Draft exemptions for ministers and conscientious objectors have good and valid reasons behind them. Nevertheless, it is a way out of fighting a war, and any mountebank with talent can take advantage of it. But draft exemption attempts have become exercises in fantasy. One can pretend to be gay or a dope addict or have flat feet and be excused. When bearded Marxists and part - time preachers are added to the legions of abusers, something is wrong. The doors need to be shut so that enough men can be around to defend the country. Indeed, it would even help if the object of the war was to win it.

When a man of Clay's notoriety fights the draft, the problem becomes one of example, of precedent. The federal government begins to fret over the possibility of its troops being trounced on the battlefield while even bigger battles rage in each of the thousands of draft boards.

Ministers may be entitled to draft exemptions, but if everybody is to become a minister or a conscientious objector, who is to fight the country's battles? That begs the question, perhaps, but look at the draft controversy — is it not raging? Aren't too many people fighting not to fight in Viet Nam? An exemption for Simon Peter entitles one to Judas, and each exemption breeds geometrically. The draft fuss has progressed from one which complains of inequities to the now popular idea of doing away with the whole mess. The all -volunteer army concept evokes glee in its proponents and causes nightmares for those whose responsibility is defense of the country. It is a whole new bag, just as controversial as the draft itself.

As of now, Cassius is just as entitled to an exemption as any other minister, all things being equal. But the government presses its case because it doesn't think he's an ordained minister. Does the system guarantee religious liberty to all except Black Muslims whose famous son can flatten anybody in the ring?

This is the question raised by Henry A Buchanan, a clergyman who raises many questions about ministerial draft exemptions in an article in LIBERTY magazine. His position is unique: ministerial exemptions are so much troublemaking balder - dash. Do away with them, he says.

He notes that the 4D exemption requires only for a man to be ordained, or licensed or approved as a ministerial student enrolled in either a religious or secular school. A candidate for the ministry can remain in college until past his 26th birthday, when he would be too old for the draft. "There's no law," Rev. Buchanan observes wryly, "against dropping the ministry in favor of industry." Exemptions apply, he says, to a minister even if he functions as one only sporadically.

About 102,000 Americans are currently exempt from the draft by virture of being ministers.

Rev. Buchanan recalls that during World War II, he was given a 4D classification ("I was told that 4D covers lunatics, criminals and preachers") while his friends, classmates and brothers were drafted.

"It was not fitting that a man of God should shed blood, and besides, as a minister I was performing a vital service to society ...

"Let's face it, I am no better than my brothers, no more essential than my friends, no more deserving of exemption than my classmates — or Muhammed Ali. But I was exempt — and I was not hard to convince."

He believes that the refusal of Cassius to enter into military service raises the whole question of ministerial exemption. He wants to know if ministers are more sensitive than others about killing or being killed, if the government really has a special responsibility to ministers, or if a minister deserves immunity from normal responsibilities of citizenship.

"I believe the answer is no. If military service is part of the duty of American citizenship, then a minister should not be exempt from military service."

He offers two solutions. The first is to allow conscientious objection on an individual basis regardless of ministerial connection. "After all, you don't have to be religious to believe it is wrong to shoot people."

Whether this would help, only Heaven knows. The claim of conscientious objection can be anyone's; draft boards would be playing the role of The Shadow, seeking to know what evil, or virtue, lurks or dwells in the mind of the objector.

Clergyman Buchanan says approximately 7,000 conscientious objectors are serving in the armed forces, many of them armed only with bandages and medicine. "It's no job for a coward," he says, adding: "Let Cassius throw in his lot with the C.O.'s, but let's not lose sight of the real issue just because the champ doesn't want to fight the Viet Cong."

Another solution is to draft ministers. "Why not draft them and assign them to pastoral duties with the troops?" As for the fact that chaplain quotas are filled with volunteers, he says there is always room for more men of God in the service. Does every frightened soldier obtain the needed counsel he ought to get? Can one man of the cross say enough services for the dying all around him?

It is agonizing irony that draft exemption, especially ministerial, should become controversial at this time. The Soviet Union and North Viet Nam have waged years of bloody battle against religion. If South Viet Nam should fall, religion would be as ruthlessly persecuted there as it has in other Communist countries. However one feels about the war in Viet Nam, the record is clear that the minister who is draft exempt has opted to leave the religious of South Viet Nam to the undender practices of communism's antireligious elite.

There may be little, physically, a minister can do in a theater of war, but his presence is a vote for the propagation of his faith while the battle around him is one for men's souls as well as their bodies. The Creator may be a jealous God, but he hasn't yet tortured a minister as the Rumanian Communists tortured Rev. Richard Wurmbrand.

As Rev. Buchanan puts it:

"A man may justifiably refuse to kill in the service of his country's political ends because his God said, Thou shalt not kill. But God has not commanded him to withhold all service, and even those who bear arms are deserving of his noncombatant support because they bear arms in his behalf as well as in their own."

Draft avoidance is not just a matter of personal religious belief. It is too often a Communist Pied Piper's parade, led by those who wish to Hell the U.S. didn't have any armed force at all.

The draft is under attack because those who run it haven't been honest with everyone. It was wide open to attack, and the furor over it is nothing more than a harvest of dishonesty.

A CHARTER FOR TYRANNY

The Constitution of the United States of America, the most perfect form of republican government ever devised, has been twisted by judicial interpretation and subject to manipulation by power - hungry office holders in recent decades. But open appeals for abolition of the Constitution are rarely voiced.

One such proposal was disclosed this fall when the CENTER MAGAZINE, of the radical Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, published) Rexford Guy Tugwell's proposed new Constitution for the "United Republics of America."

To the older generation of Americans, Mr. Tugwell is a voice from the New Deal past. It will surprise many people, no doubt, to learn that Mr. Tugwell, one of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's original "Brain Trusters," is alive and well in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Older Americans won't be surprised, however, that Mr. Tugwell wants to abolish the 50 states and substitute 20 "republics." Back in the 1930's, Mr. Tugwell did his best to steer America in the direction of a collectivist society. It is not startling, therefore, to find that he and the Center have devised a plan of government that will remind many citizens of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

The plan for junking the U.S. Constitution should not be regarded merely as the twilight years from of an old New Deal collectivist. The Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions plays an acitve role in the radicalization of contemporary America. Many of Mr. Tugwell's notions are likely to end up on the ideological conveyor belt of the New Left.

Mr. Tugwell's plan would create the conditions for tyranny. The States, guardians of local rights and of individual liberties, would be abolished. The substitute "republics" would be a fiction, for Mr. Tugwell says that these governments could be removed for ineptitude.

With the elimination of the States, the basis of the U.S. Senate also would be abolished. Mr. Tugwell would create a new Senate composed of former high public officials. These "senators" would be appointed. In short, they would be what the British in the 18th century called 'placemen," tools of the party in power. Thus the division of powers, which under the U.S. Constitution has prevented autocracy, would be shattered.

The President would serve one nine - year term. This long term would effectively remove the Chief Executive from the control of the people and the coordinate authority of the Congress.

Collectivist control of the economy would be built into the new Constitution. There would be a regulatory branch of government which would "supervise" the operations of private enterprise. This regulatory branch would have corporate enterprises join in multi - company groups to set standards. This is simply Benito Mussolini's "Corporate State," a prime feature of the fascist system in Italy in the 1920's and 1930's. Under this system, private enterprise became the tool of the central government.

This type of economic proposal is to be expected from Mr. Tugwell. He went on record years ago as saying that "unrestricted individual competition is the death, not the life of trade." The Tugwell plan would be the death of constructive capitalism in the United States. The new Constitution would clearly state that economic planning is the right and function of a central planning authority.

Under the Tugwell design, traditional rights and liberties would be undercut in many ways. For instance, the Tugwell constitution for the "United Republics of America" would not contain a provision for trial by jury. No provision would be made for the existing right to bear arms.

Mr. Tugwell says that his draft constitution is "as American as apple pie." Given the proposed destruction of the States and creation of an all-powerful central government, some citizens may conclude the plan is as Russian as caviar. The Tugwell constitution is bound to strike many Americans as a charter for tyranny never known on this side of the Atlantic.

Southeast Missouri State College Homecoming Will Have Many Alumni

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State College has not yet come up with an accurate way to figure how many graduates and former students come back into town for the college's annual Homecoming observance. Officials say it is in the thousands.

Whatever the number, it's a sure bet the crowd will be larger than usual this year as alumni, lured by the attraction of a "lady friend" from their college days, come back "home" the last weekend of this month.

Wives may get jealous, but their attitudes will not affect their husbands' determination to return to the campus to renew friendship with Miss Helen Bedford, head of the department of fine and applied arts and the college's "oldest" faculty member in terms of tenure.

Miss Bedford, who joined the faculty in 1925 and has never been away from the campus for very long since, is sort of the focal point of this year's Homecoming celebration Oct. 29-31.

Oh, there will be the usual pep rallies, concerts, dances, and the Homecoming queen crowning, all of which are mostly of interest to students. And there will be reunions for the Classes of 1920, 1945, and 1960, but the special reunion for Miss Bedford will likely draw more alumni to the campus than the three others put together.

For through the years Miss Bedford has not secluded herself in the art department. Instead she has branched out and been involved in campus activities ranging from being the advisor for 27 years of a literary club, which is now a social sorority, to working closely with the college's varsity athletes from 1931- 1952.

Miss Bedford will be in the spotlight beginning at 8 p.m. Oct. 30 when a reception in her honor opens in Kent Library. In conjunction with the reception will be an art exhibit featuring pictures, ceramics, pottery, jewelry -- in fact, any worthy creative works by Miss Bedford's former students. The exhibit will be hung in both Kent Library and the Art- Home Economics Building and will remain on display through Nov. 6.

The reception at Kent will continue until 11 p.m., but the big moment of the night will come at 9 when a portrait of her is unveiled. The portrait will be formally presented to the college at the annual alumni luncheon the next day.

The artist doing the portrait is Mrs. Irene Hazel of Caruthersville. Mrs. Hazel established the art department in Caruthersville schools and taught art there for 32 years. She also taught at various colleges in the area, including Southeast Missouri State, during various summers.

Mrs. Hazel has shown her work throughout the area and is frequently called upon as a judge for art shows.

Following the reception Miss Bedford will next be in the spotlight at the luncheon which begins at 11 a.m. on Oct. 31. Not only will her portrait be presented to the college at this time, but a book of letters from former student who have expressed appreciation for the "spark of inspiration Miss Bedford generated" will also be given to Miss Bedford.

Dr. H. O. Grauel, himself no stranger to the campus since he came here in 1928, is chairman of the book of letters committee. He said there is still time for former students to contribute letters, but added they must be in his hands by Oct. 30.

The letters, Dr. Grauel said, should be typed or written on standard 8½ by 11¼ inch margin on the left for binding.

After the luncheon Miss Bedford will proceed to Houck Stadium and will be escorted to a specially - decorated box seat by an "honor guard" of Varsity Club men from the 1931- 52 era. During the halftime of the football game and following the game, Miss Bedford will remain in her box to greet well- wishers.

Miss Hattie L. Eicholtz, director of alumni affairs at Southeast Missouri State, said contributions are being accepted to defray costs of the portrait which Mrs. Hazel is painting. Checks should be sent to her, she said, and made payable to the SEMO Alumni Association Bedford Fund.

If more money than needed is received, Miss Eicholtz said, Miss Bedford and the committee planning the special reunion in her honor will jointly decide how it is to be used.

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of schools at Sikeston, is chairman of the overall planning committee for the reunion. Miss Marea Daume, assistant professor of art, is in charge of arranging for the special art show.

Texas Eastern Net Income Rises for Quarter

HOUSTON, TEXAS,--Net income of Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation for the quarter ended September 30, 1970, was 61 cents per share, compared to 50 cents per share earned in the third quarter of 1969, B.D. Goodrich, president, reported today. Net income applicable to common stock for the quarter was $12,261,000, compared to $9,894,000 for the same period in 1969. Earnings improvements in petroleum activites and Western system natural gas operations were largely responsible for the gain, Mr. Goodrich said.

The Board of Directors, at its meeting October 16, increased the dividend on the common stock by 12 cents per share on an annual basis to an indicated rate of $1.52 per share, up from the $1.40 in effect since December 1, 1970, to holders of record on November 6, 1970.

During the quarter, Texas Eastern's exploration efforts produced hydrocarbon discoveries in two parts of the world. In the Texas offshore area, the Superior Group, in whch Texas Eastern has a 20 percent interest, announced that hydracarbons had been discovered approximatley 40 miles south of Freeport in the Gul of Mexico in Federal Block A-1. Additional drilling on this structure will be required to determine the potential of the discovery. In Norwegian waters of the North Sea, the Amoco-Noco Group of which Texas Eastern is a member, reported and oil discovery not far from the significant Ekofisk Field discovered by the Phillips Group. Fruther confirmation drilling will be required to determine the commercial quality of the find. Texas Eastern has interests ranging from 25 to 28 percent in 1.4 million acres licensed to the Amoco-Noco Group.

Transwestern Pipeline Company, the company's Western natural gas system subsidiary, filed a settlement agreement of its rate increase application with the Federal Power Commission of October 8. Commission approval is anticipated and figures released today reflect all appropriate adjustments. The higher rates had been put into effect on June 16, 1970.

Hearings on Texas Eastern's application to increase rates on its Eastern will begin collecting higher rates effective November 1, 1970. subject to refund of any portion not allowed in the final determination. The higher collections will be at the approximate rate of $56,000,000 annually, reduced from about $60,000,000 originally requested because of subsequent reductions in rates of pipeline suppliers and in income taxes.

Construction is underway on facilities needed to receive gas from Louisiana Land and Exploration Company in south Louisiana. The facilities, which are estimated to cost $23,152,000, will provide an initial delivery capacity of some 124 million cubic feet per day. The gas purchase contract provides for the delivery of 300 billion cubic feet of gas.

On September 30, Texas Eastern put into service its 600,000 -barrel liquefied natural gas storage tank and liquefaction facilities at Staten Island, New York. The storage tank is expected to be filled to capacity by the beginning of the winter heating season.

In early October, the company unveiled its master plan concept for the development of the 33-block area it has acquired in the central business district of Houston. Included in the overall development are plans for high-and low-rise office buildings, hotels, large and small retail stores, entertainment facilities, apartments and ample parking facilities. The first increment of development will cover nine blocks and is scheduled to begin next year.

McDonoughs Mark Fifth Year at First Assembly

First Assembly of God observes the fifth universary of its pastors, the Rev. and Mrs. Thurman McDonough this Sunday.

The McDonoughs came to Sikeston from the Tulsa, Okla. metropolitan area where they pastored the Sand Springs First Assembly.

Under their leadership the local congregation has retired its indebtedness on the church building and parsonage as well as making numerous improvements. Many people have been converted not only in special revival services but in the regular services of the church and through the efforts of the pastor in personal evangelism.

Rev. and Mrs. T. A. McDonough

The church maintains a vital music and youth ministry. Recently the Rev. and Mrs. Jim Heikes, from Corona, California were added to the full time staff as ministers in these particular fields. They also help in many other of the church's multiple ministries.

Special messages are planned by the pastor for the Sunday morning service and the Rev. Gayle Jackson for the Sunday evening service. Special music is planned by the music department for both morning and evening.

The new choir robes have arrived and will be used Sunday for the first time.

The church is located at 306 South Kingshighway. The time of service is: 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. and 5:30 and 7 p.m.

Also, special revival services will be conducted at the church with the "Musical Vanns" of Toledo, Ohio, at 7 each evening, except Mondays and Tuesdays, beginning Wednesday night, Oct. 28, through Nov. 8. A warm welcome awaits those who wish to attend any or all of these services.

First Methodist to Hear District Superintendent

Dr. E. W. Bartley, Jr., Superintendent of the Poplar Bluff- Sikeston District of the United Methodist Church, will be the speaker Sunday morning at the First United Methodist Church service of worship at 10:45 in the Rex Theater on Center Street.

He will preach on the subject, "A Plea for Positive Protestantism." The church's pastor, the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, cordially invites the public to this service.

Dr. Bartley is the son of the late Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Bartley who served the church here during the period of 1941-45. He is a graduate of Central Methodist College in Fayette in 1937, of Vanderbilt University in Nashville in 1940, and in 1967 Central College conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Dr. E. W. Bartley

During World War II he was a navy chaplain.

He has served with distinction several of the leading churches and has been on most of the major boards and commissions of the Methodist conferences in Missouri.

Gospel Singing Set at Jackson

JACKSON — A gospel singing program is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Calvary Baptist Church.

Singers will be the Gospel Merry Makers, the Meyers Family, the Gospel Tones, the Ambassadors and the featured Emmanuel Gospel Singers of Batesville, Ark.

The church is located on Blanche St. off Highway 61. The public is invited.

By DAVID POLING

OAKLAND, Cal. (NEA)

Whenever a nonprofit, charitable corporation makes money, the public is surprised and puzzled. The image of a nonprofit organization is usually one of deficit finance, cautious leadership and housing in a past-tense building. Eskaton, headquartered in Oakland, Calif., is the reverse.

This group of ministers and laymen (all brands and denominations) is on the top scale of salaries, plunges into multimillion-dollar housing projects and health-care units, leases airplanes for instant commuting and expects 30 per cent growth annually. Eskaton is eager to serve the needs of humanity and tired of waiting for the church, government or private enterprise to get on board.

Josh Wilson, chief executive officer of Eskaton, insists that the nonprofit tax shelter does not mean that his corporation should run in the red. He believes that nonprofit groups like Eskaton should expect high performance in hospital administration and housing projects—performance that makes a profit which will give the public more and better service. Instead of paying a dividend in cash to investors, the public should receive greater service. In the Eskaton hospitals that this writer visited, the public is enjoying a first-rate bonus in care and services.

Hospitals and health care agencies that are ailing seek advice or plead for an Eskaton management takeover. Church officials, community leaders, physicians and administrators from Florida, Texas, Missouri and Arizona are in touch with Eskaton.

Josh Wilson is besieged by clergymen who want to be part of his growing empire and see the larger ministry that he has established that is free from bureaucratic budgets and ecclesiastical committees. Businessmen are intrigued by his competent handling of million-dollar budgets and the professional staff that has been assembled to make this Christian service agency hum. Medical people have been impressed with the Eskaton operation of the American River Hospital in Sacramento, the Mt. Shasta Community Hospital and the County Hospital in Colusa, Calif. Government funding officials are eager to consider Eskaton applications since they deliver such a high level of service, maintain rigid internal audits and are free from narrow doctrinal ambitions.

Yet Eskaton is a Christian effort. Josh Wilson wants the Christian community to be saturated with risk for the sake of mankind. He is determined to see Eskaton as a functioning model of ecumenicity and is able to work with conservatives and liberals alike. Presently he is working on a book dealing with bureaucracy and religion. His first publishing effort was a private distribution of material for worship, aimed at the underground church and house study groups. It sold more than 5,000, entirely by word of mouth.

The explosion of energy and vision that has marked the appearance of Eskaton is due to the fierce dedication and loyalty of the Eskaton crowd. Wilson, like Billy Graham and Oral Roberts, is a powerful speaker and a commanding person. But for Wilson, evangelism is found in health, housing and education.

New Lutheran Leader Says Church to Endure

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The newly elected president of the American Lutheran Church, the Rev. Dr. Kent S. Knutson, says Christianity "is suffering a state of nerves but it's still basically strong."

It has "pangs of despair and sometimes is discouraged by its inability to handle the tremendous problems which we see all about us," he said, "but the Church is a very tenacious institution—a very viable and stable kind of community that will endure for a very long time."

Dr. Knutson, 46, was elected Thursday night to head the 2.5million-member denomination after an all-day series of ballots at the Church's biennial convention. He is president of Wartburg Theological Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa.

The voting started with 10 candidates, and the field gradually was cut down to two on the decisive fourth ballot, when Dr. Knutson won by a majority of 566 to 411 over the Rev. Dr. David W. Preus, 48, of Minneapolis.

To be installed Saturday, Dr. Knutson will take over the Church's top post at the end of the year, succeeding the Rev. Dr. Fredrik A. Schiotz, 69, who is retiring after a decade in the office.

A short, black-haired man in dark-rimmed glasses, Dr. Knutson and his ash blonde wife Norma have six children, three boys and three girls, ranging in age from 6 to 17. Two were adopted.

Born in Goldfield, Iowa, he was educated in this country and in Europe. He served a Staten Island parish for two years before joining the faculty of Lutheran Seminary in St. Paul, Minn., in 1958. He became president of Wartburg Seminary in 1969.

"Relations with youth are one of the really great tasks that the Church has to face," Dr. Knutson told newsmen after his election. "Youth represents trends that will establish the Church of the future."

Dr. Knutson said Christian thought is in a "state that might be called chaotic", but that scholarly inquiry doesn't affect basically "the way the Christian community understands its faith."

Revival to Open At Circle City

CIRCLE CITY — Revival services will begin Sunday in the Pentecostal Church and continued through Saturday, Nov. 7.

Old fashioned preaching at 7:30 p.m. nightly will feature messages on deliverance, healing and salvation for the soul by Evangelist Edward Kinder, former pastor of Morehouse.

Pastor Bob Crotts extends a cordial welcome to the services to all.

Guest Speaker To Fill Pulpit

NEW MADRID — Charles simpson of Sikeston will be guest speaker Sunday at 10:45 a.m. services at the First United Methodist Church in observance of Layman's Day

The pastor, the Rev. Earl G. Statler, will be in St. Louis to attend capping ceremonies at Barnes Hospital School of Nursing, in which his daughter, Debby Statler will participate. The Rev. Statler will preach at the LaSalle United Methodist Church in St. Louis in the morning.

Episcopal Convention Concludes

HOUSTON (AP) — Presiding Bishop John E. Hines says unification and solidification were the highlights of the 12-day 63rd triennial Episcopal Church convention that ended Thursday.

"It was one of unification on the part of some who were at odds with each other, ending not only in agreement but with understandings of position," he said.

Bishop Hines himself was under fire at the start of the convention, primarily from criticism resulting from the 1967 Seattle convention approving a $9 million program "for economic self-development of minorities and the poor."

A South Bend, Ind., meeting of the church's executive council was a bit stormy last year amid charges that part of the program's funds had gone to militant groups.

The Houston sessions reaffirmed the program but sought to overcome the criticism by establishing guidelines on violence and by splitting its $23.9 million budget into "commitment" and "faith" segments.

A $12.4 million commitment involves the absolute minimum the church believes it must spend. The $11.5 million "faith" segment for other programs is to be met only if the dioceses meet their national budget quotas.

Hines listed five significant actions by the convention:

1. Reaffirmation and better understanding of the self-help program.

2. Admission of women for the first time to the House of Delegates, which, with the House of Bisnops, is one unit of the bicameral legislative system that governs the 3.4 million-member church.

3. A resolution to study a proposed plan for unification of the Episcopal Church with several other denominations.

4. Approval of a three-year trial period for the first extensive departures from the 16th century Book of Common prayer. The convention approved a series of new worship services, including the admission of unconfirmed children to partake of communion. In a last-minute action, it approved a trial period for a mocernized service for the ordination of bishops, priests and deacons.

5. Recognition of the need to administer to youth in a form in which youth will have a determining voice.

Lay persons elected to the executive council included Robert P. Davidson of Lawrence, Kan., and George T. Guernse of St. Louis.

Vatican Seeks New Contacts With Reds

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has embarked on another drive to improve its relations with Communist governments from Eastern Europe to Peking.

Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary are the current targets in Europe and the Vatican observer at the United Nations has indicated that the Roman Catholic Church favors a U.N. seat for Red China.

Pope Paul VI has often stressed the need for dialogue between the Holy See and the Communist governments.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is visiting Italy Nov. 10-16, and a Vatican spokesman said he "most likely" will call on the Pope. The two men had a long talk when the Soviet minister made his first official visit to Italy in 1966.

The pontiff is expected to illustrate his policy toward Red China when he addresses a message to all Asia during his trip to the Philippines and Australia at the end of November.

The Vatican re-established long broken diplomatic ties with Communist Yugoslavia on Aug. 14. This appeared to act as a spur to the present diplomatic activity.

The Polish press hailed the Vatican-Yugoslav exchange of ambassadors as evidence that the Church and Red regimes can reach workable compromises.

The Vatican is a long way from exchanging ambassadors with other East European regimes. However, the current contacts indicate that the cold war relapse in Church-state relations induced by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia is wearing off.

MDEM Adds to Staff And Elects Officers

HAYTI — The appointment of Miss Judy Casassa and and Royce Chaney to the staff of the Missouri Delta Ecumenical Ministry (MDEM) was announced today by Michael Pannwitz, executive director.

Miss Casassa will work as a specialist on problems of the aging, with special emphasis on setting up nursing home districts in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties, Pannwitz said.

Chaney will be concerned with economic development and the churches' mission in the community throughout the three-county area.

Support for the two new staff members comes from the Catholic Church for Miss Casassa and from the Methodist Church for Chaney.

Formed in 1968, MDEM has been working with poor families in the Bootheel in an effort to help themselves get out of poverty. Programs have been developed in migrant education, agricultural cooperatives, economic development and more recently in self-help housing and nursing home districts.

MDEM's office is located in Hayti.

Miss Casassa hails from Buffalo, N.Y. and Chaney is from Cumberland, Md.

At its October board of directors meeting the MDEM elected Father Wally Ellinger, New Madrid, President; Jack Stapleton Jr., Kennett, vice president; Richard F. Spitzer Jr. Parma, Treasurer; Mrs. Helen Boswell, Steele, secretary and chose the Rev. Robert W. Core, Kennett, and William L. Jones, Hayti, to serve on the executive committee.

Support for MDEM comes from the Episcopalean, Presbyterian, Methodist and Catholic churches as well as from the Danforth Foundation.

In addition to the officers mentioned above, the following persons serve as directors on MDEM's board: Alex Cooper, Hayti, Bill Cooper, Kennett, James George, Caruthersville, the Rev. Paul Harlan, Kennett, Mrs. Irmgard Jones, Hayti, Mrs. Sara Jo Littrell, Wardell, the Rev. Tom Prentice, Malden, Mrs. Robbie Townes, Hayti, Bill Welman, Kennett, and Mrs. Vivian Whitener, Hayti.

Murphy Family To Sing Sunday At Eastside

The Murphy Family, gospel singing family of Poplar Bluff, will be guest singers Sunday at Eastside Church of the Nazarene in Sikeston.

Roger, age, 11, sings tenor for the group. Steve, a freshman in college, sings bass. Judy and Vicky, also teens, make up the rest of the singing group. Mr. & Mrs. Howard Murphy, parents of the singers, also travel with them, with Mr. Murphy playing the piano and assisting in some of the singing.

The Rally Day services will begin with the Sunday School at 9:30; morning worship with the Murphy Family singers begins at 10:30 a.m., and a basket dinner will be shared following the morning worship hour. Cold drinks, coffee and table service will be provided. Everyone is welcome to attend both the singing and the dinner.

The Eastside Church of the Nazarene is located at the corner of Ralph Avenue and Betty Street and is pastored by the Rev. Elton W. House.

First Assembly Youth Group Holds Banquet

The Christ's Ambassadors Youth Group of the First Assembly of God Church held its first annual Speed The Light Banquet Saturday evening, Oct. 17 at the Ramada Inn.

Speed the Light is the Missions Program of the Assemblies of God Young People.

"Eternal Crowns" was the theme for the banquet.

Miss Diane Hull, president of the Christ Ambassadors, was the mistress of ceremonies and Master of ceremonies was Rev. J. R. Heikes, director of youth and music.

Special music was presented by Miss Alice Mills. Miss Mills is an evangelist with the Assemblies of God and is presently holding a revival at Bethel Assembly of God in Cape Girardeau.

The special speaker was Rev. J. S. Watson. Rev. Watson is the pastor of Bethel Assembly of God in Cape Girardeau. He spoke of the past accomplishments of the Christ Ambassadors group to the Speed the Light Program and challenged the group to set even higher goals for the future.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the Speed the Light King and Queen, and Prince and Princess. Three candidates were chosen to run for each title. Each penny given counted as one vote. Each candidate worked for votes for one month prior to the banquet. Over $450 was raised for Missions in this contest.

Marsha Newman was crowned Queen, Lanny Laub, King, Marilyn Hull, Princess, and Allen Hornback, Prince.

Decorations were carried out in Christ Ambassador colors of blue and gold. Flower arrangements of gold were placed in the centers of the tables. Mrs. Joan Bixler and Mrs. Brenda Ballard were in charge of decorations.

Officers of the Christ Ambassador are: Diane Hull, president; Patti Bollinger, vice president; Debbie Bollinger, secretary, and Joan Bixler, Speed the Light Chairman.

Witnesses in Week Of Special Meetings

"Visiting The World Headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses" is the title of a color slide program to be presented Sunday at the local Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The presentation will signal the climax of a week of special meetings for area Witnesses and will be given by a representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, Tola B. Cook.

The congregation's public Bible speaking class and ministry development class was conducted Tuesday.

The one-hour discussion of the Bible aid, "Then Is Finished the Mystery of God," ordinarily held Tuesday evening, was discussed Thursday night as 8 o'clock, according to witness minister, Russell Knauer.

"A special meeting has been planned for 8 p.m.Saturday, called 'New Things Learned.' For an hour we will review new information we've learned from the Bible in the last six months," Knauer stated.

"And finally," he said, "we will have "World Headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses', via slides, at 9:30 Sunday morning."

During his visit, Cook, who supervises the activity of 16 nearby Witness congregations, will be training local Witnesses in their house-to-house ministry, the minister said.

"We will be calling in the city and on homes in the rurals, inviting people to our special meetings. But in addition, Mr. Cook is going to be training us to be more proficient in using the Bible to answer Scriptural questions," Knauer said.

"We also are going to be offering to study the Bible with interested persons in their homes," he added.

WAITING FOR THE GOOD NEWS

Often a newly saved person will say, "I've been wanting to do this for some time. I'm so glad you came." These words do more than express joy and gratitude. They remind us that the timely reception of gospel challenge is too often delayed or denied altogether by the doubts, fears, and unbelief of Christians.

How come this person had to wait to satisfy his spiritual hunger? Was it because some believers had decided to 'live' their faith rather than talk about it? Neither sharing the salvation message nor living the Christian faith are offered as options. Both are imperatives in God's evangelism! When we "walk" the faith but do not "talk" the gospel, the communication from God to lost souls weakens, and conviction is generally slowed down. Blurred, confused signals result when the progress is reversed.

Accordingly, we can expect both clarity and strength in the transmission when both conditions are favorable. A loud, clear message produces a definite effect, and the effect is intensified as the warning is repeated. When God gets through like this and when Christians are standing by to help sinners make their responses to God, the combination of human need and divine remedy will put a quick end to man's lostness.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

We have just been informed by the publishers that Mrs Helen Reuber and Mrs. Nellie Wilson, of our faculty, will appear in the 1970 edition of OUTSTANDING EDUCATORS OF AMERICA. Mrs. Reuber is a counselor at Senior High and Mrs. Wilson teaches at Middle School.

The OUTSTANDING EDUCATORS OF AMERICA is an annual program designed to recognize and honor teachers who have distinguished themselves by service, achievement and leadership in education. About 5,000 of the country's foremost educators are featured each year.

These teachers were nominated by faculty associates.

We like to have vistors in the schools, especially parents of children who are enrolled. They are welcome at any time but we would appreciate it if arrangements to see individual teachers would be made through the principal of the school involved. Sometimes parents go directly to the classroom which may at times interfere with class procedure or the teacher's program of instruction. We are sure that parents do not realize that they may be interferring with their child's education in this manner but it sometimes happens. So, a phone call to the principal, prior to the visit, will give the teacher time to plan assignments or to make arrangements whereby the visitor can be received.

Many schools in Missouri have had difficulty in passing even minimum levies to support their educational program for the current year. Onlyafter seven years or eight repeated elections, have some levies been passed and these are expensive. It is estimated that in St. Louis County alone, schools spent over $100,000 in resubmitting elections. If the schools were to operate, they had to be resubmitted until passed. Some schools have not yet voted in their levies and if they do not succeed on the next try, they will be forced to close the schools for the year. The reasons why most of these levies failed to pass is simply the unrealistic two thirds majority requirement in the state constitution. What this means is that two voters who want schools for their children must overcome one voter who does not care whether the schools operate or not. In these times of increasing of resistance to taxes, it is almost impossible to get a 2/3 majority for a school tax levy and especially as this is about the only tax where the voters can express their will. Unfortunately, resentment at federal, state- in fact all taxes over which they have no voice or control, is vented on the schools by a "NO" vote.

Missouri's citizens can change this unfair situation, if they desire, when they go to the polls on November 3. Amendment No. 3 would permit boards of education to levy up to $1.85 on the $100 of assessed valuation, as opposed to the present $1.25 limit and then would allow the voters of the district to approve, if they so desired, an additional levy of $3.70 per $100 of assessed valuation by majority vote. This would make it possible for school districts to levy up to $5.55 by simple majority if those citizens who want to educate their children wish to do so.

It would take nothing away from the voter as a majority approval would still be required and additional protection to the taxpayer is provided in that levies above that $1.85 would have to be approved each year by majority vote.

Missouri is one of only six states in the nation that require more than a majority vote to raise money to operate its schools.

Not only would the approval of Constitutional Amendment No. 3 put the state in line with the democratic process of a majority vote, but could also result in saving taxpayers the added costs of repeated elections, so many times necessary to operate the schools at all. If we believe in education, and most do, we think, we can demonstrate that belief by supporting Amendment No. 3 on November 3. Better still, urge your relatives, friends and neighbors to vote for this essential school bill.

Tennyson wrote his "The Charge of the Light Brigade" in late 1854. The charge took place during the Crimean War at Balaklava in the Russian Crimea on Oct. 25, 1854.

School System Needs Funds To Maintain Proper Level

EDITORS NOTE: This is a Missouri State Teachers Association report of a study on the effect of the existing financial condition on the educational program in the public schools of Missouri.

The educational program in Missouri's public schools is being curtailed in many school districts as a result of the existing financial condition - this at a time when the demands on education are increasing by leaps and bounds. This report is based on information secured by the Missouri State Teachers Association after the opening of school this fall from 368 Missouri school districts which include more than 90 percent of Missouri's public school pupils.

The present financial condition of Missouri's schools has resulted from the failure of the state to meet its commitment to increase state school funds $35 million for the 1970- 71 school year, as scheduled in the 1969 revised school foundation program law. The defeat of Proposition 1, the state individual and corporation income tax revision, at the April 7 referendum election left the state short of funds and school districts are expected to receive only $234 million this year rather than $269 million as provided by law. Many districts have proposed higher local levies to replace state funds which had been anticipated. While voter approval has been given to higher levies in many districts, difficulty has been experienced in other districts, especially where the two- thirds vote is required. Numerous elections have been held and some districts have elections scheduled in October. The increase in the cost of living of approximately 6 percent a year had depreciated school revenues by that amount.

The information received on the 12- page survey returned from 368 school districts reveals numerous retrenchments in educational programs, deferring of planned educational improvements and a depletion of operating balances foretelling greater reductions next year unless state funds are increased.

Information on the courses offered indicates that many school districts have reduced the breadth of their educational programs. Many planned additions to existing programs have been postponed. Illustrative of curtailments, 86 reductions were reported in courses in business and 47 business courses were eliminated. Thirty- six offerings in foreign languages were reduced and 26 foreign language courses were eliminated.

In the area of programs for handicapped pupils, the number of districts reducing specific programs were as follows: emotionally disturbed, 5; hard of hearing, 3; children with learning disabilities, 10; mentally retarded, 19; orthopedically handicapped, 1; partially sighted, 1; and speech corrections, 11. Twenty- three school districts have postponed planned programs for speech correction and 32 have delayed additional courses planned for the mentally retarded.

In the category of special educational programs and services, the effect of the present financial condition was shown with the reduction or elimination of existing programs and the postponement of planned programs. For example, guidance programs were reduced in 46 school districts, eliminated in 10 school districts, and planned programs postponed in 92 school districts. Library services were reduced in 70 school districts, eliminated in 4 school districts, and planned programs postponed in 82 school districts. Existing summer school programs were reduced in 16 school districts, eliminated in 10 school districts, and planned summer programs postponed in 35 school districts. This all in spite of the fact that state aid for summer schools is available for the first time. Adult education programs were reduced in 17 school districts and existing adult education programs eliminated in 3 school districts. Remedial reading programs were reduced in 26 school districts and eliminated in 17 school districts. Forty- five school districts have postponed planned remedial reading programs. Elementary school vocal music programs were reduced in 48 school districts and eliminated in 5 school districts while elementary school instrumental music programs were reduced in 31 school districts and eliminated in 2 school districts.

With respect to service programs for pupils, the greatest reductions were made in health services, transportation and food service. Forty school districts have reported the reduction of student health services while their elimination was reported in four school districts. Fifty- five school districts have reduced food service programs and one has eliminated food service. Forty- one school districts have reduced transportation programs.

The average class- size has increased in 136 school districts, or 37 percent of districts reporting, as a result of the existing financial condition. This reflects the reduction in the number or professional personnel employed- both classroom teachers and those with specialized assignment. Sixty- nine districts (19 percent) report reduction or elimination of classroom teaching positions. One hundred and ten school districts (30 percent) reported that they had postponed the employment of classroom teachers to reduce class size. Specialized personnel that were reported reduced in numbers were guidance counselors, remedial reading teachers, school nurses and school librarians.

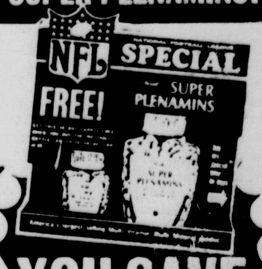

School districts also reported a reduction in other personnel employed. Reduction in teacher aides was reported in 29 school districts and their elimination was reported in 18 school districts. Secretarial and clerical assistants were reduced in 38 school districts. Custodial personnel were reduced in 29 school districts. Lunch room supervisors were reduced in 14 school districts and playground supervisors were reduced in 13 school districts.

Nowhere is the existing financial condition of schools more evident than in teachers' salaries. With the cost of living advancing 6 percent per year, an increase of less than that percent is in fact a reduction in salary. Only 22 school districts (29 percent) reported an increase of 6 percent or more in teachers' salaries. Other districts reported as follows: 201 (56 percent), small increases in teahcers' salaries; 28 districts, planned increases postponed; 25 districts, no increase in teachers' salaries; and 2 districts, a decrease in teachers' salaries. One hundred school districts reported that 896 teachers had left positions in their schools due to the existing financial condition.

SCHOOL SYSTEM:

Fringe benefits for school employees, such as insurance programs and sick leave plans, have been reduced in a few districts while many districts have postponed the adoption of insurance programs for school employees.

Reduction in the purchase of instructional supplies and equipment reflect the existing financial condition of school districts. Reduced purchase of textbooks was reported by 119 school districts, of library and reference books by 176 school districts, of audio- visual materials by 176 school districts, of instructional materials by 197 school districts and of instructional equipment by 177 school districts. Thirty- seven school districts reported that they had eliminated purchase of one of the above categories.

The maintenance and improvement of the physical plant also are being affected by existing financial condition. Maintenance and repairs have been reduced in 152 school districts and eliminated in 5 school districts. The purchase of furniture has been reduced in 146 school districts and eliminated in 46 school districts. The purchase of equipment for buildings and playgrounds has been reduced in 143 school districts and eliminated in 37 school districts. The remodeling and renovating of existing school buildings have been reduced in 91 school districts, eliminated in 33 school districts and planned improvements postponed in 63 school districts.

The purchase of school buses has been reduced in 35 school districts, eliminated in 16 school districts and planned purchases postponed in 45 school districts. Improvements involving fire protection, safety and health, have been reduced in 30 school districts, eliminated in 7 school districts and planned improvements postponed in 31 school districts.

Another reflection of the existing financial condition of school districts is the adoption or increase of student fees. For example, 24 school districts have adopted instructional materials fees while in 23 school districts existing instructional materials fees have been increased. Vocational class fees have been adopted in 15 school districts and increased in 21 districts. Other student fees that have been adopted or increased are for textbook rental, driver education, typing, art and locker.

Programs in the nature of community service which involve the use of school facilities have been reduced or eliminated due to existing financial condition of schools. In 45 school districts this related to the free public use of school buildings. In 21 school districts curtailments related to youth groups such as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

One of the most serious features of the existing financial condition of school districts is the extent to which school district have been forced to deplete operating balances to maintain existing programs when confronted by increasing costs, and static state and local revenue. One hundred and eight-six school districts, or more than 50 per cent of those reporting, have budgeted for current operations this year a greater amount than anticipated receipts for the year. Operating deficits are scattered over the state and range from small amounts to $3,900,000 in the Kansas City school district and $5,500,000 in St. Louis. Some other anticipated operating deficits are as follows: Parkway, $800,000; Springfield, $413,915; Waynesville, $120,000; Lindbergh, $350,000; St. Joseph, $300,000; Poplar Bluff, $153,640; Fort Osage, $350,000; Kirksville, $84,483; Joplin, $150,000; Cape Girrdeau, $274,353; and Independence, $344,886. The operating deficits reported by the 186 school districts total approximately $21 million.

In summary, Everett Keith, Executive Secretary, Missouri State Teachers Association, makes the following statement:

"To decrease the effectiveness of the public school program for the children and youth of Missouri at a time like this is unthinkable. It has long-range damaging effect for the future of our state and the citiens who live in it.

"In fact, if greatly increased state support is not made available for next school year, it is obvious from the utilization of balances this year that we have not experienced anything in the impairment of educational programs this year compared to what it will be next school year. The $21 million deficit in the 368 districts in spite of increased levies and reduced programs should be a warning signal easily understood. The situation is truly critical, demanding the attention of all citizens of the state."

1-In Memoriam

In loving memory of Frances, "Sis" Sherwood who passed away 1 year ago today. She ahd a nature you could not help lovin, and a heart that was purer than gold, and to those who knew her and loved her, her memory will never grow cold. Our days and nights are oh! so long, but heaven is richer by far we know. Just to know thats where you are:
Sadly missed by The U.J. Robinson, Martha Roderick andGenry Piercy families of Chico, Calif.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?
The executive editor of a well - known New York publishing firm will be in your area in early Dec. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religious books, etc.
If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. You will promptly receive a confirmation for a definite time and place.
Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

That's The Law

Undies Not Meant For Exposure

By Jack Straus, LL.B.

As Suzy was stepping off an airplane, a rascally gust of wind caught her by surprise and lifted her skirt high above her waist. And, while Suzy standing in her polka-dot panties might have been glanced over except for a few appreciative whistles, a magazine photographer caught the incident in his shutters as he was taking some shots of the plane. Thus, the scene was preserved for posterity as well as the austerity of the conservative readers of the magazine. The picture was printed and Suzy sued the publisher for damages.

"A girl's panties are a private matter," she told the judge, "particularly when she's in them."

"We didn't take her picture purposely," responded the publisher "She happened to be part of a group in a public scene. As a magazine that prints news worthy articles of public interest," concluded the publisher, "we had every right to release that picture. It showed a real life scene at an airport."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the magazine pay for printing the over-exposed picture?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that it would be illogical, wrong and unjust to hold that one who is involuntarily and instantaneously enmeshed in an embarrassing situation forfeits her right of privacy merely because she happens at the moment to be part of a public scene. What's more, concluded the judge, there was nothing of legitimate news value in the picture.

Based upon a 1964 Alabama Supreme Court Decision.

HST State Of Emergency Still in Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — On Dec. 16, 1950, after Red China intervened in the Korean War, President Harry S. Truman declared a state of emergency, which gave him some awesome powers. That proclamation still is in effect and available for use.

There are 134 special provisions, covering every phase of American life—even to the point of suspending the 40-hour week for munitions plant workers.

The emergency powers, all granted by Congress in various statutes, compare with those now in effect in Canada.

One paragraph reads, without elaboration:

"During a war or declared national emergency, the President may detail members of the armed forces to give military assistance to countries requesting it when he considers it in th interest of national defense."

There are other extraordinary powers in the law that are not brought into effect by the declaration of an emergency, but by a state of war or a state of hostilities.

Judge Makes Position Clear On Disruptions

ST. LOUIS (AP)—U.S. Dist. Court Judge James H. Meredith warned Monday he would not tolerate disruption of court proceedings as he opened the trial of a Washington University student charged with violating the Federal Antiriot Act.

On trial is Howard Mechanic, 22. He is accused of interfering with police and firemen during a May 5 protest demonstration in which the Washington University Air Force ROTC building was burned.

About 50 young persons were in the courtroom Monday and Judge Meredith took note of their presence.

"I'm glad to have you here," he said. Then he proceeded to read aloud the federal statute covering interference with federal court proceedings "just so we understand each other."

Meredith pointed out that the penalty for violation of the federal law is a maximum one year in jail and a $5,000 fine.

Mechanic and seven other persons were convicted of contempt of a St. Louis County Circuit Court injunction barring disruptive activities at Washington University. He was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500. The sentence is being reviewed by the St. Louis Court of Appeals. A ruling is expected next month.

TOUR FILMED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — MGM will film a portion of Elvis Presley's first concert tour in over 13 years for the full-length motion picture titled "Elvis." Academy Award winning director, Denis Sanders, is photographing the tour which began Sept. 9. Stops of Presley's tour include Detroit, St. Louis, Miami, Tampa and Mobile.

Rocky Vibrant On Vote Trail

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)

At 61, bidding for his fourth term, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller may be just about the best campaigner in the United States.

He has been running either for governor or president virtually every two years since 1958, but he's still energetic, zestful, unflappable when the booing is rough, capable of turning a dry text almost into a comic strip.

If he beats his unmagnetic but still potent Democratic adversary, Arthur Goldberg, the reasons will be many. None will be more important than the fact that Rocky hasn't lost the ability to draw a crowd on a street walk (even in Democratic Brooklyn) or charge a room with electricity as I saw him do this summer at the governors' conference.

At a Staten Island party fund-raiser, the governor was praising State Sen. John Marchi, the man who tried in 1969 to beat Mayor John Lindsay, as "philosophical, perceptive, aware." People in the audience smiled as if to ask, "What's that got to do with you, Rocky?" He responded:

"No, it's true. I like that stuff. There are too many of us who are down there—I won't say in the mud, but in the grass."

Mindful of his critics' harping on the difficulties of the now state-owned Long Island Railroad, the governor chopped right back:

"If we hadn't bought that line six years ago, it would be out of existence and most of those guys would be walking. Or they'd be driving their cars on 26-lane highways and, if they came into Manhattan, John Lindsay would be towing them all away, anyway."

Nobody knows better than Rockefeller that this is a tough race, what with Goldberg's inevitably strong grasp on New York's big Jewish vote and the pull on the blacks exerted by black State Sen. Basil Paterson, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor.

Yet the governor still has some things going for him in the city, where in the past he ran steadily better even as his upstate margin dropped off. He has more labor endorsements than ever and should grab a lot of Italian, Irish and other conservative ethnic votes. He may do very well with the Puerto Ricans, who resent the Paterson nomination as neglectful of them.

Few have noticed, too, that registration in the city is off by perhaps 250,000, which probably will hurt Goldberg more than Rocky.

It hardly needs to be said that, as usual, Rockefeller's campaign is lavishly financed, superbly staffed, expertly geared to television. Put all that together with his incredible good luck and his still-winking electricity and you've given the formidable Goldberg a huge worry.

A HEADY HOME RUN

DOUBLE BREAK

DENVER (AP) — Bad breaks came in pairs for 12-year-old Andy Sengenberger. While playing tag on a school playground he fell and broke his right arm.

Exactly one week later Andy slipped while running on wet grass and fractured the left elbow.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. (Hebrews 4:12)

PRAYER: Thank You, Lord, for Your Word. We are glad You gave it to us to show us the way to You. And help us to be directed by it in our daily lives. Amen.----------

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 1970. There are 69 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, American troops saw their first action on the Western Front in World War I.

On this date:

In 1776, during the Revolutionary War, Gen. George Washington's troops withdrew from Manhattan Island.

In 1910, at Fort Wayne, Ind., Blanche Scott became the first woman to make a solo public airplane flight.

In 1915, 25,000 women marched in New York, demanding the right to vote in all 48 states.

In 1929, stock prices started dropping in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1942, the World War II battle of Egypt began as the British 8th Army launched a big offensive against Axis forces at El Alamein.

In 1947, a forest fire destroyed much of the resort town of Bar Harbor, Maine.

Ten years ago — The leader of rebels in Algeria said he had no hope for a negotiated settlement with France.

Five years ago — President Lyndon B. Johnson flew to his Texas ranch to recuperate from a gall bladder operation.

One year ago — Peace was restored in Chile after a rebellion by soldiers.

Liquor in aluminum foil packets instead of bottles is being tested by some airlines.

Dexter City Council OKs Tennis Courts

DEXTER — Action was stated Monday night for tennis courts for Dexter, after years of discussion by the city government.

The action came at the regular Monday night session of the Dexter City Council.

The Council agreed to forward $2,500 in the Dexter Park Board, which hopes to begin construction of the courts yet this fall.

The plans, explained by Park Board president W. F. Webb, call for two lighted, concrete courts, which will be in the East City Park. Webb explained to the Council that the price estimate for one court is $3,218, with the total cost probably approaching $6,500.

Webb explained that the Park Board has been saving money for the project for some four years, and in addition, a few civic groups have donated money to the court fund. The Park Board president asked the Council to advance $2,500 to the Park Board, which will be repaid as the Board has extra money. No time limit was placed on the repayment.

The courts will be a few feet short of championship size, and Ward Two Alderman Lehman Godwin pointed out to Webb that he will contact Dexter tennis players and see if they would like to contribute to place the added width on the court to make it full championship size.

Mayor Willis Conner strongly supported the tennis court plan and urged the Council to OK the $2,500 advance, which they did unanimously.

Park Board president Webb also read a thank you letter from the Fram Corporation, thanking the Park Board for cleaning up the City Park prior to the annual Fram employee picnic held recently.

In other action before the Council, Mayor Conner, at the request of City Attorney Paul McGhee appointed Aldermen Godwin, Lawrence Reaves and Richard Miller to a special zoning committee. McGhee, according to the Mayor, felt the zoning report submitted by the City Planning Commission was too lengthy and complicated. Conner reported that McGhee had suggested that the appointed committee meet with a regional zoning specialist from the Bootheel Economic Council soon to determine if a more suitable zoning plan can be formulated.

The zoning report from the City Planning Commission was submitted with the Comprehensive City Plan earlier this year. Chairman of that zoning committee was Yewell Camp, with Barney Miller, Percy Clippard, Alvin Smyth, Terry Howes, Gary Dowdy and Lee Trammell, Sr., serving on the committee.

Other business before the Council Monday night included:

An ordinance was passed to pave some additional streets in the Lee Addition.

Molly Campbell, present owner of the Flamingo Bar, appeared before the Council to ask permission to move her place of business to 26 N. Walnut. She is moving from the present site as soon as possible. The Campbell Woman had recently purchased the Flamingo from John Gray, and a letter she showed to the Council members explained the reasons for her moving. The building she is moving to is owned by D. I. Webb, according to the license information. The new name for the business will be the Paper Doll Lounge. The move was OK'd by the Council.

Mayor Conner read two letters to the Council that he had received earlier in the year. One was from the Missouri's health department, explaining that the city's water supply had not met some of the basic requirements in a recent test. The other letter pointed out that the city's water plant was in poor shape and probably should be renovated. Conner noted that this just "points up the great need we have for water system improvements in Dexter."

Police Judge Bill Nelson presented material on auto radar units to Alderman James Williams, head of the Police Committee. The Committee will study the material and report their findings at the next Council meeting.

Mayor Conner reported to Ward Two Alderman Miller and Godwin that a red stop light is being installed at the intersection of Grant Street and One Mile Road this week. The Aldermen had discussed traffic hazards at that intersection last meeting.

Aldermen Eldon Cooper was asked by Mayor Conner to look into the possibilities of purchasing a new police car. Cooper reported that now, because of the auto strikes, it is not a good time to purchase a car, but he will report his findings at the next meeting.

As the final action of the meeting, City Attorney McGhee read a proposed resolution and letter to the Council, from Buchmueller, Whitworth and Foust, an engineering firm, concerning a proposed Flood Plain Hazard Study, to be made here by the Army Corps of Enginers. The lenghty proposed resolution was read to the Council by McGhee. It was decided that since the proposed study was free, the city would OK the plan. The work, or the Flood Plain Hazard Study, may begin soon.

Boy Killed in Unusual Railroad Crossing Accident

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) -- Nine - year - old Andre Moore was killed in an unusual railroad crossing accident near his home in Springfield Wednesday.

Coroner Ralph Thieme said the boy saw a freight train coming and ran to beat it to the crossing.

The boy crossed the tracks in time but ran into an automobile that was skidding to a stop. The car knocked the boy backward onto the tracks and the train ran over him.

The coroner said there would be no inquest.

Diptheria Siege Worst Since 1935

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) -- The diphtheria epidemic has become the worst in San Antonio since 1935.

A boy, 10, was confirmed Monday as the 127th case of the year and 18th this month.

The city also recorded 127 cases in 1935 with 23 deaths. Two children have died in the current outbreak, worst in the nation since 1956 when 141 cases were counted in Detroit.

The worst epidemic on record here came in 1914, when 344 persons contracted the throat infection, which can damage the heart and nervous system.

A Tribute to Sikeston

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is an editorial that appeared in tribute to Sikeston this week in the Enterprise-Courier newspaper at Charleston. The editorial was entitled "Let Sikeston do it."

Most of us were delighted last month when the CHS football team defeated Sikeston. Charlestonians would rather beat Sikeston at the game of football than win any other contest of the year.

But in "real- life matters," matters that really count, Sikeston seems to be taking home all the marbles, and we in Charleston are sitting back and letting them do it.

Take an airport, for example.

Many of our citizens express the belief that Charleston and Mississippi County should not try to build a good small airport facility because "people with planes can land at Sikeston and drive over here." These Charleston people cannot tell us why the "people with airplanes" should not locate their industries in Sikeston, which makes it convenient for them to commute from home office to branch plant.

"Let Sikeston do it" means Sikeston will take the cream of industries to whom airport facilities are important.

Take a hospital, for example.

A report which will be issued soon by a Missouri University study team recommends that Charleston and Mississippi County should not try to acquire hospital facilities because all our needs are being taken care of by Sikeston's hospital.

"Let Sikeston do it for you" is again the cry!

Take retail shopping, for example.

With the opening of its new shopping mall, Sikeston is making a determined bid to take the cream of the retail trade in Southeast Missouri, leaving the 'skim milk" for Charleston, East Prairie, Dexter, New Madrid, and other smaller communities.

We went to see the mall the other night, and it would have been possible to take a census of Charleston just inside the door of J. C. Penney's. A mall provides an attractive, comfortable, convenient (in terms of parking facilities and shopping hours) and well-stocked place for people to do their purchasing.

Are we going to "let Sikeston do it" in this field?

What are Charleston merchants going to do to answer this challenge from Sikeston?

We can conduct business as usual, which is another way of saying "Let Sikeston win", or we can band together to try to combat this latest competition.

Charleston needs a strong retail merchants committee, one that meets regularly to discuss ways of improving our city's shopping image. Most of those who attend the merchants committee meetings of the Chamber of Commerce have been attending for years, and getting very little cooperation from others who are in business in Charleston.

A strong merchants' committee would be a real asset to the community. It would provide a place where all businessmen could trade ideas on how to combat the menace from Sikeston.

You can bet that the merchants located in the two large shopping centers at Sikeston meet at least once a month to discuss problems of mutual interest.

Surely the merchants and businessmen of Charleston could also meet at least once a month for a "think - and- action" session, as opposed to an occasional meeting to plan a specific promotion.

Charleston has the most serious competition it has ever faced-- from Siekston.

Are we going to "let Sikeston do it?" - to us?

Or are we going to try to win this economic battle?

Charleston's football team won its game last month.

Differences Cited Between Firebrats And Silverfish

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Just for the record: The Agriculture Department says there are differences between silverfish and firebrats but that sometimes it's difficult to tell them apart.

To help housewives understand the difference, the department has issued a new leaflet showing pictures of silverfish and firebrats

Oh yes, silverfish and firebrats are insects which have an appetite for a host of items, from cereal to wallpaper and certain fabrics.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Soviet-U.S. Naval clash in Mediterranean held possible Arab, Israeli planes could be mistaken for Soviet, U.S.; Nixon administration carving new tax loopholes for rich.

Soviets Invited To Share Road

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— President Nixon, with the United Nations as his forum, invited leaders of the Soviet Union today to join the United States in traveling a "new road" of peaceful competition aimed at averting a nuclear nolocaust.

In an address for the 25th anniversary session of the U.N. General Assembly, Nixon said the strength of the two superpowers "imposes on them special responsibilities of restraint and vision."

Declaring he saw "no point in responding in kind to traditional cold war rhetoric," Nixon said he wanted to discuss AmericanSoviet relations in terms "not of impossible dreams, but of possible deeds."

For one thing, Nixon said that particularly in the Middle East, "it is imperative that the two major powers conduct themselves so as to strengthen the forces of peace rather than to strengthen the forces of war."

Nixon called anew for continuation of the Middle East cease-fire and resumption of Arab-Israeli negotiations.

He had very little to say about the Vietnam war, stating simply, "in Southeast Asia let us agree to a cease-fire and negotiate a peace."

In a key passage, Nixon said:

"I invite the leaders of the Soviet Union to join us in taking that new road—to join in a peaceful competition, not in the accumulation of arms but in the dissemination of progress; not in the building of missiles but in waging a winning war against hunger and disease and human misery in our own countries and around the globe.

"Let us compete in elevating the human spirit, in fostering respect for law among nations and in promoting the works of peace. In this kind of competition, no one loses and everyone benefits."

Nixon said everyone must recognize that the United States and the Soviet Union "have very profound and fundamental differences" that cannot be eliminated simply by improving personal relationships between the heads of the two governments.

However, he cited "four great factors that provide a basis for a common interest in working together to contain and reduce those differences":

—"We have a powerful common interest in avoiding a nuclear confrontation."

—Each country, he said, should welcome an opportunity to reduce its arms burden and to use its resources "for building rather than destroying."

—"It would clearly be in the economic self-interest of each of us if world conditions would permit us to increase ... trade and contact."

—"The pressing economic and social needs around the world can give our competition a creative direction."

Nixon's opening-session address to the General Assembly came a day after he held an unusually lengthy conference with Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister.

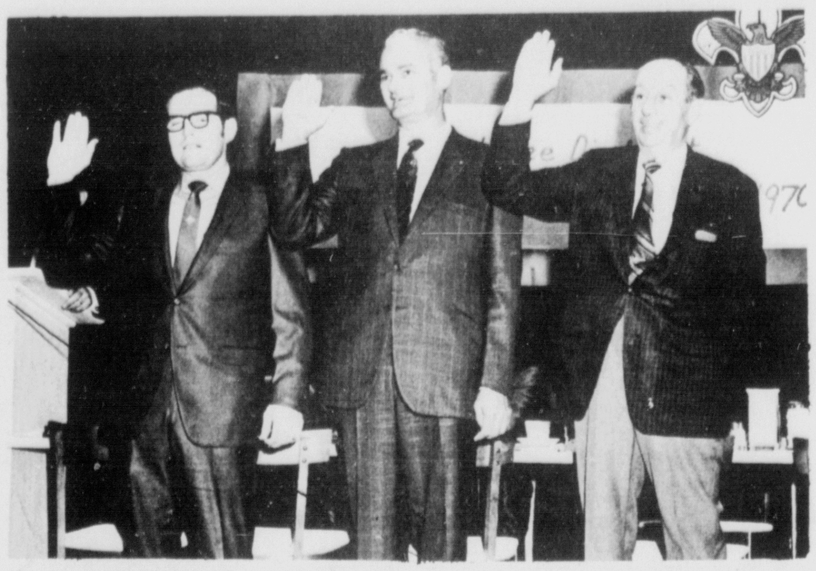

Pemiscot Indicts Another

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., The Pemiscot County grand jury has returned another vote fraud indictment, bringing to 17 the number of persons charged in connection with irregularities in the Aug. 4 primary election.

Charged Thursday on three counts of vote fraud was Clementine Hampton, who was an election clerk in the Butler precinct in the northern part of the county.

Results of the election in five county races were reversed following an investigation. Ballots in the Holland precinct were nullified.

U.S. Attorney Daniel Bartlett said an investigation has been launched of the election for possible federal grand jury action.

Scouts Elect Hedrick

Scout leaders were recognized last night at the Okeechobee District Appreciation dinner at Two Tony's Restaurant where more than 100 saw the installation of officers and outstanding men and women scouters receive awards.

New officers are Walter Hedrick, president; Judge Tom Brown, Charleston, vice-president, and John Ensor, district commissioner. They were sworn in by Southeast Council president Connie Hay.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Jim Greenwell, with Scout troop 49 presenting the opening flag ceremony.

A Spencer award, the first to be presented in Sikeston, was presented to the president Hedrick in recognition for highest honors for the district in camping, advancement, new scout registration and troops registering on time.

Southeast Missouri Scout Council President Earl Jarvis made awards to leaders at Morehouse, Oran, Pack 40 Sikeston, and Morley Pack 45. Certificates of appreciation were given to The DailyStandard, radio stations, and to Rev. Durwood Penry.

Matthews Pack 53 was recognized for its summer activities, and Mrs. Joanne Maznaritz, for a cub scout round table.

Training awards went to Earl Woodward and Leo Schott, Charleston, for a key award in scouting; and to Tom Nunnelee for the scout roundup.

The closing ceremony was led by members of Cub pack 40, Sikeston.

Song leader for the banquet was Mike Euer, East Prairie.

THE SPENCER AWARD, for leadership in Okeechobee distric in Scouting, the first of its kind in Sikeston, was presented to the new president, Walter Hedrick, left, by Connie Hay, district council executive, Cape Girardeau.

5 Injured in Accidents

Five persons were injured as a result of area automobile accidents yesterday, the highway patrol reported.

At 1 p.m. at the junction of routes H and E in New Madrid county, a 1970 Oldsmobile traveling west driven by Beulah Woods 76, Sikeston, pulled out in front of a 1961 Chrysler going north driven by Glenda Kelley, 37, Sikeston, the patrol said.

Both suffered minor injuries and were taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, Sikeston.

At 7:45 p.m. yesterday at the junction of highway 84 and route NN five miles east of Kennett, a 1970 Ford traveling north driven by Joe Brewer, 69, Kennett, failed to yield to through traffic on highway 84 and collided with an east bound 1966 Ford driven by Robert Ledbetter, 66, Steele, the patrol reported.

Brewer suffered forehead cuts and a possible broken hip. A passenger in the Brewer car, Burley Wilson, 62, Kennett, suffered forehead cuts and internal injuries. Ledbetter suffered internal injuries.

All were taken to the Dunklin County Hospital in Kennett.

Accused Slayer of Five Arrested Near Scene

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)— A young auto mechanic accused of slaying five persons in a hilltop mansion was arrested today about a half mile from the scene of the slaying, sheriff's deputies said.

A spokesman said John Linley Frazier, 24, who was charged with five counts of murder Thursday, was seized in a mountain cabin.

Officers said they had staked out the cabin, where Frazier had lived since two days before Monday's shooting deaths.

The 6-by-6 foot-shanty is on the same hilltop as the mansion, separated by a half a mile and a deep canyon.

Dist. Atty. Peter Chang Jr. said a friend of Frazier told authorities that the young man once remarked that people who lived like the victims "were materialistic and "should be snuffed."

Chang said three long-haired persons who live in a wooded area came to investigators at 3 a.m. Thursday after reading a note left at the slaying scene and released to news media by the sheriff Wednesday.

Chang said the three told investigators the note—which threatened death for those who "misuse the natural environment" and referred to tarot cards symbols—sounded to them as though it might have been written by Frazier.

The hippie community was repulsed by the massacre, Chang said.

The informants provided an address for Frazier's estranged wife who was questioned promptly, Chang added. He would not give her first name and said she was in protective custody.

The wife resides about six miles from the six-foot-square shanty where Frazier lived—across a gully from the mansion of Dr. Victor M. Ohta, 45, who was shot to death Monday along with his wife, Virginia, 43, their two sons, Derrick, 12, and Taggart 11, and Ohta's secretary, Dorothy Cadwallader, 38.

Chang quoted Frazier's wife as saying she last saw her husband Sunday when he set out on foot armed with a .38-caliber pistol and carrying a knapsack with food for several days. She said he also had expensive binoculars which he stole from Ohta's home about six weeks ago.

Mrs. Frazier said her husband left behind a book on tarot cards, often used for fortune telling, and his driver's license and wallet, telling her: "I won't be needing these any more."

The fugitive was believed headed for New York, and the FBI was called in to help in the search for him, Chang said.

Cool, Clean Clear Water Approved 135-0

CANALOU — A man dying of thirst in the desert could not be more unanimous in his desire for water than residents in the Canalou area.

Voters of the Public Water Supply district 4 of New Madrid county have approved a $200,000 special obligation bond issue to provide water for the district 135 to 0.

The Canalou town board met with their attorney, Charles Hatley of New Madrid, Tuesday to sign the proper papers. The engineers, Alex C. Waters and Associates, Sikeston, are finalizing plans to install the system which will supply water to residents of Canalou, Morehouse, Delmo, and persons living along highway H between Canalou and Matthews and along highway E north to Delmo from highway H.

Members of the board are Cordell Bixler, president, Canalou; Norval Harrison, treasurer, Canalou; Louise Croom, secretary, route three, Sikeston; Barbara Nimmo, Delmo; Donald Sexton, Canalou; Paul Joe Witt, route three, Sikeston; and David Croom, clerk, route three, Sikeston.

The vote was held Saturday.

Aunt Susan

Arkansas Man Seeks Whereabouts of Relative

"The two-year-old girl sat on a blanket in the living room waiting for her new parents to pick her up and to take her to a new home though she was too young to realize what was taking place. Her mother had died and her father, having three other young children, was unable to care for them. He was forced to give them up. Susan was the youngest and was the first to go."

This incident took place about 60 years ago on a farm four miles from Sikeston, and today Susan's nephew is trying to locate her.

This is how the story goes:

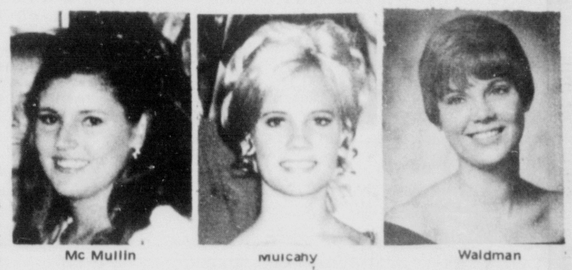

Around 1903 a Mr. and Mrs. Davis lived on a farm outside of Sikeston with their four children. In 1907 Mrs. Davis died leaving her husband taking care of four children and a farm. Time being as they were, Davis was unable to care for four children and was forced to give them up. In those days adoption was not a common practice in rural America and the children were taken by someone that could provide for them and that was the only prerequisite.

The two older girls, Veda and Pearl, were taken by a family in Malden named Boaz. The only son, Eltie, went with his father to Evansville, Ind., and Susan was taken by another family.

Since that time Veda and Pearl have died and Eltie is still living in Evansville, but the whereabouts of Susan is unknown.

Joe Mobley, Jr. of Jonesboro, Ark., is Susan's nephew and has been trying to locate her for many years. He does not know the name of the family that took Susan or where they were from, but he assumes they were from this area and if Susan is still alive she might be in the area today.

Mobley's address is 1209 East County Club Terrace in Jonesboro, Ark.

Thieu Declares Readiness

VUNG TAU, Vietnam (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu declared today that his government is "ready to carry out a cease-fire with the appropriate supervision and guarantees."

"The problem is not with our side," he asserted. "It is the stubbornness of the other side."

Thieu talked with newsmen at the end of the first day of a meeting of officials from all over the country, called to accelerate extension of the government's control over the countryside in anticipation of a cease-fire agreement.

There had been speculation that the meeting might produce a unilateral cease-fire declaration, but Thieu told newsmen: "I gave no instructions regarding a unilateral cease-fire. We will never make a unilateral cease-fire. Any cease-fire must be bilateral and agreed to by both sides."

The White House on Wednesday also denied any plans for a cease-fire, saying, "We do not plan to announce any further initiatives."

At a reception in Saigon Thursday night, Thieu said, "If the Communist remain stubborn "and if they do not give in to serious peace talks, then there will be a day the government will definitely withdraw its (Paris peace-talks) delegation back to Vietnam."

However, he set no deadline.

Bridge Toll End to Be Urged

ST. Mary's, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Rep. Vernon Bruckerhoff, D-St. Mary's, says he will urge that the Mississippi River bridge at Chester, Ill., be made toll-free as of Jan. 1.

Bruckerhoff said when the bridge was built in 1940, it was pledged the structure would be made toll-free after it was paid for.

"It can be paid now and I'm going to ask the (bridge) commission to fulfill the promise they made 30 years ago," Bruckerhoff said.

As of December 1965 the Bridge Commission made up of Chester city officials, owed $655,000 on bonds that financed construction of the span, he said.

At that time, Bruckerhoff added, there was a cash balance of $177,819 and treasury notes worth $175,000 on deposit in banks at Chester and St. Louis.

He said the records indicate the bridge toll income is more than $1,000 a day.

HALLOWEEN FOR UNICEF will be observed by young people collecting money from house to house in Sikeston Halloween evening. Money collected will help needy children around the world through UNICEF, United Nations International Children's Education Foundation. Some of the young people from the 30 sponsoring churches are from left, front row, Kathy Jones, Deena Brase, Chip Grant, Mary Moore, Marilyn Cooney, Ann Marie Cooney; back row, Sgt. Leonard Campbell, Charlotte Hale, Chief Arthur Bruce, Patrolman Sammie Hinton Jr., and Sandy Davidson.

Let's Hear That One More Time

The entertinment column that appeared on Wednesday's women's page was erroneous when it stated theater manager Charles Calhoun of Malco Theatre is not available to show movies for review on Tuesday afternoons.

This is not the case.

Charles Blanton III, business manager of The Daily Standard, said today the reason for discontinuance of movie reviews on Tuesdays is more utilization of newsroom personnel.

Plans call for movie reviews to be made on premier nights. The column, now entitled Show and Tell, will appear on the newspaper's television and movie page.

Contributions Sought for Unicef

The United Nations International Childrens Education Foundation will have a city-wide canvas Oct. 31, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., sponsored by 30 churches in the city.

The children will be accompanied by adult church leaders, and will have the cooperation of the city police department for safety during their rounds.

National headquarters have advised all adults and children to observe street crossings, not to cross in the middle of a block, and not to wear dark clothing as a safety measure in the darkness; face masks should not hinder their views while on their walks.

Headquarters for the collections will be at the Bank of Sikeston, where collections will be delivered.

Last year UNICEF collected between almost $800, all of which was sent overseas to help needy children all over the world.

Block Group Meets With City

By MIKE JENSEN

If preparation and concern count for anything these days then last night's special meeting in Sunset of the Block Club was a success.

The group met with City Manager Raymert Miller and Mayor Taylor Noles to discuss plans for street and housing improvements. More time, however, was devoted to discussion of curfew laws.

Miller said a great deal of concern has arisen lately over the violation of curfew laws.

"We have become lax- police and parent, both black and white. This is of great concern because police can't enforce the law without cooperation from the parents," Miller said.

Miller said he is going to inform Chief of Police Arthur Bruce to crack down on violators, but added that any police action would be on the parent, not on the child.

"I know you'll cooperate and I appreciate it. This problem is not just in Sunset but throughout the city," he added.

The law says anyone below the age of 18 shall be off the streets before 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and mid-night Friday and Saturday.

In a question and answer session that followed, Miller said the parents can't evade the responsibility of controlling the child.

"Juveniles will not respect parents unless they exercise parental authority," he added.

The group also discussed the possibilities of using a siren to warn children when the curfew hour has come. It was noted that a lot of confusion has arisen regarding the exact curfew hour, and a siren would help to eliminate the problem.

Noles said:

"The main reason we are here is that this is our city and these are our problems. One of the reasons we have been able to do so well is because we have the right kind of people. You can see the things we've done and you can see the things we've still go to do. We're trying our best to work for you, but we've got to work with you."

Louis Wiggins, president of the Block Club, said this was the first of several meetings with city, county, and possible state levels to discuss the problems of Sunset.

Miller and Noles informed the group about the progress of the street improvement projects such as North St. and about the proper procedure to get street improvement petitions.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We all know how much trouble we have but fail to realize how much others have.

FIVE ACRES — AND WHAT??

Is there anybody around who remembers a very popular, best- selling book of a few years ago called "Five Acres And Independence" by Kains?

Riding on the altogether human predisposition that "the grass is always greener in the other fellow's yard," the theme of the book captured the attention of more than one city dweller with the message that with just five acres of good, rich farmland, a fellow could make a go of it — and with all that fresh, healthy, unpolluted air, too!

A careful reading of the book revealed, however, that you would have to be a pretty shrewd operator. But, by including a fair amount of luck, good growing weather, enough rain and/ or cheap water, a stable market and a few other factors, the author was able to present a rather impressive case for his appealing theory - impressive enough to sell several thousand copies of his book.

Carrol Fey, Editor of the Edgerton Enterprise in Pipestone County, down in the southwest corner of Minnesota, recently asked a few farm folk in the area: "Could you still make a living on a quarter section of land?"

Replied one farmer: "You could if you owned the land and had it paid for, and the hogs and cattle sell for around $30.00. It makes a difference, though, if you are just a man and wife, or if you have children who are going to school."

Another opinioned: "I think I could if I felt like milking 20 to 30 cows." A third replied: "Heck, no. I can't make a living off three eighties." One farm family with a 160 responded; "It's a pretty hard thing to do, but we're still doing it, and we sometimes wonder for how long."

"Five Acres" may still intrigue some people. But they won't produce much income, unless you're a Houdini. And if you're not, that's a lot of grass to mow.

KILL THE PENSION SWINDLE

Missouri voters will get a chance Nov. 3 to kill the pension swindle railroaded through the 1969 regular session of the Legislature. Gov. Hearnes should have vetoed that steal but in deference to the lawmaker-beneficiaries whose support he needed, he didn't. And it is only owing to the determination of an outraged citizens group in which former Gov. Dalton was a leader that the people obtained this opportunity to veto the measure on their own. The Dalton group gathered 186,933 signatures (three times as many as required) on petitions that blocked the pension plan from going into effect and compelled its submission to the people for their decision.

The measure will appear on the November ballot as "Proposition No. 1," and we recommend that voters put their cross in the box opposite the word "Against." The law would make state pensions the only public pension system in the state not funded on at least a pretense of acturial soundness. Other public pension systems in the state —those covering school teachers, say, or municipal employes or firemen, policemen and others — relate the benefits directly to the size of the contributions that are intended to finance the whole pension.

The proposed pension law ignores that elementary rule, which means that in the long run the taxpayers will have to make up the difference between the ultimate cost of the pensions and the demonstrably inadequate contributions of the beneficiaries.

The benefits that the legislators wrote in for themselves and for elected officials like the Governor would run to almost three times those of ordinary state employes, in whose behalf the measure was ostensibly written. Payroll deductions for these officials would be doubled from the present 4 per cent of salary to 8 per cent. But the state's 4 per cent contribution would remain the same. And so when the legislators and elected officials came to retirement age, taxpayers would have to sweeten the kitty out of general revenue to make up the difference. Nobody knows how much this will amount to, most especially the legislators who pushed the scheme through the General Assembly; all they were interested in was the gravy.

Under the existing pension schedule, a legislator who manages to survive at the polls for 20 years may retire at age 60 on $3600 a year. Under the proposed scheme that same legislator could retire at 55 and get $6270 annually, or some 75 per cent of his current salary of $8400 a year. The ordinary state employe with the same basic salary and length of service would have to wait until 60 to retire, at which time he would draw only $2100 a year. A Governor under this swindle could draw $12,000 a year beginning at age 55; and by the time he had reached age 65, the age most Americans now retire, he would already have drawn $120,000 — most of it directly out of the pockets of Missouri taxpayers. Voters who agree to this kind of a shearing will deserve what they get.

There is no question that a compelling case can be made for improving the pension system covering the state's employes, and we hope the Governor will recommend an actuarially sound plan covering the employes to the next General Assembly. First, though, the present raid on the treasury by the lawmakers who are supposed to be its guardians will have to be turned back. Vote Against Proposition 1.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES COMES A LOT OF NONSENSE- AND WORSE

When a ten- year- old child is put on national television to pontificate, "The State is too lenient with the large corporations," then something very silly, sick and sickening is happening to this country of ours.

It is all part of a "revolution," if you please — screaming hordes disrupting courts of law, loudly threatening to "seize power through the barrel of a gun," vandalizing offices of companies vital to the safety and economy of companies vital to the safety and economy of the nation, burning banks, closing colleges and so destroying the chance of decent young Americans to get the education they want and know how to appreciate.

There have been 600 riots in this country in the past five years, and 470 in less than two years on campuses. Every riot and violent protest destroys a little more of your country, your freedom, your savings — and delights this country's enemies. As the Vice President asked, "Will the Government of this country remain in the hands of its elected officials, or will it descend to the streets?" The answer is up to you, because it is your Government. Isn't it time the Silent Majority stopped being silent?

"Much of what government consumer protectors do is the result of the politics of the problem, not the problem itself," commented President Woodrow Wirsig of the New York Better Business Bureau. "Action is too often based on unfounded hunch and emotion, or how it will look at the polls... Almost any product could be made to last indefinitely, without servicing, but I doubt that any consumer would be willing to pay the cost of achieving that perfection."

Whatever may be the final outcome of the highjacking crisis, it is more than ever necessary to look very closely into what and who is behind the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP). It would be a great mistake to accept the idea (which is being widely canvassed) that these people are an irresponsible collection of outlaws without any substantial backing from official sources anywhere.

There may be something much more behind the PFLP's protests against the cease- fire than spontaneous indignation. There may be deliberate planning to substitute one form of offensive for another.

One other thing is to be noted. There have been no demonstrations by students and radical leftists (or at any rate none has been reported) against these acts of piracy and the use as hostages of women and children who have not the remotest connection with the Arab- Israel conflict.

What has suddenly happened to all our "humanitarians"?

THE DOUGLAS DRY-UP

The investigation into the behavior of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has degenerated. If nothing else, it has become a contest between Rep. Emanuel Celler's deafness and some congressmen who are screaming charges at the top of their lungs. Douglas is under fire for accepting payments from a Las Vegas-Pornography axis, and Emanuel Celler's subcommittee was supposed to investigate. Rep. Joe Waggonner has charged that Celler's subcommittee has held six meetings in two months and interviewed 12 persons, none under oath. The investigation is now under its second deadline extension, and that, according to the irate critics, proves that Celler is going to sit on the Douglas case until it dries up and blows away. There is another way around Celler, called the Wyman resolution which would set up a new panel and an investigation- but the elections grow near and with every tick of the clock, the Celler grin- and-don't bare - it strategy looks like a winner. You can't you know, report on anything if you are out on the campaign trail.

If Congress were better informed on the changing status of the Federal budget, it would vote more wisely to avoid over-spending Federal income.

This is the argument Rep. Donald Brotzman (Colo.) presents in proposing legislation to require the Bureau of the Budget to give Congress a monthly statement of Federal income and expenditures – like a business profit or loss statement – for the current year.

A poll of business owners by the National Federation of Independent Business finds 44 percent agreeing such legislation would be desirable.

But almost as many, 43 percent, believe it is either not needed because of Treasury reports now available or would be ignored by Congress.

Another 13 percent take a noncommitted position.

Businessmen in Missouri responded with 48 percent for the measure, 37 percent against it, with 15 percent undecided.

Whether Congress would act more economy-minded if a clearer, up -to -date picture of Federal finances were available is a good question, in view of Federal deficits in 26 of the last 30 years.

The Administration's budget request for the 1971 fiscal year is 200.8 billion with a hoped-for surplus of 1.3 billion. but since the present Congress exceeded budget requests for 1970, thereis grave doubt that it will hold the line.

Rep. Brotzman believes Congress could establish better priorities and a better vote upon specific appropriations oif the complex and changing government financial situation were stated clearly each month by the Budget Brueau. The original presidential budget is soon out of date as Congress adds and subtracts, delets, and originates new spending programs on its own.

However, the fact that Congressmen can obtain current budget estimates from Treasury Department reports apparently convinced a larger number of businessmen that some duplication would be involved in Congressman Brotzman's proposal. And many others doubt that it would work.

The independent proprietors, who have long been outspoken for economy in government and a balanaced budget, have supported two other proposals aimed at restraining Congressional spending. One would require that every bill introduced into the House of Representatives contain an estimate of its cost for the next two fiscal years. This bill by Rep. Robert Denny of Nebraska won approval of 81 percent of the businessmen polled by the Federation.

Sen. Jacob Javits' proposal for a Commission to review Federal budget priorities and spending policy was endorsed by 69 percent of the business owners.

But the businessmen are much less convinced that the answer lies in more government reports. Most would probably agree it lies with the individual Congressman.

WE FAVOR THIS TAX IF - - - - -

State Representative E.J. Cantrell has written Gov. Hearnes, calling for a special legislative session immediately after the election, and asking that he recommend, among other things, putting a 3% sales tax on radio, television, newspaper, billboard, magazine and all other types of advertising. He claims it would raise $35 millions, and he's probably correct.

The Appeal Favors this sales tax proposal, if----

Rep. Cantrell will also include all other types of services, such as lawyers and doctors fees, charges for all types or repair, salaries and other services. Advertising is not a tangible product, while the present sales tax is levied only on tangible products.

It is class legislation, obviously unfair and probably unconstitutional, to tax one type of service without taxing all of them.

If all types of services are charged the 3% sales tax, the State of Missouri would have so much money coming in that it would probably be possible to reduce taxes on real estate and personal property.

H.L. Hunt Says

FACT NOT FANCY

Leftist radicalism and atheistic secularism menace Western Civilization and our freedons, but the forces of the Mistaken can be turned back by informed patriots who pursue reasonable, constructive methods. Shrill cries and unfounded charges help rather than hinder our enemies. If they can discredit a patriot, he is then publicized and held up as typical of everyone who opposes international appeasement, centralized government and moral permissiveness.

The constructive freedomist, the effective American, choose words carefully so that they conform to political facts and realities rather than to rumor, hearsay or speculation. Truth is the enemy's greatest foe and at the same time our greatest ally. The truth makes us free and will preserve our liberty, but no one can expect to set the world aright by throwing a mass of facts, no matter how indesputable, at everyone he meets. He who tries to have answers to every question and preaches, rather than discusses, will soon be labeled a "kook."

Foreign and domestic problems are complex, but the fundamental plans and aims of our adversaries are clear and easily understood. Every constructive pro-freedomist should remember two guiding principles:

Never state as a fact anything for which you cannot offer proof. Always seek to awaken dedication to freedom's philosophy before you discuss threats to the American way. The past and present activities of those committed to our destruction will be seen in their proper light by anyone who knows the glorious song of freedom U.S. A. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--A clash between Soviet and American naval forces in the Mediterranean is a real danger in case of another Middle East flare-up.

This is the chilling conclusion of a secret U.S. estimate which also predicts that the action could be restricted to non-nuclear weapons and could be confined to the Mediterranean.

A secret operations plan, directing how the Sixth Fleet should respond to a Soviet attack, is ready to implement. In every contingency, the "rules of engagement" call for localizing the action.

The danger of a Russian-American outbreak in the Mediterranean is heightened, quite frankly, by the fact that the two countries have supplied combat planes to the opposing sides.

The Israelis, for instance, might have difficulty distinguishing whether a flight of MIG-21s had Soviet or Egyptian markings. This could lead the Israelis, flying American-made Phantoms, to attack Soviet planes by mistake. The Russians, in turn, might not notice the Israeli markings and might conclude that U.S. planes had jumped them.

During the fratricidal fighting between the Palestinians and Jordenians, when the Middle East fuse burned dangerously short, both Russia and the U.S. took pains to avoid a confrontation.

The U.S. admonished the Israelis to guard against any mistakes that might result in attacks upon Soviet planes or ships. And Russian naval units maneuvered with extreme caution around the Sixth Fleet.

There were some breathless moments when Soviet subs began massing in the eastern Mediterranean and, later, when Soviet landing ships full of naval infantry pulled into the Syrian port of Latakia. But the Russians remained carefully non-agressive.

SOVIET SEAPOWER

The Soviets have built up a formidable Mediterranean Naval Squadron of 35 to 40 ships and subs, including modern cruisers and destroyers, both nuclear and conventional attack submarines, combined surface, sub-surface and airborne anti-submarine forces, and landing ships with naval infantry on board.

The Mediterranean Squadron is supported by a dozen auxiliary ships and also has access to shore facilities in Egypt. Some of the combat ships and submarines, incidentally, are equipped with anti-ship missiles, which intelligence reports describe as "the greatest threat" to the Sixth Fleet.

This Soviet naval force still is no match for the Sixth Fleet, which has 45 to 50 ships in the Mediterranean. These include two attack carriers, which are able to put 400 combat planes in the air. A Navy estimate claims that the Sixth Fleet not only has "numerical" but "qualitiative" superiority over the Soviet Mediterranean Squadron.

In an emergency, however, the Soviets have demonstrated that they can quickly augment their Mediterranena force with surface ships from the nearby Black Sea Fleet and submarines from the Northern Fleet.

The U.S. has sought to demonstrate both restraints and firmness in the Mediterranean, a delicate policy calculated to hold the Soviets at bay without precipitating a naval encounter. A series of NATO naval maneuvers – code named "Deep Express," "Reforged" and "Crested" --have been scheduled in the Mediterranean as a show of strength.

FOOTNOTE: Russia has also built up a formidable naval force in the Indian Ocean. An intelligence report frankly concedes, however, that the U.S. has only limited knowledge of these operations "because of the inadequate U.S. surveillance capabilities in the region."

TAX STEAL

The nation's tax coffers have sprung so many leaks -- loopholes of all sizes -- that half the moneydue the government now escapes into the pockets of the privileged.

The loopholes were punched into the tax statutes from the outside by a benevolent Congress, which has used the loophole method to subsidize the rich. But the Nixon administration is now chiseling loopholes into the tax system from the inside.

Big Republican contributors, as a return on their political investment, have called upon the Treasury Department for tax breaks. The pressure has been brought to bear on Internal Revenue Commissioner Randolph Thrower, a genial fellow, who has obligingly issued special tax rulings to benefit the rich.

These ruling are complex and difficult to explain -- all the better to confuse the less-blessed taxpayers who must make up the taxes that the fat cats get out of paying.

For example, Thrower has ruled that banks can borrow money to carry tax-exempt bonds and charge off the interest on the borrowed money as a tax deduction. This is anew privilege worth millions to the big banks.

Thrower has also decreed that advance payments, previously treated as income in the year they were received, can now be held as deferred income. This will cost the rest of the taxpayers between $50 million and $100 million a year, a Treasury expert told this column.

Thrower has also allowed the computed industry to write off its programming costs in one year rather than amoritze them, another form of tax deferral that will benefit the computer companies at the expense of the other taxpayers.

In other quiet little way, the Internal revenue Commissioner has been robbing the poor and middle-income taxpayers to help the rich.

FOOTNOTE: All tax loopholes would appear to be a violation of the Constitution, which declares flatly that no money should be drawn from the Federal Treasury except by congressional appropriations. Every dollar that corporations are excused from paying in taxes is the same as a dollar drawn out of the Treasury.

A group, called Tax Analysts and Advocates, is preparing to sue the federal government to close the tax loopholes and require these subsidies to be paid out of direct appropriation. In this way, the taxpayers at least would receive an accounting of the subsidies that go to the rich.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Kicking the GOP Habit: Lindsay Quietly Sounding Out Labor, Liberal Chiefs on Machine For'72 Democractic Presidental Bid

NEW YORK: -- The tipoff came up in Central Park last Sunday morning when former Ambassador Arthur Godlberg went in for touch football. That put him in the running aginst Nelson (The Rock) Rockefeller. Then, John Lindsay's Lancers permitted Goldberg's Gridders to beat them 14 to0. That put coach Goldberg in the big leagues. Central Park is more proletarian than Hyannis. But touch football is the magic vote-getting touch for the people wherever it's played.

So the news (predicted here some weeks ago) that John Lindsay has endorsed the Democratic-Liberal gubernatorial candidate Goldberg is anti-climatic.

The real news is that Arthur Goldberg and Mayor Lindsay now are a team not only claiming touch football as their own -- but are reaching for the White House in 1972. And it matters not that the theatrically handsome mayor said, "I am a Republican and I intend to remain a Republican."

Fact is that the tense soul-searching mayor doesn't intend to remain a Republican -- unless he absolutely has to. At the moment he is simply keeping his options dry. There is no reason for him to bolt the G.O.P. now. He has blasted President Nixon. He has skinned Vice President Agnew. He has accused them of "irrational priorities" and policies. But he has well over a year now to wait for the administration to crack up in some fashion -- either on the war, or on the Middle East, or on a recession, or on some slip of the tongue as Humbert Humphrey slipped when he referred to his maker, Lyndon Johnson, as "paranoid. Barring a Nixon catastrophe, personal or political, MayorJohn V. Lindsay will bolt his party and, while in motion, join the Democrats. He just need not do this during the barren, politically dead year of 1971 -- a year made to order for him. There are no consequential elections. There will be no need for definitive political statements -- only ideological.

There meanwhile is ample evidence of his plans to try for the Democratic Party presidential nomination. He has been sounding out New York and national labor leaders.

Fully aware of their intuitive sense of bargaining he has talked to them privately these past few months. Those he's approached are with him. They want him in "the Party" -- meaning the Democratic Party. There's a little doubt he'll have the backing of Jerry Wurf's American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes -- the land's swiftest growing pluralisitic union. There is little doubt he would have the United Auto Workers with him – or a resonable section thereof.

Of all the notables at the grim funeral of Walter Reuther, the New York mayor was the most buzzed about, the most pointed out, the most discussed that day in Detroit.

Nor is there any doubt that he has some powerful machine backing in New York City. Remember, this was the route John Kennedy went -- via the powerful Bronx and Brooklyn machines, and the wooing of Carmine DeSapio, then leader to Tammany Hall.

Basically these same forces see John Lindsay now as their only hope to win in '72 -- just as they say John Kennedy as their man a deadly decade ago.

Many of these country leaders -- more or less the same men, the same breed, the same fabulous infighters who put over John Kennedy -- have told this to John Lindsay or to his intimates.

They're fascinated with the mayor's move to bolster ex-secretary of Labor Goldberg. They see the secret polls. They know that Steve Smith, the Kennedy brother-in-law, high in his Pan—American building headquarters has one tightly held costly analysis showing that Arthur Goldberg, son of a Chicago wagon delivery-man, is running mightly close for the New York governorship with Nelson Rockefeller, scion of the famed, multibillion dollar philanthropic family.

They know, the anoymous wise men of machine politics, that governors are president makers. They know that the Democratic Party desperately needs a victory in New York. They know that a "Governor" Arthur Goldberg would be a national figure, a power in the next Democratic nominationg convention. Who else would there be heading a delegation as impactful as the powerful New York Delegation?

They know that to date Mr. Goldberg's campaign has been as tepid as the last slug of beer at an all-day summer Sunday picnic. If Mr. Goldberg does win now, it will have been the mayor who did it. And Mr. Goldberg and Mr. Lindsay will be political partners. His Honor the Mayor then will lick his primaries in '72. The reckoning now in City Hall is that the Democratic frontrunner is Edmund Muskie. So John Lindsay will tangle with him -- or with Hubert Humphrey (if the latter wins his Senate race).

But what of Ted Kennedy? Well, he has decided not to get into any primaries. If the national convention is deadlocked between the Lindsay-Goldberg legions of youths and minorities and reformers and nonviolent new-leftists on one side and the Muskie traditionsalists on the other -- Ted Kennedy will be "available." He'll take a draft. If not, the Kennedy machine, still the best in the business, will do business with the mostest at the convention. Sen. Kennedy plans to stay regular. He has time John Lindsay really hasn't. New York is more than a garbage, fear-ridden heap, it's political quicksand.

Impotency not normal for 36 year old husband

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell the millions of men who read your column that if they are not physically able to have sexual relations with their wives to get some help and stop being so confounded proud and foolish.

It is debasing for a woman to beg her husband for sex and get turned down. Take my word for it, Ann, a wife's love can turn to hate when she is told to take a cold shower and forget it. Most women who have families don't want to take a lover on the side, but after months and sometimes years of frustration and rejection they feel justified.

I've discussed this problem with my doctor. He tells me alcohol can be an important factor in impotency among men between 35 and 50. I'm sure my husband's inability to perform is related to his heavy drinking, but he won't admit he needs help -- either for his drinking or his sex life. He insists that for people our age (I'm 33 and he is 36) once a month is enough. He says I'm the one who needs professional help.

Everything I've ever read on this subject makes it plain that impotency in males (as well and frigidity in females) is 98% emotional and has no organic basis. When I try to explain this to my husband he becomes furious.

I am not asking for advice. I've already made up my mind I am not going to lead a sexless life. What I must decide now is whether to accept an offer from an attractive man who insists he's in love with me (his wife has been ill for years) or file for divorce and get some fullfillment.

Please publish this letter for the benefit of the males in your reading audience who are not as rock-headed as my husband. For them it might not be --Too Late

Dear T.L.: Here's your letter, for the males in my reading audience who are not as rock-headed as your husband. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot these days about children who have no respect for their parents. What about parents who have no respect for their children? Here's what I mean: Mon and Dad drag the kids out of bed at 5:00 a.m. to take them on a 350 mile trip. They arrive at their destination and promptly tell the kids they are going to a party to see relatives "so stay awake nad act polite". Next they are dragged to another party -- more relatives. Again: "Stay awake and act polite." They are given a quick refresher course on names so they"l know Aunt Zelda from Cousin Kate. The food consists of tidbits served with drinks, a cheese dip and potato chips. At 3:00 a.m. the kids are put to bed on the floor --22 hours without sleep.

I am an adult who went through this rigorous routine and I was half dead for two days. I know the people who take better care of their animals. any comment? --Tripped Out

Dear Out: Sounds rough, but I'll bet the kids had a good time --- and it's better than leaving them at home. If the parents dragged them around like this every week I'd report them to the Humane Society, but for a one-time thing it's nothing to get excited about. P.S. Kids recover faster than adults.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope And Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Girl from Tahiti attending SHS

by CHARLES F. BRADY

"America's biggest problem, I think, is young people against the government," Esabelle Yao, 14, a freshman enrolled in Sikeston High School, commented.

Miss Yao, a Tahitian who came from that country the 28th of August this year,says people are more free in Tahiti than in America.

Esabelle Yao

"We can leave certain courses in school if we are not interested in that course providing it is not something important," she said. "we have to go to school until we are 16."

She said the United States is a beautiful country although colder than Tahiti.

Commenting on America's structure, she said:

"Tahitians are generally friendly toward America. I approve of the United States government the way it is now. We have no bombing problems in Tahiti and have no problems with Communists. Our government is French."

Miss Yao has had the opporutnity to live in different parts of the world: Greece, France, Africa, China, Tahitit, and, of course, the United States.

She said she liked Greece the best but Tahiti has the friendliest people.

On women's fashions, Miss Yao said:

"I like the mini, midi, and maxi dresses. I decide which to wear by the type of weather and the shape of the dress. The mini is popular in Tahiti.'

She can speak Mandarian Chinese and French fluently. She has some trouble with English and, when she was younger, she spoke Greek.

"I only have a visa here for a year," she said. "I would like to stay in America longer and go to college here, a California college."

Miss Yao said her favorite pasttime is reading.

"My favorite music is classical. My favorite popular music singer is Tom Jones," she commented.

She has another brother and sister who live in California besides a sister who lives in Sikeston. Her mother has also been living in Sikeston but plans to leave in December for Tahiti and later will teach piano in Taiwan.

"I am in favor of peace dissent but demonstrators and rioters serve no useful purpose," she concluded.

Mrs. Nixon likes people and won't be a phoney

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon has a simple approach to her political campaigning: "I like people and I would never be phony."

Ending a week of cross-country travel in behalf of Republican candidates, the President's wife said she was surprised some people think such campaigning is unusual for her.

She admits she has never been "clear around the country" on her own before, "but I've been in this since 1946." And she plans to be out again next week—in Indianapolis Wednesday and later in San Diego and San Francisco, Calif.

Asked how the campaign shapes up for Republicans, Mrs. Nixon said exuberantly: "It looks great."

Mrs. Nixon proved she's a pro on a day-long trip to Florida Thursday in which she shook hands with at least 2,000 people and got a warm welcome in return. She was given keys to two cities and the mayor proclaimed "Mrs. Richard M. Nixon Day" in Fort Myers.

She smiled, said "Hi, honey," patted hands, hugged youngsters, gave out autographs and 50 or so gold ball-point pens with her name on them, and posed for innumerable pictures with candidates and constituents.

It didn't matter that the main Senate candidate she came to promote—Rep. William C. Cramer—was off seeking votes elsewhere. Mrs. Nixon, touring with Mrs. Cramer, said, "I didn't expect him and knew he was going to be busy."

"I'm not dwelling upon myself," she explained her campaign composure. She did admit her right hand was "all dented up" with fingernail scratches. But, "These things never bother me."

Her day in Florida included appearances at two receptions in Point Brittany and Fort Myers where she stood each time for about 90 minutes without letup, shaking hands.

"This is what I love," Mrs. Nixon said afterwards. "I love to have a word or two with people and have a word with their children. I love people and I think that I completely captiviate them."

Nebraska, Oklahoma Favored In Big 8

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Nebraska Cornhuskers and the Oklahoma Sooners, both undefeated in Big Eight Conference football, are favored to open up more daylight between themselves and the rest of the league Saturday.

Nebraska, 2-0 against conference foes, is picked to win by 21 points over Oklahoma State, 0-1 and Oklahoma, 1-0, by five points over Kansas State, 2-1.

Colorado, 1-2, faces a test for survival in its game at Missouri, 1-1. Kansas plays Iowa State 0-2, at Lawrence, Kan.

By Saturday night, there should be a pretty clear separation of the men from the boys in the championship race.

Oklahoma State will depend heavily on passing against the fourth-ranked Cornhuskers. The Cowboys' have the league's leading passer in quarterback Tony Poiunds, who has a .557 completion percentage, and the league's No. 2 receiver in Hermann Eben, who snagged 27 passes for 482 yards and four touchdowns.

Nebraska, the conference leader in total offense and three defensive departments, will blend the passing of two quarterbacks, Van Brownson and Jerry Tagge, with the running of Joe Orduna and Jeff Kinney. This combination has kept Nebraska unbeaten this season and has established the Cornhuskers as the team to beat in the conference race.

The Sooners staged a major surprise a week ago by upending Colorado 23-15. Oklahoma demonstrated the effectiveness of its new Wishborne-T attack when it had to travel an average of 78.5 yards on every drive. Coach Chuck Fairbanks, who installed the attack after Oklahoma's first three games, hopes it will be just as effective against Kansas State.

Kansas State, a hot and cold team, has seen its running game, spearheaded by Mike Montgomery and Henry Hawthorne, round into fine form in recent games. The running of these two performers and Lynn Dickey's passing could cause the Sooners trouble. Flanker Sonny Yarnell will be back in action for Kansas State.

Colorado, a three-point underdog, must win at Missouri or give up on its hopes for the conference title. Coach Eddie zzcrowder expects offensive guard Dennis Havig back.

"Missouri is as difficult to move the football on as anybody we will play this year," Crowder says.

Missouri's hopes are brightened by return of linebacker Nip Weisenfels, who hasn't played since Sept. 19 because of a knee operation. Guard Dan Kelley also may be ready along with tackle Rocky Wallace. Linebacker Sam Britts, favoring an ankle injury, will miss the Colorado game.

Kansas is favored by 13 points over Iowa State. The Jayhawks will be without offensive guard Gary Cooper, bothered by a sprained ankle. Both quarterback Dan Heck and running back John Riggins, who received minor injuries against Nebraska, are mended. Kansas's improved but still inadequate defense is the Jayhawks' big difficulty.

Iowa State may have to play without quarterback Dean Carlson, who has shared the starting role with George Amundson. Carlson has a bruised knee. Iowa State lost 17-0 to Kansas last week.

Louisville Lip Sounds Off

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

ATLANTA (AP) — Tradition is against a successful ring comeback for Muhammad, Ali after a 3½ year layoff, but that doesn't faze the brash and cocky ex-heavyweight champion of the world.

"Man, I'm faster than when I was the fastest," insists the controversial Louisville Lip, capping off training for his Monday night 15-rounder here against Jerry Quarry.

"I am only 28. I have kept myself in shape. I have lived a clean life. I am still the best—the champ. Nobody can beat me."

The black-skinned descendant of a runaway slave, born Cassius Marcellus Clay in Louisville, is not one to pore over ring record books. If he were, his confidence might be shaken.

History shows that many of the great champions, from John L. Sullivan up to the time of Joe Louis, have found ring rust a handicap too great to conquer.

Sullivan, known as the Boston Strong Boy in the bareknuckle era, won the heavyweight crown from Paddy Ryan in front of the Barnes Hotel in Mississippi City, Miss., back in 1882.

He bowled over opponents for the next several years, ran out of foes and did not fight from 1889 to 1892. During this period of idleness, he took a trip to Europe, sparred with the Prince of Wales and played "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands" on the stage.

Returning to the ring in 1892—fat, out of shape and 33—Sullivan was an easy victim of James J. Corbett, who won by a knockout in 21 rounds.

Corbett himself retired in 1895 to become an actor. He tried a comeback only to be knocked out in 14 rounds by Bob Fitzsimmons. Fitzsimmons ultimately lost the title to Jim Jeffries in 1899.

Jeffries, known as the Boilermaker, retired in 1904 and let Marvin Hart and Jack Root fight for his crown, Hart winning. After a five-year lapse, Jeffries tried to regain the title. Pitifully out of condition, he was kayoed by Jack Johnson in Reno in 1910. He was 35 at the time.

Jack Dempsey, after knocking out Luis Firpo Sept. 14, 1923, had three years of easy living, with no standout opponents. He fought exhibitions, once taking on six different foes in one night, kayoing four.

His once sturdy legs and flicking hands didn't look the same Sept. 23, 1926 when he lost the first of his two decisions to Gene Tunney.

Jimmy Braddock spent two years waiting for Joe Louis and avoiding Max Schmeling and got himself knocked out in seven rounds. Louis himself couldn't find the secret of comeback success and lost to Ezzard Charles in 1950—at the age of 36.

The question at the Municipal Auditorium here Monday night will be: Has Muhhamad Ali, like so many of his predecessors, stayed away too long? Has he lost the spring and the fire that carried him to 29 professional victories, 23 by knockout, with no defeats?

Muhammad insists he hasn't. "I've never been better," says Ali.

"There is no reason he shouldn't be capable of making a comeback," says ex-champion Jersey Joe Walcott, who refereed Ali's second victory over Sonny Liston. "He's young. He's one of the greatest fighters I've ever seen."

"You can't help losing something by a layoff," says Braddock. "It can't be done unless you're a superman."

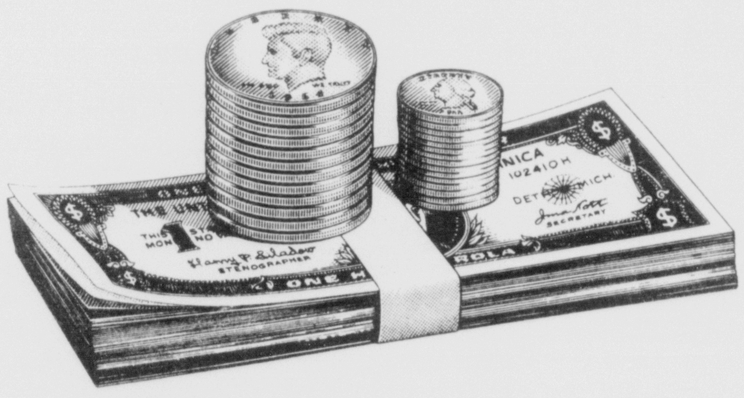

The bout is attracting worldwide attention. Newsmen continued to pour in today from overseas, the list numbering more than 500.

Monday will not be a gala day for all Georgians.

Gov. Lester Maddox, who vehemently opposed the bout, declared it a day of mourning.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes
Sports Editor

Competition is the root of all athletic contests and the same holds true inalmost anything you do, especially if you're the kind of person who likes to be tops, and come to think of it ... who doesn't like to be tops?

Well, we do here at the office, especially in our special little corner at the north end of our building where I'm joined by Mike "Flash" Jensen and Charles "Poet" Brady.

Ever since the start of the season, we've been trying to out-do the other in the predicting of area grid games ... and if I have to say so myself (because none of the others would) I've been tops every week ... well almost every ...

Anyway, we've chosen up sides and have three guest challengers this week in Tony Ford of Sikeston, Randy South of Parma and Grid Iron Harry from East Prairie, who'll try and out predict our office force.

So, without any more gab ... here goes.

CAPE CENTRAL AT SIKESTON --- All-conference back Mike Shaffer was issued equipment at the start of the week and given a doctors release to rejoin the Bulldog grid team ... BUT ... he'll have to wait atleast another week and possibly two before he gets into the action. That mental lift might help the Dogs, but not enough as the consensus of all six of us ... see a Bengal victory.

Flash	52-0	Tony	36-6
Brady	39-7	Randy	42-0
Ron	21-0	Harry	49-0

CHARLESTON AT EAST PRAIRIE --- Rivalry can produce some weird outcomes, especially if both teams are matched as well as those two are. The Bluejays are favored 4-2.

Flash	36-18 (CHS)	Tony	28-14 (CHS)
Brady	20-8 (CHS)	Randy	21-20 (EPHS)
Ron	14-13 (CHS)	Harry	33-30 (EPHS)

PERRYVILLE AT KENNETT --- The Tribe is a solid favorite ... not to score and record its 23rd straight defeat.

Flash	48-0	Tony	48-0
Brady	32-0	Randy	52-0
Ron	28-0	Harry	41-0

DEXTER AT POPLAR BLUFF --- Can the Bearcats repeat their performance of last week when they shutout once-powerful Sikeston, 20-0 ... The consensus is NO... 5 to 1.

Flash	28-7 (PB)	Tony	21-17 (PB)
Brady	25-13 (PB)	Randy	17-16 (DHS)
Ron	21-14 (PB)	Harry	26-14 (PB)

PORTAGEVILLE --- These two squads have been trouble for our prognostication trio all season ... but we seem to be in agreement with our competitors in this meeting ... Portageville all the way.

Flash	18-0	Tony	30-14
Brady	18-7	Randy	20-10
Ron	14-13	Harry	28-19

MALDEN AT CHAFFEE --- Coach Jack Phillips' Green Waves are favored (6-0 to move within one victory of claiming atleast a tie for the Southern crown ... They'll meet East Prairie in the big game next week and end the season in the big, big game.

Flash	32-0	Tony	36-14
Brady	31-6	Randy	37-7
Ron	28-0	Harry	44-7

HAYTI AT ILLMO-SCOTT CITY --- The Rams are 4-2 favorites to keep he Indians out of the win column, for atleast another week. Here's the way it looks.

Flashh	14-7 (I-SC)	Tony	14-3 (I-SC)
Brady	12-0 (HHS)	Randy	12-10 (I-SC)
Ron	28-21 (HHSS)	Harry	20-12 (I-SC)

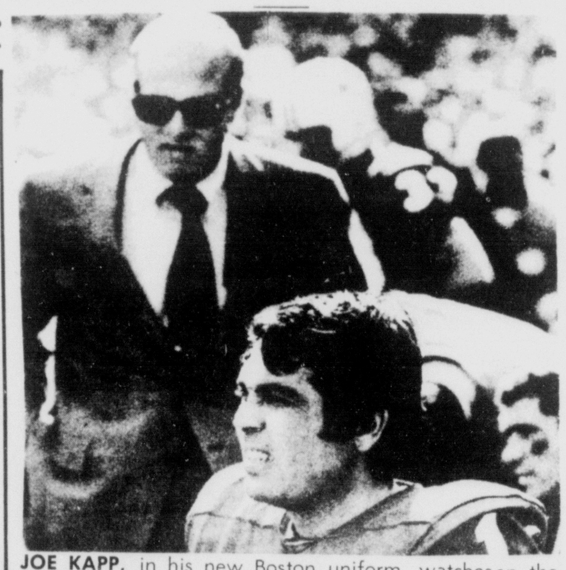

DELTA C-7 AT SOUTH PEMISCOT --- C-7's Chargers are a unamimous choice to finish in the cellar of the Bootheel Division standings.

Flash	18-3	Tony	6-3
Brady	14-0	Randy	7-0
Ron	6-0	Harry	6-0

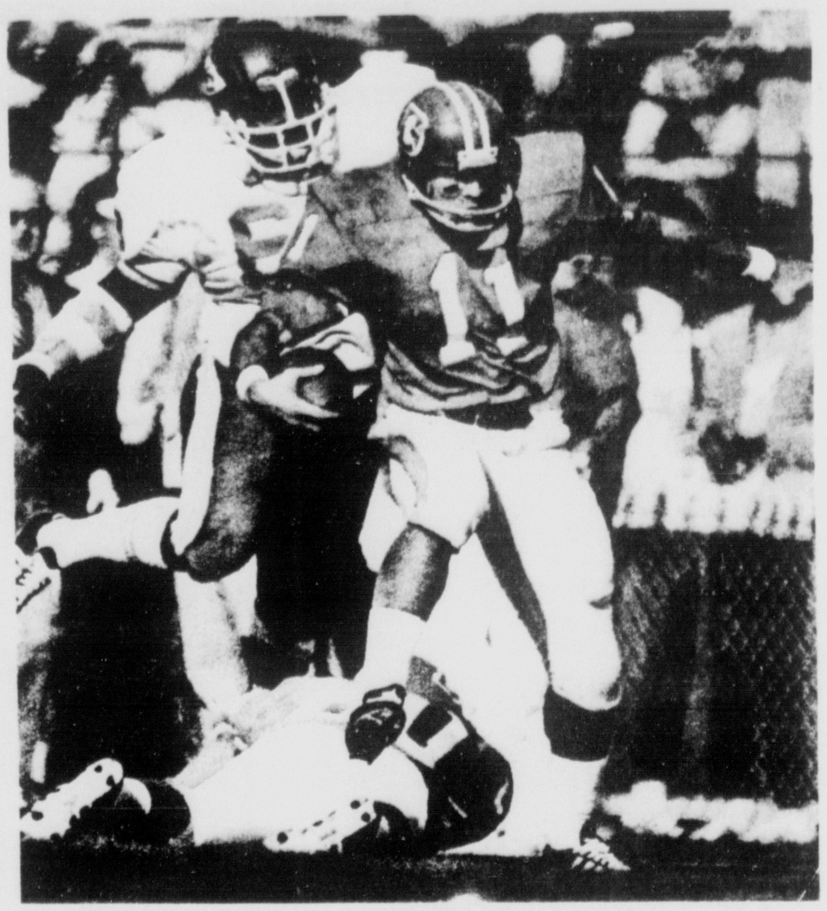

Now, all six of us will st back and await tonight's final outcome ... watch tomorrow's paper for the results.

My thanks to Tony, Randy and Grid Iron Harry for their assistance ... More of you try your skills next week.

P.S. -- Tony was 7 of 10 last week while the Flash was 6-3, the Poet 7-2 and your's truly 7-2. By the way Monett is favored 18-7 over Webb City ... A cardinal farm club ... WHAT? ... that's what it says ... Webb City Cardinals.

JOE KAPP, in his new Boston uniform, watcheson the sidelines with the Patriots' coach, Clive Rush.

Homecoming At SHS

Tonight's game at Public school stadium is something special, its not only a clash with the Northern Division leading Cape Central Tigers, it's HOMECOMING...

And the enthusiasm inspired by the student body and the famed "Red Peppers" of SHS, who have decorated the football players houses, should add little needed spark to the team which is 1-5 on the season.

An all- senior lineup is vieing for the Homeconing queen title, which will be bestowed upon either Beth Waldman, Claudia Mulcaha and Peggy McMullin, after the game in ceremonies at the cafeteria.

Coach Bill Priday's pack faces the almost "impossible," as most of the team he started the season with is injured and a number of juniors and sophomores have been called upon.

Cape has lost but one game this season, that to St. Louis county power Parkway West, and has but two defeats to its credit over the past two seasons as it bowed in the semi- finals of the state 4A playoffs last season to perienial champion McCluer.

The Bengals have one of the state's top receivers in Ed Slaughter and have one of the top rated defensive teams in the area.

Coach Priday hasn't had any major problems to correct this season, but has been faced with a lot of little things that experience can only correct.

He's been without his number one quarterback much of the season and has been pleagued with finding the right offensive combinations as the SHS crew has been shutout in four the six games this season.

Good news came earlier this week when it was announced that All- Conference back Mike Shaffer, who has been out all season, has been given a doctors release and has checked out equipment. But, he is doubtful he will see action in tonight's fierce battle, but the news of his return is sure to perk up the Big Red.

Bess Among Speakers At Clinic

The basketball and wrestling coaching clinic sponsored by the Missouri State High School Activities Association in cooperation with the University of Missouri Athletic Department will be held next weekend at the Ramada Inn in Columbia.

Included among the speakers will be Gene Bess, head coach at Three Rivers junior college in Poplar Bluff, who led Oran high school to the runner-up spot in the 1969 State class M tournament, losing the final game to Dixon 76-74. In last six years of coaching in high school ranks, his teams won 15 of 18 championships in conference and invitational tournaments claimed seven conference titles in a row and showed a career mark of 237-95 for stints with Lesterville, Anniston and Oran high schools. Bess went to Three Rivers as an assistant to Bob Cradic last season and now holds the head job as Cradic moved up to Southeast Misssouri State, where Bess is a graduate. He teaches fast break offense.

No Shortage Of Ducks, Geese

By GEORGE SITTERLEY
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — There'll be no shortage of ducks and geese in Missouri when the 1970 waterfowl season opens a half hour before sunrise Saturday.

The State Conservation Department said today there are good concentrations of birds in most areas but hujters may be a bit confused by the complcated regulations, especially on goose hunting.

Duck limits have been raised substantially, reflecting what has been reported to be an exceptional nesting season in the pothole areas.

But Mike Milonsky, a waterfowl biologist for the department, said the duck population may not be as great as estimated earlier. He said Minnesota has reported a relatively poor duck hunting season and the number of ducks in Missouri's Swan Lake zone is substantially below the same date a year ago.

Food and weather conditions may have been partially responsiible, he said. The Swan Lake zone had 50,000 ducks feeding and resting there a year ago. This week the count showed only 32,250.

That's still a lot of ducks. Teal, baldpate and pintails make up the bulk of the duck flock at Swan Lake but some Mallards are coming in. The zone has 92,305 geese, about 5,000 less tha a year ago.

Around Squaw Creek Federa Refuge in Holt County conservation census takers counted 51,000 Blue and Snow Geese, 3,100 Canadas and about 70,000 ducks.

All other popular hunting areas in the northern half of the state have good populations of waterfowl, the Conservation Department reported. The southern areas are still relatively free of waterfowl concentrations.

The weather should be warm for the opening day and there may be some rain, the forecasters have reported.

The season and the limits on ducks are relatively simple.

The season runs from Oct. 24 through Dec. 17. The daily limit is six and the possession limit is eight. But there's a bonus of two scaup daily.

Not more than two Mallards may be taken in a daily limit, with a possession limit of four. Not more than two may be Wood Ducks, with four in possession, and not more than one may be either a Canvasback or Redhead.

That brings up the complicated zone system on geese.

First, there are two zones in which geese may not be taken.

One, the Bull Shoals zone, includes the counties of Barry, Stone and Ozark deep in southern Missouri.

The other is called the Montrose Lake zone and is bounded by Missouri 18 on the north, Missouri 13 and 52 on the east, Missouri 52 and Route K on the south and Route K on the west.

The season is closed there to protect growing flocks of giant Canadas, once thought to be extinct.

The general season — outside the zones—runs from Oct. 24 through Jan. 1 and the daily and possession limits are five and five. Not more than two may be Canadas and not more than two may be White-Fronted Geese.

Here are the seasons and limits in the special zones:

Squaw Creek (Atchison and Holt Counties and the portions of Andrew and Nodaway Counties west of U.S. 71) — season from Oct. 24 through Jan. 1 on Blue, Snow and White-Fronted Geese but the season on Canadas closes Nov. 22. The daily and possession limits are five and five except no more than two Canadas a day and only until Nov. 22.

Swan Lake (bounded on the west by U.S. 65, on the north by U.S. 36, on the east by Missouri 5 and on the south by Missouri 240) — season from Oct. 24 through Dec. 15 except that goose shooting will stop earlier if the harvest reaches 15,000. The limits are five and five except that no more than one Canada may be bagged any one day and not more than four may be a hunter's possession.

The new Lower Mississippi zone is made up ofall Missouri lying east of U.S. 67 south of Crystal City. The season there runs from Dec. 1 through Jan. 24. The daily limit is two Canadas and the possession limit is four.

Fight Errupts, Pistons Win Again

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Lanier continues to impress in his rookie season with the Detroit Pistons.

He made another impression Thursday night — on Bob Christian's nose.

Brawny Bob staggered the Atlanta rookie with a left hook and some fighting-mad players emptied onto the court from the Pistons' ND Hawks' benches.

The would-be battlers soon went back to the business at hand and the red-hot Pistons went on to punch out the Hawks 120-101 in a National Basketball Association game.

The action occurred when Lanier and Christian became entangled in a fight for a loose ball.

Both Lanier and Christian were hit with personal fouls—but neither was ejected. However, referee Darell Garrison said that seven Pistons and four Hawks who left the benches probably would be fined, Under a new league rule, only coaches can leave the benches when a fight erupts.

The New York Knicks were up to their old second-half magic, coming back for a 95-92 victory over the San Francisco Warriors and San Diego beat Cleveland 140-110 in other NBA games Thursday night.

In the American Basketball Association, Memphis outscored Kentucky 109-99, Virginia turned back Carolina 114-110 and the Floridians beat the New York Nets 110-100.

Detroit, only unbeaten team in the NBA, extended its victory string to six. The Pistons had a 17-point lead in the second quarter, but the Hawks, led by Pete Maravich's 23 points, sliced the margin to six. The Detroit scored 13 stright and ran away to hide from Atlanta.

Mike Riordan provided the spark with nine fourth-quarter points that gave the Knicks a comeback victory, their trademark in last year's title-winning season. He delivered the killing blow, a 20-foot jumper with 40 seconds left.

Elvin Hayes put on a powerhouse show, scoring 40 points to pace the San Diego victory over winless Cleveland.

Memphis ran away from a 50-50 halftime tie with a 35-15 third-quarter margin that buried Kentucky. Pros guard Steve Jones rifled in 10 points in the period.

Virginia collected 100 rebounds but had to rally for a last-quarter victory over Carolina. Two free throws by Roland Taylor sent the Squires ahead for good 92-91 at the 9:29 mark.

Larry jones completed a three-point play to snap a 95-95 tie with five minutes left, leading the Floridians over the Nets.

Pitt In Spotlight

Press Sports Writer

The Pitt Panthers, once one of the most feared teams in the country, but just a bunch of tame pussycats the last few years, take the spotlight away from the top-ranked Ohio State Buckeyes in college football Saturday.

The Panthers scored an upset 36-35 victory over West Virginia last week with a fantastic second half rally after trailing 35-8.

That was Pitt's fourth straight triumph after an opening game defeat by UCLA and recalled the glory days of the Jock Sutherland coaching era in the 1920s and 1930s.

How they do against the Miami Hurricanes at Pitt Stadium Saturday should indicate whether the Panthers actually are on the way back or if the upset of West Virginia was just a flash in the pan.

Sutherland's teams were famous for their running game and ability to block and tackle. That seems to be the style of Pitt's current coach, Carl Depasqua. He calls it "fundamentally sound football, Western Pennsylvania style."

The No. 1 Buckeyes, whose trademark also is a strong running attack, play at Illinois and are favored to win their fifth straight against no defeats.

In other games, involving The Associated Press Top Ten, No. 2 Texas plays at Rice and the Longhorns are favored to make five in a row against the Owls. Third-ranked Notre Dame, 5-0, has an open date, while No. 4 Nebraska, unbeaten, but tied, is host to Oklahoma State.

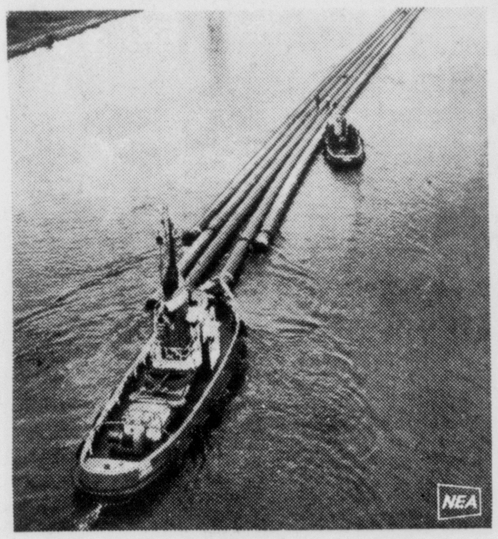

Michigan, No. 5, goes after its sixth straight against Minnesota at Ann Arbor. Auburn, No. 6, entertains Louisiana State, Air Force, No. 7, is at home to Boston College, Stanford, No. 8, is at UCLA, No. 9, Arkansas, meets Wichita State at Little Rock, and Southern California, No. 10, is at Oregon.

Minnesota at Michigan is one of four games that will be regionally televised by ABC. The others are Penn State at Army, Florida at Tennessee and Dartmouth at Harvard.

The Florida at Tennessee game may provide some fireworks. Doug Dickey, now Florida coach, was the Tennessee coach last season.

Stanford, led by quarterback Jim Plunkett, is aiming for the Rose Bowl and the Indians do not plan to let UCLA upset their hopes.

Other leading games include Colorado at Missouri, Kansas State at Oklahoma, Southern Mississippi at Mississippi State, Mississippi at Vanderbilt, Georgia at Kentucky, Arizona at Utah and New Mexico at Wyoming.

FLOATING PIPES are headed for the bottom. Too long to be transported by any other means, a bundle of plastic pipes, each measuring more than 1,200 feet, is pulled down river at start of a water journey from Germany to France. Pipes are to be used for underwater sewer system being constructed near Bordeaux.

Missouri Pacific Expands Systems

ST. LOUIS, -- The Missouri Pacific System has placed orders for 500 new freight cars and 25 diesel locomotoves at a cost of more than $16,000,000, Downing B. Jenks, president, announced today.

Freight car orders include 400 box cars, 50½ feet in length with 70-ton capacity, to be built by the Amcar Division, ACF Industries, at St. Louis, and 100 covered hopper cars of 100-ton capacity, also to be built by Amcar at its Huntington, West Virginia, plant.

All the new freight cars will be equipped with roller bearings to provide safer, high - speed operation, and the box cars will be equipped with special cushioning devices to provide greater protection for freight.

MoPac has also ordered 25 locomotives of 3,000 HP, including 20 SD-40's from the Electro - Motive Division of General Motors Corp., and five U-30-C's from the General Electric Corp.

Since 1961, when MoPac began an intensive program of plant improvement and modernization and expansion of its equipment, the railroad has purchased 16,600 new freight cars and 373 new locomotives at a cost of more than $322,000,000, Mr. Jenks pointed out.

The Military An Honored Place

by Maj. Gen. R. McC Tompkins

Just a few months ago, there came to my desk the report of the Seapower Subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee.

This vital survey, directed by the Chairman in September of 1968, lays it right on the line. It shows, in excruciating detail that we, the world's greatest naval power, have let things slide backwards to an alarming degree. The average age of our ships, the lack of planned replacements, the unavailability of necessary spare parts for obsolescent ships, and a host of related factors have placed us in a most serious posture.

This vital report is unemotional, factual — and completely frightening in the evidence it presents.

I shall content myself with reading only three short sentences. First, the final sentence in Section 605, under the heading "U.S. Naval Strategy":

"Without a strong and modern Navy, which permits many additional choices in international affairs, the United States could find itself in a position of being unable to carry out commitments or of paying too high a price to do so."

And two sections under the heading "Conclusions":

Section 801: "The U.S. Navy is in a serious condition primarily because of the age of its ships."

Section 802: "That the Navy is as effective as it is now is a great tribute to the efforts and the devotion to duty of its officers and men."

I would like to re - emphasize that final section. That our ships keep going, under the burden of operational commitments more severe than any "peacetime'. Navy has ever experienced is indeed a great tribute. And it comes about by the hard work and leadership of a comparatively small percentage of career officers and enlisted men, coupled with the innate pride and patriotism of the the majority of the willing, if noncareer, personnel who man them.

But it is the career men, officers and enlisted alike, who are the key to our success in continuing to operate under today's terribly difficult conditions. If cost-effectiveness ever got around to considering these men, they would be found to be one of America's great bargains. The only trouble is that there are not enough men such as these. And, because this is so, in the long haul the ability of the Navy to serve national policy to the full potential of sea power can only diminsh.

The ship - building and modernization program envisaged by the Chairman will ensure, we pray, that by the 1980's the United States should have the required fleet of about 850 ships of modern design and construction.

Someone once said: "A profession is neither a hobby nor an enthusiasm. It is not something embarked on in an emergency, however necessary at times that may be. A profession is something to which you give your life."

And it is one of the inescapable facts of this decade that fewer and fewer young men are attracted to a military career, to adopt it as their profession, to spend their useful life following the Flag. The appeal of a military career is verging on an all - time low. Thousands of fine young Americans serve their obligated service gallantly and without complaint. But to make a career out of it? — "no thank you" at best, or "don't be silly" more frequently.

Why is it that young men who have proven themselves in battle are unwilling to become career men in one of the Services?

There is, understandably, a national weariness with the unending atmosphere of war and crisis. It has gone on for a long time — a perpetual dark shadow over American life. And concurrently there has grown up a not inconsiderable body of opinion in this country that believes the wretched military, by some legerdemain, are at the bottom of the whole mess.

These are not my opinions alone — the unilateral opinions of an aging professional. Far from it.

On 4 June, 1969, the President of the United States addressed the graduating class at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs. Among many other things, President Nixon said:

"... It is open season on the Armed Forces ... The military profession is derided in some of the so-called best circles in America. Patriotism is considered by some to be a backward fetish of the uneducated and unsophisticated."

Cartoonists usually depict the military mind as residing in a gross, venal, medal -encrusted slob, pop -eyed, greedy, and obviously without a redeeming trait.

But the truth of the matter is quite different. Perhaps general Shepherd put the record straight when, in the course of testifying before Subcommittee No. 2 of the House Armed Services Committee on 7 February, 1955, he said:

"There is no more honorable profession than a career spent in the service of one,s Country. The military profession is founded upon ideals of devotion to duty, acceptance of responsibility, and absolute loyalty. Such a career demands of those who follow it complete dedication to these unselfish principles. There are individuals who accept service to their Country primarily for the intangible rewards that follow such loyaltv and devotion."

Dear Mr. Blanton:

In case you are wondering whom to blame for this instrusion on your time, I'll tell you that Bill Fahy of the Muscatine Journal helped me find the name of a paper in Sikeston and told me he knew you personally and that you were formerly from Iowa. He did not suggest that I write you-- that was my own idea.

I am trying to help a woman establish her date of birth. She claims to have been born in Morehouse, Missouri on November 25, 1918. Her parents were Elmer A. and Isadora Thompson Delameter. Her name was Violet Frances Delameter.

Sometimes birth announcements are made in newspapers and I thought if you do not keep old issues, perhaps there is a public library there which has old copies. If so, do you know anyone who could make a photo copy of such a birth announcement?

Any kind of a reply will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,
T. F. Beveridge

These are the qualities that I believe are typical of the so-called military mind. And if that be so, and every experience of my service life proves it to be so, then I say "Thank God for the military mind."

For over 30 years, I have had the honor as a professional Marine of following our Flag all over the world. And long before my time, other men followed that Flag and fought for it and all it stands for. But all of us — 1775 and 1970 — have one thing in common and that is an unequivocable belief in the United States. For better or for worse, it is OUR Country.

And I cannot understand how there could be Americans who, in President Nixon's own words, consider patriotism the backward fetish of the uneducated and unsophisticated. Something is badly out of focus.

But all our people should understand exactly what it is that this country of ours is facing — now and in the future.

We, the United States — by default rather than by choice — find ourselves with the fate of the 20th century in our hands. With Britain's decline, our burdens become greater and more inescapable. Ho Chi Minh has stated that Viet Nam is the first of the wars of liberation and others will follow when they have won Viet Nam.

There is no doubt in my mind that for a long time to come, the Armed Services of the United States will be called upon to serve in parts of the globe as yet undreamed of. Granted that it might be rather old - fashioned to mention it in this day and age, but we may find a parallel in the 19th century for our present requirement to fight limited wars.

Between 1824 and 1901, the British Army fought in some 29 wars and campaigns that have been officially dignified by names. And there were hundreds of other bitter little fights that went on in the most improbable places and were never considered of sufficient stature to be listed in the approved battle honors. But a man can get killed just as dead at a trail - crossing on the Khyber Pass as he can in the Argonne or Normandy or Khe Sanh. He just has less company.

But this was the type of burden that Great Britain had to carry — an now the burden is ours. The British Army and the Royal Navy have marched and sailed over the horizon and into the pages of history. They are only a token force of a gallant people.

And we shoulder this burden at a time of unrest and dissent that has not been seen in this beloved Country of ours since those tragic years between 1860 and 1865.

We are fighting this bitter expensive war in Viet Nam. The reasons for our involvement go back 20-22-24 years, depending on how you reckon these things. But there's no sense in hashing them over now. The fact is — we're there.

I can tell you though that this Country has never been involved in a task more difficult than the one we're facing in Viet Nam. And it is a task that places a heavy burden on our younger generation.

Wars, you know, are fought mainly by young men — the riflemen and their lieutentnts. They are the ones who go forward to the point of contact where war is girt with horrors. And these young men — age 18 to 23, perhaps — endure these horrors and overcome them along with the reasonable promptings of fear and the yearnings of the belly and do what has to be done.

And while the lieutenant and his men are facing the terrible realities of life and death in some stinking rice paddy, we're treated to some pretty curious spectacles here at home where one can safely indulge in all kinds of irrational activities.

There are the infragrant yippie packs caterwauling that America is 200 years mistaken.

Then that irrational, irresponsible minority of nonpeople people whose sole product is division, whose single achievement is the treasonable encouragement of the enemy — collect blood for the Viet Cong, praise Ho Chi Minh and dishonor the American Flag.

And we then have certain circles that choose to emphasize such treason as the "peace movement," mass criminality as "demonstration," and exhibitionistic anarchy as "protest" and "dissent."

It might be well for some of our fellow citizens to understand, as James Mill said, that war is an ugly thing, but it is not the ugliest of things. The decayed and degraded state of moral and patriotic feeling that thinks nothing is worth war is much worse. The man who has nothing for which he is willing to fight, who cares for nothing more than his own personal safety, is a miserable creature who has no chance of being free unless made and kept so by the exertions of better men than himself.

Somewhere there is a long line of silent men who probably watch with consternation and amazement what we are doing to this Country and ourselves. They are the "Better Men" who helped secure our nation in battles large and small from the earliest days down through almost 200 years of our history.

Those half - forgotten actions such as Brandywine and Trenton and Yorktown; San Jacinto and Chapultepec; El CAney; Belleau Woods, Soissons, Blanc Mount, St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

And in our own memory and experience, the great battles of World War II and the bitter fighting in Korea.

Today those "Better Men" are the men who carry that lonely, heavy burden in Viet Nam where there are no 40-hour weeks and no campus riots.

We say that a tour of duty in Viet Nam for a Marine is 13 months. And so it is. But thus far in this war there are over 11,000 Marines who won't be completing their normal tours. They were killed in action.

They didn't stage sit -down strikes. They went because they deemed it their duty — whatever that might mean to you. They went because their Country needed them there.

They went for the guys with the long hair and the protest signs, the draft card burners, the hippies, the anti - everything people who have nothing better to do.

They went for all the men who have fought gallantly on many battlefields to keep our Country free.

They went for all Americans — including those who have abdicated their privileges of being an American.

They went because they were men and, being such, they carried the burden of the free world on their young shoulders.

If and when people comprehend the deadly realities of the confrontation going on today in Viet Nam — and where tomorrow, God only knows — then, and only then, will fighting men be accorded the respect they so richly deserve.

Montalban Seeks Better Latin American Image

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Spanish-speaking American boy sees Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid wipe out a regiment of Bolivian soldiers. He sees the Wild Bunch annihilate the Mexican army. It's only natural for him to say, 'Gee, I wish I were an Anglo.'"

Ricardo Montalban was speaking about a cause that he and other Latin Americans are devoting themselves to: the portrayal of their race in movies and television.

Three organizations have been formed to combat what the members consider libels of Spanish-Americans. Their objections range from the somnolent peon in movies to the cornchip bandito of television commercials.

Charisma, headed by Ray Martell, is one of the groups. Jusiticia-- Justice for Chicanos in the Motion Picture and Television Industry -- is another. Justicia, led by Ray Andrade, this month held a meeting with leaders of the Actor, Director, Producer and Writer guilds, who agreed to urge the need to "re-create the image of the Chicano in American society."

Nosotros --We -- is the third group and its president is actor Montalban.

"The three organizations differ in degrees of militancy," explained Montalban. ' 'We have had our differences in the past, but now I think we have established lines of communication. I think we all function well together, because we are agreed that something needs to be done."

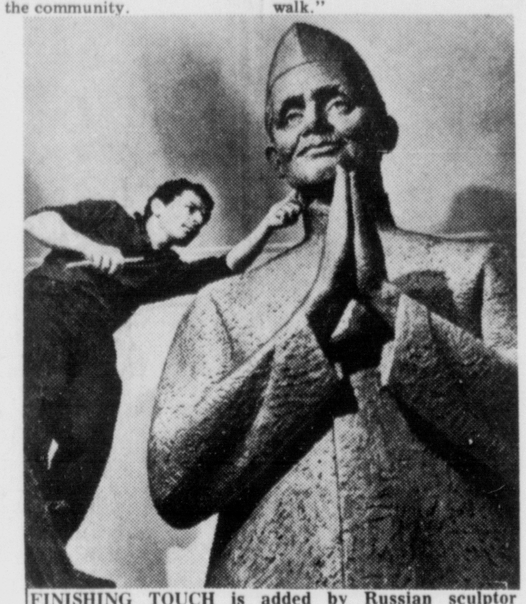

Nosotros has three major aims, the actor said. They are:

"1. To correct the image of the Spanish-speaking American, who is portrayed either as the sleepy, lazy, pastoral peon or as a bandit. We are the largest invisible minority in the United States, yet no other aspects of our people are shown in films. This is an immense disservice to the young people, who consider themselves outcasts; they cannot identify with bandits or comedic figures.

"2. To make sure that a man is not denied work in the industry because his name happens to be Garcia. There have been many examples of actors who have been unable to find jobs until they anglicized their names. Then they have been turned down for Latin roles 'because you don't look Mexican.' That is ridiculous; Mexicans are as varied in appearance as people in the United States.

"3. To stimulate actors to go further in their profession by study. We want to establish workshops, first for professionals and then as a means of developing talent from the community.

' 'This has been the stickiest part of our program. We have 237 members and a teacher can handle no more than eight to 10 students. We are trying to get the workshop aspect organized; we must crawl before we can walk."

FINISHING TOUCH is added by Russian sculptor Yakov Shapiro to memorial to the late Indian Premier Shastri. The 17-foot tall bronze statue will be unveiled in a street after Shastri at Tashkent, U.S.S.R.

A CHARTER FOR TYRANNY

The Constitution of the United States of America, the most perfect form of republican government ever devised, has been twisted by judicial interpretation and subject to manipulation by power - hungry office holders in recent decades. But open appeals for abolition of the Constitution are rarely voiced.

One such proposal was disclosed this fall when the CENTER MAGAZINE, of the radical Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, published) Rexford Guy Tugwell's proposed new Constitution for the "United Republics of America."

To the older generation of Americans, Mr. Tugwell is a voice from the New Deal past. It will surprise many people, no doubt, to learn that Mr. Tugwell, one of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's original "Brain Trusters," is alive and well in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Older Americans won't be surprised, however, that Mr. Tugwell wants to abolish the 50 states and substitute 20 "republics." Back in the 1930's, Mr. Tugwell did his best to steer America in the direction of a collectivist society. It is not startling, therefore, to find that he and the Center have devised a plan of government that will remind many citizens of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

The plan for junking the U.S. Constitution should not be regarded merely as the twilight years from of an old New Deal collectivist. The Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions plays an acitve role in the radicalization of contemporary America. Many of Mr. Tugwell's notions are likely to end up on the ideological conveyor belt of the New Left.

Mr. Tugwell's plan would create the conditions for tyranny. The States, guardians of local rights and of individual liberties, would be abolished. The substitute "republics" would be a fiction, for Mr. Tugwell says that these governments could be removed for ineptitude.

With the elimination of the States, the basis of the U.S. Senate also would be abolished. Mr. Tugwell would create a new Senate composed of former high public officials. These "senators" would be appointed. In short, they would be what the British in the 18th century called 'placemen," tools of the party in power. Thus the division of powers, which under the U.S. Constitution has prevented autocracy, would be shattered.

The President would serve one nine - year term. This long term would effectively remove the Chief Executive from the control of the people and the coordinate authority of the Congress.

Collectivist control of the economy would be built into the new Constitution. There would be a regulatory branch of government which would "supervise" the operations of private enterprise. This regulatory branch would have corporate enterprises join in multi - company groups to set standards. This is simply Benito Mussolini's "Corporate State," a prime feature of the fascist system in Italy in the 1920's and 1930's. Under this system, private enterprise became the tool of the central government.

This type of economic proposal is to be expected from Mr. Tugwell. He went on record years ago as saying that "unrestricted individual competition is the death, not the life of trade." The Tugwell plan would be the death of constructive capitalism in the United States. The new Constitution would clearly state that economic planning is the right and function of a central planning authority.

Under the Tugwell design, traditional rights and liberties would be undercut in many ways. For instance, the Tugwell constitution for the "United Republics of America" would not contain a provision for trial by jury. No provision would be made for the existing right to bear arms.

Mr. Tugwell says that his draft constitution is "as American as apple pie." Given the proposed destruction of the States and creation of an all-powerful central government, some citizens may conclude the plan is as Russian as caviar. The Tugwell constitution is bound to strike many Americans as a charter for tyranny never known on this side of the Atlantic.

Draft Exemption - Ministerial and Otherwise

A bearded disciple of peace raises his arms, flicks his cigarette lighter and eternally consigns his draft card to purgatory. Then he bugs off to Canada or Katmandu before the feds catch him.

That's draft evasion, Case One.

Case Two. A neat young man in a business suit boards a plane whose destination is the town where his draft board is located. With him is an official of the company where he works. The officials's time, the plane tickets and the night,s lodging upon arrival — all are paid for by the company. Is this draft evasion? Or is it the use of the law to exempt a young man whose services, the company believes, are more necessary to its war contracts than on the battlefield?

Both examples have occurred countless times amid the ever growing controversy about the Draft, or the Military Selective Service Act as it is known. What seems to escape the argument is that the Draft doesn't have to be controversial. It IS controversial, but only because of its inequities, the lies that befall the ears of draft board officials and the special privileges that fall to the rich and influential.

Case Three brings the matter into even greater focus. A loud -mouthed charmer with a gift of gab and a fancy for fractured poetry becomes world boxfight champion, then a minister who will take on all comers except the Viet Cong. He is, of course, Cassius Clay or Muhammed Ali.

Who is to say that his faith is not genuinely felt, that he would not fight in any war? Who can say that Clay is just being choosy about his opponents, that perhaps his evasive tactics are more ideological than theological? The burden upon the draft board is impossible for mere men. It would be better for God to have created the Draft and to make each decision about exemption.

Draft exemptions for ministers and conscientious objectors have good and valid reasons behind them. Nevertheless, it is a way out of fighting a war, and any mountebank with talent can take advantage of it. But draft exemption attempts have become exercises in fantasy. One can pretend to be gay or a dope addict or have flat feet and be excused. When bearded Marxists and part - time preachers are added to the legions of abusers, something is wrong. The doors need to be shut so that enough men can be around to defend the country. Indeed, it would even help if the object of the war was to win it.

When a man of Clay's notoriety fights the draft, the problem becomes one of example, of precedent. The federal government begins to fret over the possibility of its troops being trounced on the battlefield while even bigger battles rage in each of the thousands of draft boards.

Ministers may be entitled to draft exemptions, but if everybody is to become a minister or a conscientious objector, who is to fight the country's battles? That begs the question, perhaps, but look at the draft controversy — is it not raging? Aren't too many people fighting not to fight in Viet Nam? An exemption for Simon Peter entitles one to Judas, and each exemption breeds geometrically. The draft fuss has progressed from one which complains of inequities to the now popular idea of doing away with the whole mess. The all -volunteer army concept evokes glee in its proponents and causes nightmares for those whose responsibility is defense of the country. It is a whole new bag, just as controversial as the draft itself.

As of now, Cassius is just as entitled to an exemption as any other minister, all things being equal. But the government presses its case because it doesn't think he's an ordained minister. Does the system guarantee religious liberty to all except Black Muslims whose famous son can flatten anybody in the ring?

This is the question raised by Henry A Buchanan, a clergyman who raises many questions about ministerial draft exemptions in an article in LIBERTY magazine. His position is unique: ministerial exemptions are so much troublemaking balder - dash. Do away with them, he says.

He notes that the 4D exemption requires only for a man to be ordained, or licensed or approved as a ministerial student enrolled in either a religious or secular school. A candidate for the ministry can remain in college until past his 26th birthday, when he would be too old for the draft. "There's no law," Rev. Buchanan observes wryly, "against dropping the ministry in favor of industry." Exemptions apply, he says, to a minister even if he functions as one only sporadically.

About 102,000 Americans are currently exempt from the draft by virture of being ministers.

Rev. Buchanan recalls that during World War II, he was given a 4D classification ("I was told that 4D covers lunatics, criminals and preachers") while his friends, classmates and brothers were drafted.

"It was not fitting that a man of God should shed blood, and besides, as a minister I was performing a vital service to society ...

"Let's face it, I am no better than my brothers, no more essential than my friends, no more deserving of exemption than my classmates — or Muhammed Ali. But I was exempt — and I was not hard to convince."

He believes that the refusal of Cassius to enter into military service raises the whole question of ministerial exemption. He wants to know if ministers are more sensitive than others about killing or being killed, if the government really has a special responsibility to ministers, or if a minister deserves immunity from normal responsibilities of citizenship.

"I believe the answer is no. If military service is part of the duty of American citizenship, then a minister should not be exempt from military service."

He offers two solutions. The first is to allow conscientious objection on an individual basis regardless of ministerial connection. "After all, you don't have to be religious to believe it is wrong to shoot people."

Whether this would help, only Heaven knows. The claim of conscientious objection can be anyone's; draft boards would be playing the role of The Shadow, seeking to know what evil, or virtue, lurks or dwells in the mind of the objector.

Clergyman Buchanan says approximately 7,000 conscientious objectors are serving in the armed forces, many of them armed only with bandages and medicine. "It's no job for a coward," he says, adding: "Let Cassius throw in his lot with the C.O.'s, but let's not lose sight of the real issue just because the champ doesn't want to fight the Viet Cong."

Another solution is to draft ministers. "Why not draft them and assign them to pastoral duties with the troops?" As for the fact that chaplain quotas are filled with volunteers, he says there is always room for more men of God in the service. Does every frightened soldier obtain the needed counsel he ought to get? Can one man of the cross say enough services for the dying all around him?

It is agonizing irony that draft exemption, especially ministerial, should become controversial at this time. The Soviet Union and North Viet Nam have waged years of bloody battle against religion. If South Viet Nam should fall, religion would be as ruthlessly persecuted there as it has in other Communist countries. However one feels about the war in Viet Nam, the record is clear that the minister who is draft exempt has opted to leave the religious of South Viet Nam to the undender practices of communism's antireligious elite.

There may be little, physically, a minister can do in a theater of war, but his presence is a vote for the propagation of his faith while the battle around him is one for men's souls as well as their bodies. The Creator may be a jealous God, but he hasn't yet tortured a minister as the Rumanian Communists tortured Rev. Richard Wurmbrand.

As Rev. Buchanan puts it:

"A man may justifiably refuse to kill in the service of his country's political ends because his God said, Thou shalt not kill. But God has not commanded him to withhold all service, and even those who bear arms are deserving of his noncombatant support because they bear arms in his behalf as well as in their own."

Draft avoidance is not just a matter of personal religious belief. It is too often a Communist Pied Piper's parade, led by those who wish to Hell the U.S. didn't have any armed force at all.

The draft is under attack because those who run it haven't been honest with everyone. It was wide open to attack, and the furor over it is nothing more than a harvest of dishonesty.

Southeast Missouri State College Homecoming Will Have Many Alumni

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State College has not yet come up with an accurate way to figure how many graduates and former students come back into town for the college's annual Homecoming observance. Officials say it is in the thousands.

Whatever the number, it's a sure bet the crowd will be larger than usual this year as alumni, lured by the attraction of a "lady friend" from their college days, come back "home" the last weekend of this month.

Wives may get jealous, but their attitudes will not affect their husbands' determination to return to the campus to renew friendship with Miss Helen Bedford, head of the department of fine and applied arts and the college's "oldest" faculty member in terms of tenure.

Miss Bedford, who joined the faculty in 1925 and has never been away from the campus for very long since, is sort of the focal point of this year's Homecoming celebration Oct. 29-31.

Oh, there will be the usual pep rallies, concerts, dances, and the Homecoming queen crowning, all of which are mostly of interest to students. And there will be reunions for the Classes of 1920, 1945, and 1960, but the special reunion for Miss Bedford will likely draw more alumni to the campus than the three others put together.

For through the years Miss Bedford has not secluded herself in the art department. Instead she has branched out and been involved in campus activities ranging from being the advisor for 27 years of a literary club, which is now a social sorority, to working closely with the college's varsity athletes from 1931-1952.

Miss Bedford will be in the spotlight beginning at 8 p.m. Oct. 30 when a reception in her honor opens in Kent Library. In conjunction with the reception will be an art exhibit featuring pictures, ceramics, pottery, jewelry -- in fact, any worthy creative works by Miss Bedford's former students. The exhibit will be hung in both Kent Library and the Art- Home Economics Building and will remain on display through Nov. 6.

The reception at Kent will continue until 11 p.m., but the big moment of the night will come at 9 when a portrait of her is unveiled. The portrait will be formally presented to the college at the annual alumni luncheon the next day.

The artist doing the portrait is Mrs. Irene Hazel of Caruthersville. Mrs. Hazel established the art department in Caruthersville schools and taught art there for 32 years. She also taught at various colleges in the area, including Southeast Missouri State, during various summers.

Mrs. Hazel has shown her work throughout the area and is frequently called upon as a judge for art shows.

Following the reception Miss Bedford will next be in the spotlight at the luncheon which begins at 11 a.m. on Oct. 31. Not only will her portrait be presented to the college at this time, but a book of letters from former student who have expressed appreciation for the "spark of inspiration Miss Bedford generated" will also be given to Miss Bedford.

Dr. H. O. Grauel, himself no stranger to the campus since he came here in 1928, is chairman of the book of letters committee. He said there is still time for former students to contribute letters, but added they must be in his hands by Oct. 30.

The letters, Dr. Grauel said, should be typed or written on standard 8½ by 11¼ inch margin on the left for binding.

After the luncheon Miss Bedford will proceed to Houck Stadium and will be escorted to a specially - decorated box seat by an "honor guard" of Varsity Club men from the 1931-52 era. During the halftime of the football game and following the game, Miss Bedford will remain in her box to greet well- wishers.

Miss Hattie L. Eicholtz, director of alumni affairs at Southeast Missouri State, said contributions are being accepted to defray costs of the portrait which Mrs. Hazel is painting. Checks should be sent to her, she said, and made payable to the SEMO Alumni Association Bedford Fund.

If more money than needed is received, Miss Eicholtz said, Miss Bedford and the committee planning the special reunion in her honor will jointly decide how it is to be used.

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of schools at Sikeston, is chairman of the overall planning committee for the reunion. Miss Marea Daume, assistant professor of art, is in charge of arranging for the special art show.

Texas Eastern Net Income Rises for Quarter

HOUSTON, TEXAS,--Net income of Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation for the quarter ended September 30, 1970, was 61 cents per share, compared to 50 cents per share earned in the third quarter of 1969, B.D. Goodrich, president, reported today. Net income applicable to common stock for the quarter was $12,261,000, compared to $9,894,000 for the same period in 1969. Earnings improvements in petroleum activites and Western system natural gas operations were largely responsible for the gain, Mr. Goodrich said.

The Board of Directors, at its meeting October 16, increased the dividend on the common stock by 12 cents per share on an annual basis to an indicated rate of $1.52 per share, up from the $1.40 in effect since December 1, 1970, to holders of record on November 6, 1970.

During the quarter, Texas Eastern's exploration efforts produced hydrocarbon discoveries in two parts of the world. In the Texas offshore area, the Superior Group, in whch Texas Eastern has a 20 percent interest, announced that hydracarbons had been discovered approximatley 40 miles south of Freeport in the Gul of Mexico in Federal Block A-1. Additional drilling on this structure will be required to determine the potential of the discovery. In Norwegian waters of the North Sea, the Amoco-Noco Group of which Texas Eastern is a member, reported and oil discovery not far from the significant Ekofisk Field discovered by the Phillips Group. Fruther confirmation drilling will be required to determine the commercial quality of the find. Texas Eastern has interests ranging from 25 to 28 percent in 1.4 million acres licensed to the Amoco-Noco Group.

Transwestern Pipeline Company, the company's Western natural gas system subsidiary, filed a settlement agreement of its rate increase application with the Federal Power Commission of October 8. Commission approval is anticipated and figures released today reflect all appropriate adjustments. The higher rates had been put into effect on June 16, 1970.

Hearings on Texas Eastern's application to increase rates on its Eastern will begin collecting higher rates effective November 1, 1970. subject to refund of any portion not allowed in the final determination. The higher collections will be at the approximate rate of $56,000,000 annually, reduced from about $60,000,000 originally requested because of subsequent reductions in rates of pipeline suppliers and in income taxes.

Construction is underway on facilities needed to receive gas from Louisiana Land and Exploration Company in south Louisiana. The facilities, which are estimated to cost $23,152,000, will provide an initial delivery capacity of some 124 million cubic feet per day. The gas purchase contract provides for the delivery of 300 billion cubic feet of gas.

On September 30, Texas Eastern put into service its 600,000 -barrel liquefied natural gas storage tank and liquefaction facilities at Staten Island, New York. The storage tank is expected to be filled to capacity by the beginning of the winter heating season.

In early October, the company unveiled its master plan concept for the development of the 33-block area it has acquired in the central business district of Houston. Included in the overall development are plans for high-and low-rise office buildings, hotels, large and small retail stores, entertainment facilities, apartments and ample parking facilities. The first increment of development will cover nine blocks and is scheduled to begin next year.

McDonoughs Mark Fifth Year at First Assembly

First Assembly of God observes the fifth universary of its pastors, the Rev. and Mrs. Thurman McDonough this Sunday.

The McDonoughs came to Sikeston from the Tulsa, Okla. metropolitan area where they pastored the Sand Springs First Assembly.

Under their leadership the local congregation has retired its indebtedness on the church building and parsonage as well as making numerous improvements. Many people have been converted not only in special revival services but in the regular services of the church and through the efforts of the pastor in personal evangelism.

Rev. and Mrs. T. A. McDonough

The church maintains a vital music and youth ministry. Recently the Rev. and Mrs. Jim Heikes, from Corona, California were added to the full time staff as ministers in these particular fields. They also help in many other of the church's multiple ministries.

Special messages are planned by the pastor for the Sunday morning service and the Rev. Gayle Jackson for the Sunday evening service. Special music is planned by the music department for both morning and evening.

The new choir robes have arrived and will be used Sunday for the first time.

The church is located at 306 South Kingshighway. The time of service is: 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. and 5:30 and 7 p.m.

Also, special revival services will be conducted at the church with the "Musical Vanns" of Toledo, Ohio, at 7 each evening, except Mondays and Tuesdays, beginning Wednesday night, Oct. 28, through Nov. 8. A warm welcome awaits those who wish to attend any or all of these services.

First Methodist to Hear District Superintendent

Dr. E. W. Bartley, Jr., Superintendent of the Poplar Bluff- Sikeston District of the United Methodist Church, will be the speaker Sunday morning at the First United Methodist Church service of worship at 10:45 in the Rex Theater on Center Street.

He will preach on the subject, "A Plea for Positive Protestantism." The church's pastor, the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, cordially invites the public to this service.

Dr. Bartley is the son of the late Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Bartley who served the church here during the period of 1941-45. He is a graduate of Central Methodist College in Fayette in 1937, of Vanderbilt University in Nashville in 1940, and in 1967 Central College conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Dr. E. W. Bartley

During World War II he was a navy chaplain.

He has served with distinction several of the leading churches and has been on most of the major boards and commissions of the Methodist conferences in Missouri.

Gospel Singing Set at Jackson

JACKSON — A gospel singing program is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Calvary Baptist Church.

Singers will be the Gospel Merry Makers, the Meyers Family, the Gospel Tones, the Ambassadors and the featured Emmanuel Gospel Singers of Batesville, Ark.

The church is located on Blanche St. off Highway 61. The public is invited.

DAVID POLING

Eskaton Profits; Public Benefits

By DAVID POLING

OAKLAND, Cal. (NEA)

Whenever a nonprofit, charitable corporation makes money, the public is surprised and puzzled. The image of a nonprofit organization is usually one of deficit finance, cautious leadership and housing in a past-tense building. Eskaton, headquartered in Oakland, Calif., is the reverse.

This group of ministers and laymen (all brands and denominations) is on the top scale of salaries, plunges into multimillion-dollar housing projects and health-care units, leases airplanes for instant commuting and expects 30 per cent growth annually. Eskaton is eager to serve the needs of humanity and tired of waiting for the church, government or private enterprise to get on board.

Josh Wilson, chief executive officer of Eskaton, insists that the nonprofit tax shelter does not mean that his corporation should run in the red. He believes that nonprofit groups like Eskaton should expect high performance in hospital administration and housing projects—performance that makes a profit which will give the public more and better service. Instead of paying a dividend in cash to investors, the public should receive greater service. In the Eskaton hospitals that this writer visited, the public is enjoying a first-rate bonus in care and services.

Hospitals and health care agencies that are ailing seek advice or plead for an Eskaton management takeover. Church officials, community leaders, physicians and administrators from Florida, Texas, Missouri and Arizona are in touch with Eskaton.

Josh Wilson is besieged by clergymen who want to be part of his growing empire and see the larger ministry that he has established that is free from bureaucratic budgets and ecclesiastical committees. Businessmen are intrigued by his competent handling of million-dollar budgets and the professional staff that has been assembled to make this Christian service agency hum. Medical people have been impressed with the Eskaton operation of the American River Hospital in Sacramento, the Mt. Shasta Community Hospital and the County Hospital in Colusa, Calif. Government funding officials are eager to consider Eskaton applications since they deliver such a high level of service, maintain rigid internal audits and are free from narrow doctrinal ambitions.

Yet Eskaton is a Christian effort. Josh Wilson wants the Christian community to be saturated with risk for the sake of mankind. He is determined to see Eskaton as a functioning model of ecumenicity and is able to work with conservatives and liberals alike. Presently he is working on a book dealing with bureaucracy and religion. His first publishing effort was a private distribution of material for worship, aimed at the underground church and house study groups. It sold more than 5,000, entirely by word of mouth.

The explosion of energy and vision that has marked the appearance of Eskaton is due to the fierce dedication and loyalty of the Eskaton crowd. Wilson, like Billy Graham and Oral Roberts, is a powerful speaker and a commanding person. But for Wilson, evangelism is found in health, housing and education.

New Lutheran Leader Says Church to Endure

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The newly elected president of the American Lutheran Church, the Rev. Dr. Kent S. Knutson, says Christianity "is suffering a state of nerves but it's still basically strong."

It has "pangs of despair and sometimes is discouraged by its inability to handle the tremendous problems which we see all about us," he said, "but the Church is a very tenacious institution—a very viable and stable kind of community that will endure for a very long time."

Dr. Knutson, 46, was elected Thursday night to head the 2.5million-member denomination after an all-day series of ballots at the Church's biennial convention. He is president of Wartburg Theological Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa.

The voting started with 10 candidates, and the field gradually was cut down to two on the decisive fourth ballot, when Dr. Knutson won by a majority of 566 to 411 over the Rev. Dr. David W. Preus, 48, of Minneapolis.

To be installed Saturday, Dr. Knutson will take over the Church's top post at the end of the year, succeeding the Rev. Dr. Fredrik A. Schiotz, 69, who is retiring after a decade in the office.

A short, black-haired man in dark-rimmed glasses, Dr. Knutson and his ash blonde wife Norma have six children, three boys and three girls, ranging in age from 6 to 17. Two were adopted.

Born in Goldfield, Iowa, he was educated in this country and in Europe. He served a Staten Island parish for two years before joining the faculty of Lutheran Seminary in St. Paul, Minn., in 1958. He became president of Wartburg Seminary in 1969.

"Relations with youth are one of the really great tasks that the Church has to face," Dr. Knutson told newsmen after his election. "Youth represents trends that will establish the Church of the future."

Dr. Knutson said Christian thought is in a "state that might be called chaotic", but that scholarly inquiry doesn't affect basically "the way the Christian community understands its faith."

Revival to Open At Circle City

CIRCLE CITY — Revival services will begin Sunday in the Pentecostal Church and continued through Saturday, Nov. 7.

Old fashioned preaching at 7:30 p.m. nightly will feature messages on deliverance, healing and salvation for the soul by Evangelist Edward Kinder, former pastor of Morehouse.

Pastor Bob Crotts extends a cordial welcome to the services to all.

Guest Speaker To Fill Pulpit

NEW MADRID — Charles simpson of Sikeston will be guest speaker Sunday at 10:45 a.m. services at the First United Methodist Church in observance of Layman's Day

The pastor, the Rev. Earl G. Statler, will be in St. Louis to attend capping ceremonies at Barnes Hospital School of Nursing, in which his daughter, Debby Statler will participate. The Rev. Statler will preach at the LaSalle United Methodist Church in St. Louis in the morning.

Episcopal Convention Concludes

HOUSTON (AP) — Presiding Bishop John E. Hines says unification and solidification were the highlights of the 12-day 63rd triennial Episcopal Church convention that ended Thursday.

"It was one of unification on the part of some who were at odds with each other, ending not only in agreement but with understandings of position," he said.

Bishop Hines himself was under fire at the start of the convention, primarily from criticism resulting from the 1967 Seattle convention approving a $9 million program "for economic self-development of minorities and the poor."

A South Bend, Ind., meeting of the church's executive council was a bit stormy last year amid charges that part of the program's funds had gone to militant groups.

The Houston sessions reaffirmed the program but sought to overcome the criticism by establishing guidelines on violence and by splitting its $23.9 million budget into "commitment" and "faith" segments.

A $12.4 million commitment involves the absolute minimum the church believes it must spend. The $11.5 million "faith" segment for other programs is to be met only if the dioceses meet their national budget quotas.

Hines listed five significant actions by the convention:

1. Reaffirmation and better understanding of the self-help program.

2. Admission of women for the first time to the House of Delegates, which, with the House of Bisnops, is one unit of the bicameral legislative system that governs the 3.4 million-member church.

3. A resolution to study a proposed plan for unification of the Episcopal Church with several other denominations.

4. Approval of a three-year trial period for the first extensive departures from the 16th century Book of Common prayer. The convention approved a series of new worship services, including the admission of unconfirmed children to partake of communion. In a last-minute action, it approved a trial period for a mocernized service for the ordination of bishops, priests and deacons.

5. Recognition of the need to administer to youth in a form in which youth will have a determining voice.

Vatican Seeks New Contacts With Reds

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has embarked on another drive to improve its relations with Communist governments from Eastern Europe to Peking.

Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary are the current targets in Europe and the Vatican observer at the United Nations has indicated that the Roman Catholic Church favors a U.N. seat for Red China.

Pope Paul VI has often stressed the need for dialogue between the Holy See and the Communist governments.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is visiting Italy Nov. 10-16, and a Vatican spokesman said he "most likely" will call on the Pope. The two men had a long talk when the Soviet minister made his first official visit to Italy in 1966.

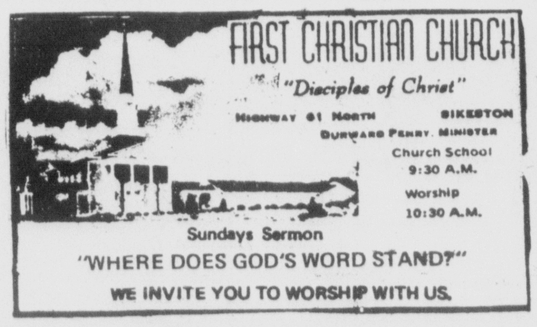

The pontiff is expected to illustrate his policy toward Red China when he addresses a message to all Asia during his trip to the Philippines and Australia at the end of November.

The Vatican re-established long broken diplomatic ties with Communist Yugoslavia on Aug. 14. This appeared to act as a spur to the present diplomatic activity.

The Polish press hailed the Vatican-Yugoslav exchange of ambassadors as evidence that the Church and Red regimes can reach workable compromises.

The Vatican is a long way from exchanging ambassadors with other East European regimes. However, the current contacts indicate that the cold war relapse in Church-state relations induced by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia is wearing off.

MDEM Adds to Staff And Elects Officers

HAYTI — The appointment of Miss Judy Casassa and and Royce Chaney to the staff of the Missouri Delta Ecumenical Ministry (MDEM) was announced today by Michael Pannwitz, executive director.

Miss Casassa will work as a specialist on problems of the aging, with special emphasis on setting up nursing home districts in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties, Pannwitz said.

Chaney will be concerned with economic development and the churches' mission in the community throughout the three-county area.

Support for the two new staff members comes from the Catholic Church for Miss Casassa and from the Methodist Church for Chaney.

Formed in 1968, MDEM has been working with poor families in the Bootheel in an effort to help themselves get out of poverty. Programs have been developed in migrant education, agricultural cooperatives, economic development and more recently in self-help housing and nursing home districts.

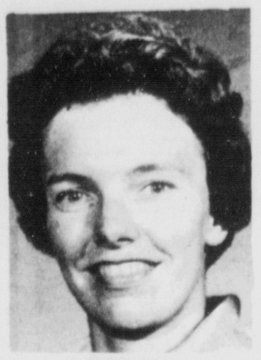

MDEM's office is located in Hayti.

Miss Casassa hails from Buffalo, N.Y. and Chaney is from Cumberland, Md.

At its October board of directors meeting the MDEM elected Father Wally Ellinger, New Madrid, President; Jack Stapleton Jr., Kennett, vice president; Richard F. Spitzer Jr. Parma, Treasurer; Mrs. Helen Boswell, Steele, secretary and chose the Rev. Robert W. Core, Kennett, and William L. Jones, Hayti, to serve on the executive committee.

Support for MDEM comes from the Episcopalean, Presbyterian, Methodist and Catholic churches as well as from the Danforth Foundation.

In addition to the officers mentioned above, the following persons serve as directors on MDEM's board: Alex Cooper, Hayti, Bill Cooper, Kennett, James George, Caruthersville, the Rev. Paul Harlan, Kennett, Mrs. Irmgard Jones, Hayti, Mrs. Sara Jo Littrell, Wardell, the Rev. Tom Prentice, Malden, Mrs. Robbie Townes, Hayti, Bill Welman, Kennett, and Mrs. Vivian Whitener, Hayti.

Murphy Family To Sing Sunday At Eastside

The Murphy Family, gospel singing family of Poplar Bluff, will be guest singers Sunday at Eastside Church of the Nazarene in Sikeston.

Roger, age, 11, sings tenor for the group. Steve, a freshman in college, sings bass. Judy and Vicky, also teens, make up the rest of the singing group. Mr. & Mrs. Howard Murphy, parents of the singers, also travel with them, with Mr. Murphy playing the piano and assisting in some of the singing.

The Rally Day services will begin with the Sunday School at 9:30; morning worship with the Murphy Family singers begins at 10:30 a.m., and a basket dinner will be shared following the morning worship hour. Cold drinks, coffee and table service will be provided. Everyone is welcome to attend both the singing and the dinner.

The Eastside Church of the Nazarene is located at the corner of Ralph Avenue and Betty Street and is pastored by the Rev. Elton W. House.

First Assembly Youth Group Holds Banquet

The Christ's Ambassadors Youth Group of the First Assembly of God Church held its first annual Speed The Light Banquet Saturday evening, Oct. 17 at the Ramada Inn.

Speed the Light is the Missions Program of the Assemblies of God Young People.

"Eternal Crowns" was the theme for the banquet.

Miss Diane Hull, president of the Christ Ambassadors, was the mistress of ceremonies and Master of ceremonies was Rev. J. R. Heikes, director of youth and music.

Special music was presented by Miss Alice Mills. Miss Mills is an evangelist with the Assemblies of God and is presently holding a revival at Bethel Assembly of God in Cape Girardeau.

The special speaker was Rev. J. S. Watson. Rev. Watson is the pastor of Bethel Assembly of God in Cape Girardeau. He spoke of the past accomplishments of the Christ Ambassadors group to the Speed the Light Program and challenged the group to set even higher goals for the future.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the Speed the Light King and Queen, and Prince and Princess. Three candidates were chosen to run for each title. Each penny given counted as one vote. Each candidate worked for votes for one month prior to the banquet. Over $450 was raised for Missions in this contest.

Marsha Newman was crowned Queen, Lanny Laub, King, Marilyn Hull, Princess, and Allen Hornback, Prince.

Decorations were carried out in Christ Ambassador colors of blue and gold. Flower arrangements of gold were placed in the centers of the tables. Mrs. Joan Bixler and Mrs. Brenda Ballard were in charge of decorations.

Officers of the Christ Ambassador are: Diane Hull, president; Patti Bollinger, vice president; Debbie Bollinger, secretary, and Joan Bixler, Speed the Light Chairman.

Witnesses in Week Of Special Meetings

"Visiting The World Headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses" is the title of a color slide program to be presented Sunday at the local Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The presentation will signal the climax of a week of special meetings for area Witnesses and will be given by a representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, Tola B. Cook.

The congregation's public Bible speaking class and ministry development class was conducted Tuesday.

The one-hour discussion of the Bible aid, "Then Is Finished the Mystery of God," ordinarily held Tuesday evening, was discussed Thursday night as 8 o'clock, according to witness minister, Russell Knauer.

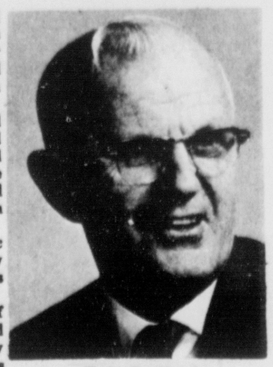

"A special meeting has been planned for 8 p.m.Saturday, called 'New Things Learned.' For an hour we will review new information we've learned from the Bible in the last six months," Knauer stated.

"And finally," he said, "we will have "World Headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses', via slides, at 9:30 Sunday morning."

During his visit, Cook, who supervises the activity of 16 nearby Witness congregations, will be training local Witnesses in their house-to-house ministry, the minister said.

"We will be calling in the city and on homes in the rurals, inviting people to our special meetings. But in addition, Mr. Cook is going to be training us to be more proficient in using the Bible to answer Scriptural questions," Knauer said.

"We also are going to be offering to study the Bible with interested persons in their homes," he added.

WAITING FOR THE GOOD NEWS

Often a newly saved person will say, "I've been wanting to do this for some time. I'm so glad you came." These words do more than express joy and gratitude. They remind us that the timely reception of gospel challenge is too often delayed or denied altogether by the doubts, fears, and unbelief of Christians.

How come this person had to wait to satisfy his spiritual hunger? Was it because some believers had decided to 'live' their faith rather than talk about it? Neither sharing the salvation message nor living the Christian faith are offered as options. Both are imperatives in God's evangelism! When we "walk" the faith but do not "talk" the gospel, the communication from God to lost souls weakens, and conviction is generally slowed down. Blurred, confused signals result when the progress is reversed.

Accordingly, we can expect both clarity and strength in the transmission when both conditions are favorable. A loud, clear message produces a definite effect, and the effect is intensified as the warning is repeated. When God gets through like this and when Christians are standing by to help sinners make their responses to God, the combination of human need and divine remedy will put a quick end to man's lostness.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

We have just been informed by the publishers that Mrs Helen Reuber and Mrs. Nellie Wilson, of our faculty, will appear in the 1970 edition of OUTSTANDING EDUCATORS OF AMERICA. Mrs. Reuber is a counselor at Senior High and Mrs. Wilson teaches at Middle School.

The OUTSTANDING EDUCATORS OF AMERICA is an annual program designed to recognize and honor teachers who have distinguished themselves by service, achievement and leadership in education. About 5,000 of the country's foremost educators are featured each year.

These teachers were nominated by faculty associates.

We like to have vistors in the schools, especially parents of children who are enrolled. They are welcome at any time but we would appreciate it if arrangements to see individual teachers would be made through the principal of the school involved. Sometimes parents go directly to the classroom which may at times interfere with class procedure or the teacher's program of instruction. We are sure that parents do not realize that they may be interferring with their child's education in this manner but it sometimes happens. So, a phone call to the principal, prior to the visit, will give the teacher time to plan assignments or to make arrangements whereby the visitor can be received.

Many schools in Missouri have had difficulty in passing even minimum levies to support their educational program for the current year. Onlyafter seven years or eight repeated elections, have some levies been passed and these are expensive. It is estimated that in St. Louis County alone, schools spent over $100,000 in resubmitting elections. If the schools were to operate, they had to be resubmitted until passed. Some schools have not yet voted in their levies and if they do not succeed on the next try, they will be forced to close the schools for the year. The reasons why most of these levies failed to pass is simply the unrealistic two thirds majority requirement in the state constitution. What this means is that two voters who want schools for their children must overcome one voter who does not care whether the schools operate or not. In these times of increasing of resistance to taxes, it is almost impossible to get a 2/3 majority for a school tax levy and especially as this is about the only tax where the voters can express their will. Unfortunately, resentment at federal, state- in fact all taxes over which they have no voice or control, is vented on the schools by a "NO" vote.

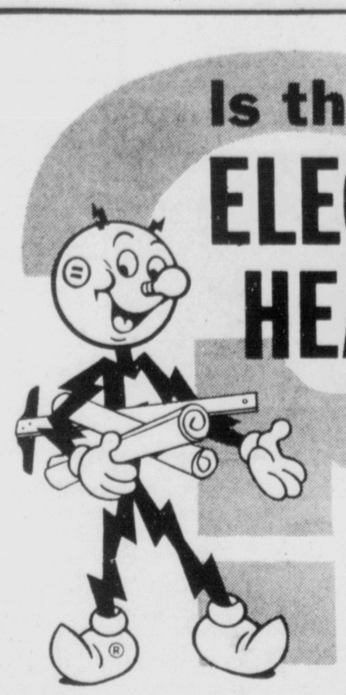

Missouri's citizens can change this unfair situation, if they desire, when they go to the polls on November 3. Amendment No. 3 would permit boards of education to levy up to $1.85 on the $100 of assessed valuation, as opposed to the present $1.25 limit and then would allow the voters of the district to approve, if they so desired, an additional levy of $3.70 per $100 of assessed valuation by majority vote. This would make it possible for school districts to levy up to $5.55 by simple majority if those citizens who want to educate their children wish to do so.

It would take nothing away from the voter as a majority approval would still be required and additional protection to the taxpayer is provided in that levies above that $1.85 would have to be approved each year by majority vote.

Missouri is one of only six states in the nation that require more than a majority vote to raise money to operate its schools.

Not only would the approval of Constitutional Amendment No. 3 put the state in line with the democratic process of a majority vote, but could also result in saving taxpayers the added costs of repeated elections, so many times necessary to operate the schools at all. If we believe in education, and most do, we think, we can demonstrate that belief by supporting Amendment No. 3 on November 3. Better still, urge your relatives, friends and neighbors to vote for this essential school bill.

Tennyson wrote his "The Charge of the Light Brigade" in late 1854. The charge took place during the Crimean War at Balaklava in the Russian Crimea on Oct. 25, 1854.

School System Needs Funds To Maintain Proper Level

EDITORS NOTE: This is a Missouri State Teachers Association report of a study on the effect of the existing financial condition on the educational program in the public schools of Missouri.

The educational program in Missouri's public schools is being curtailed in many school districts as a result of the existing financial condition - this at a time when the demands on education are increasing by leaps and bounds. This report is based on information secured by the Missouri State Teachers Association after the opening of school this fall from 368 Missouri school districts which include more than 90 percent of Missouri's public school pupils.

The present financial condition of Missouri's schools has resulted from the failure of the state to meet its commitment to increase state school funds $35 million for the 1970- 71 school year, as scheduled in the 1969 revised school foundation program law. The defeat of Proposition 1, the state individual and corporation income tax revision, at the April 7 referendum election left the state short of funds and school districts are expected to receive only $234 million this year rather than $269 million as provided by law. Many districts have proposed higher local levies to replace state funds which had been anticipated. While voter approval has been given to higher levies in many districts, difficulty has been experienced in other districts, especially where the two- thirds vote is required. Numerous elections have been held and some districts have elections scheduled in October. The increase in the cost of living of approximately 6 percent a year had depreciated school revenues by that amount.

The information received on the 12- page survey returned from 368 school districts reveals numerous retrenchments in educational programs, deferring of planned educational improvements and a depletion of operating balances foretelling greater reductions next year unless state funds are increased.

Information on the courses offered indicates that many school districts have reduced the breadth of their educational programs. Many planned additions to existing programs have been postponed. Illustrative of curtailments, 86 reductions were reported in courses in business and 47 business courses were eliminated. Thirty- six offerings in foreign languages were reduced and 26 foreign language courses were eliminated.

In the area of programs for handicapped pupils, the number of districts reducing specific programs were as follows: emotionally disturbed, 5; hard of hearing, 3; children with learning disabilities, 10; mentally retarded, 19; orthopedically handicapped, 1; partially sighted, 1; and speech corrections, 11. Twenty- three school districts have postponed planned programs for speech correction and 32 have delayed additional courses planned for the mentally retarded.

In the category of special educational programs and services, the effect of the present financial condition was shown with the reduction or elimination of existing programs and the postponement of planned programs. For example, guidance programs were reduced in 46 school districts, eliminated in 10 school districts, and planned programs postponed in 92 school districts. Library services were reduced in 70 school districts, eliminated in 4 school districts, and planned programs postponed in 82 school districts. Existing summer school programs were reduced in 16 school districts, eliminated in 10 school districts, and planned summer programs postponed in 35 school districts. This all in spite of the fact that state aid for summer schools is available for the first time. Adult education programs were reduced in 17 school districts and existing adult education programs eliminated in 3 school districts. Remedial reading programs were reduced in 26 school districts and eliminated in 17 school districts. Forty- five school districts have postponed planned remedial reading programs. Elementary school vocal music programs were reduced in 48 school districts and eliminated in 5 school districts while elementary school instrumental music programs were reduced in 31 school districts and eliminated in 2 school districts.

With respect to service programs for pupils, the greatest reductions were made in health services, transportation and food service. Forty school districts have reported the reduction of student health services while their elimination was reported in four school districts. Fifty- five school districts have reduced food service programs and one has eliminated food service. Forty- one school districts have reduced transportation programs.

The average class- size has increased in 136 school districts, or 37 percent of districts reporting, as a result of the existing financial condition. This reflects the reduction in the number or professional personnel employed- both classroom teachers and those with specialized assignment. Sixty- nine districts (19 percent) report reduction or elimination of classroom teaching positions. One hundred and ten school districts (30 percent) reported that they had postponed the employment of classroom teachers to reduce class size. Specialized personnel that were reported reduced in numbers were guidance counselors, remedial reading teachers, school nurses and school librarians.

School districts also reported a reduction in other personnel employed. Reduction in teacher aides was reported in 29 school districts and their elimination was reported in 18 school districts. Secretarial and clerical assistants were reduced in 38 school districts. Custodial personnel were reduced in 29 school districts. Lunch room supervisors were reduced in 14 school districts and playground supervisors were reduced in 13 school districts.

Nowhere is the existing financial condition of schools more evident than in teachers' salaries. With the cost of living advancing 6 percent per year, an increase of less than that percent is in fact a reduction in salary. Only 22 school districts (29 percent) reported an increase of 6 percent or more in teachers' salaries. Other districts reported as follows: 201 (56 percent), small increases in teahcers' salaries; 28 districts, planned increases postponed; 25 districts, no increase in teachers' salaries; and 2 districts, a decrease in teachers' salaries. One hundred school districts reported that 896 teachers had left positions in their schools due to the existing financial condition.

SCHOOL SYSTEM:

Fringe benefits for school employees, such as insurance programs and sick leave plans, have been reduced in a few districts while many districts have postponed the adoption of insurance programs for school employees.

Reduction in the purchase of instructional supplies and equipment reflect the existing financial condition of school districts. Reduced purchase of textbooks was reported by 119 school districts, of library and reference books by 176 school districts, of audio- visual materials by 176 school districts, of instructional materials by 197 school districts and of instructional equipment by 177 school districts. Thirty- seven school districts reported that they had eliminated purchase of one of the above categories.

The maintenance and improvement of the physical plant also are being affected by existing financial condition. Maintenance and repairs have been reduced in 152 school districts and eliminated in 5 school districts. The purchase of furniture has been reduced in 146 school districts and eliminated in 46 school districts. The purchase of equipment for buildings and playgrounds has been reduced in 143 school districts and eliminated in 37 school districts. The remodeling and renovating of existing school buildings have been reduced in 91 school districts, eliminated in 33 school districts and planned improvements postponed in 63 school districts.

The purchase of school buses has been reduced in 35 school districts, eliminated in 16 school districts and planned purchases postponed in 45 school districts. Improvements involving fire protection, safety and health, have been reduced in 30 school districts, eliminated in 7 school districts and planned improvements postponed in 31 school districts.

Another reflection of the existing financial condition of school districts is the adoption or increase of student fees. For example, 24 school districts have adopted instructional materials fees while in 23 school districts existing instructional materials fees have been increased. Vocational class fees have been adopted in 15 school districts and increased in 21 districts. Other student fees that have been adopted or increased are for textbook rental, driver education, typing, art and locker.

Programs in the nature of community service which involve the use of school facilities have been reduced or eliminated due to existing financial condition of schools. In 45 school districts this related to the free public use of school buildings. In 21 school districts curtailments related to youth groups such as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

One of the most serious features of the existing financial condition of school districts is the extent to which school district have been forced to deplete operating balances to maintain existing programs when confronted by increasing costs, and static state and local revenue. One hundred and eight-six school districts, or more than 50 per cent of those reporting, have budgeted for current operations this year a greater amount than anticipated receipts for the year. Operating deficits are scattered over the state and range from small amounts to $3,900,000 in the Kansas City school district and $5,500,000 in St. Louis. Some other anticipated operating deficits are as follows: Parkway, $800,000; Springfield, $413,915; Waynesville, $120,000; Lindbergh, $350,000; St. Joseph, $300,000; Poplar Bluff, $153,640; Fort Osage, $350,000; Kirksville, $84,483; Joplin, $150,000; Cape Girrdeau, $274,353; and Independence, $344,886. The operating deficits reported by the 186 school districts total approximately $21 million.

In summary, Everett Keith, Executive Secretary, Missouri State Teachers Association, makes the following statement:

"To decrease the effectiveness of the public school program for the children and youth of Missouri ata time like this is unthinkable. It has long-range damaging effect for the future of our state and the citiens who live in it.

"In fact, if greatly increased state support is not made available for next school year, it is obvious from the utilization of balances this year that we have not experienced anything in the impairment of educational programs this year compared to what it will be next school year. The $21 million deficit in the 368 districts in spite of increased levies and reduced programs should be a warning signal easily understood. The situation is truly critical, demanding the attention of all citizens of the state."

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

The executive editor of a well - known New York publishing firm will be in your area in early Dec. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religious books, etc.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. You will promptly receive a confirmation for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

That's The Law

Undies Not Meant For Exposure

By Jack Straus, LL.B.

As Suzy was stepping off an airplane, a rascally gust of wind caught her by surprise and lifted her skirt high above her waist. And, while Suzy standing in her polka-dot panties might have been glanced over except for a few appreciative whistles, a magazine photographer caught the incident in his shutters as he was taking some shots of the plane. Thus, the scene was preserved for posterity as well as the austerity of the conservative readers of the magazine. The picture was printed and Suzy sued the publisher for damages.

"A girl's panties are a private matter," she told the judge, "particularly when she's in them."

"We didn't take her picture purposely," responded the publisher

"She happened to be part of a group in a public scene. As a magazine that prints news worthy articles of public interest," concluded the publisher, "we had every right to release that picture. It showed a real life scene at an airport."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the magazine pay for printing the over-exposed picture?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that it would be illogical, wrong and unjust to hold that one who is involuntarily and instantaneously enmeshed in an embarrassing situation forfeits her right of privacy merely because she happens at the moment to be part of a public scene. What's more, concluded the judge, there was nothing of legitimate news value in the picture.

Based upon a 1964 Alabama Supreme Court Decision.

HST State Of Emergency Still in Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — On Dec. 16, 1950, after Red China intervened in the Korean War, President Harry S. Truman declared a state of emergency, which gave him some awesome powers. That proclamation still is in effect and available for use.

There are 134 special provisions, covering every phase of American life—even to the point of suspending the 40-hour week for munitions plant workers.

The emergency powers, all granted by Congress in various statutes, compare with those now in effect in Canada.

One paragraph reads, without elaboration:

"During a war or declared national emergency, the President may detail members of the armed forces to give military assistance to countries requesting it when he considers it in th interest of national defense."

There are other extraordinary powers in the law that are not brought into effect by the declaration of an emergency, but by a state of war or a state of hostilities.

Judge Makes Position Clear On Disruptions

ST. LOUIS (AP)—U.S. Dist. Court Judge James H. Meredith warned Monday he would not tolerate disruption of court proceedings as he opened the trial of a Washington University student charged with violating the Federal Antiriot Act.

On trial is Howard Mechanic, 22. He is accused of interfering with police and firemen during a May 5 protest demonstration in which the Washington University Air Force ROTC building was burned.

About 50 young persons were in the courtroom Monday and Judge Meredith took note of their presence.

"I'm glad to have you here," he said. Then he proceeded to read aloud the federal statute covering interference with federal court proceedings "just so we understand each other."

Meredith pointed out that the penalty for violation of the federal law is a maximum one year in jail and a $5,000 fine.

Mechanic and seven other persons were convicted of contempt of a St. Louis County Circuit Court injunction barring disruptive activities at Washington University. He was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500. The sentence is being reviewed by the St. Louis Court of Appeals. A ruling is expected next month.

TOUR FILMED

LOS ANGELES (AP) MGM will film a portion of Elvis Presley's first concert tour in over 13 years for the full-length motion picture titled "Elvis." Academy Award winning director, Denis Sanders, is photographing the tour which began Sept. 9. Stops of Presley's tour include Detroit, St. Louis, Miami, Tampa and Mobile.

Rocky Vibrant On Vote Trail

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)

At 61, bidding for his fourth term, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller may be just about the best campaigner in the United States.

He has been running either for governor or president virtually every two years since 1958, but he's still energetic, zestful, unflappable when the booing is rough, capable of turning a dry text almost into a comic strip.

If he beats his unmagnetic but still potent Democratic adversary, Arthur Goldberg, the reasons will be many. None will be more important than the fact that Rocky hasn't lost the ability to draw a crowd on a street walk (even in Democratic Brooklyn) or charge a room with electricity as I saw him do this summer at the governors' conference.

At a Staten Island party fund-raiser, the governor was praising State Sen. John Marchi, the man who tried in 1969 to beat Mayor John Lindsay, as "philosophical, perceptive, aware." People in the audience smiled as if to ask, "What's that got to do with you, Rocky?" He responded:

"No, it's true, I like that stuff. There are too many of us who are down there—I won't say in the mud, but in the grass."

Mindful of his critics' harping on the difficulties of the now state-owned Long Island Railroad, the governor chopped right back:

"If we hadn't bought that line six years ago, it would be out of existence and most of those guys would be walking. Or they'd be driving their cars on 26-lane highways and, if they came into Manhattan, John Lindsay would be towing them all away, anyway."

Nobody knows better than Rockefeller that this is a tough race, what with Goldberg's inevitably strong grasp on New York's big Jewish vote and the pull on the blacks exerted by black State Sen. Basil Paterson, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor.

Yet the governor still has some things going for him in the city, where in the past he ran steadily better even as his upstate margin dropped off. He has more labor endorsements than ever and should grab a lot of Italian, Irish and other conservative ethnic votes. He may do very well with the Puerto Ricans, who resent the Paterson nomination as neglectful of them.

Few have noticed, too, that registration in the city is off by perhaps 250,000, which probably will hurt Goldberg more than Rocky.

It hardly needs to be said that, as usual, Rockefeller's campaign is lavishly financed, superbly staffed, expertly geared to television. Put all that together with his incredible good luck and his still-winking electricity and you've given the formidable Goldberg a huge worry.

A HEADY HOME RUN

DOUBLE BREAK

DENVER (AP) Bad breaks came in pairs for 12-year-old Andy Sengenberger. While playing tag on a school playground he fell and broke his right arm.

Exactly one week later Andy slipped while running on wet grass and fractured the left elbow.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. (Hebrews 4:12)

PRAYER: Thank You, Lord, for Your Word. We are glad You gave it to us to show us the way to You. And help us to be directed by it in our daily lives. Amen.----------

Today is Friday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 1970. There are 69 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, American troops saw their first action on the Western Front in World War I.

On this date:

In 1776, during the Revolutionary War, Gen. George Washington's troops withdrew from Manhattan Island.

In 1910, at Fort Wayne, Ind., Blanche Scott became the first woman to make a solo public airplane flight.

In 1915, 25,000 women marched in New York, demanding the right to vote in all 48 states.

In 1929, stock prices started dropping in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1942, the World War II battle of Egypt began as the British 8th Army launched a big offensive against Axis forces at El Alamein.

In 1947, a forest fire destroyed much of the resort town of Bar Harbor, Maine.

Ten years ago — The leader of rebels in Algeria said he had no hope for a negotiated settlement with France.

Five years ago — President Lyndon B. Johnson flew to his Texas ranch to recuperate from a gall bladder operation.

One year ago — Peace was restored in Chile after a rebellion by soldiers.

Dexter City Council OKs Tennis Courts

DEXTER — Action was stated Monday night for tennis courts for Dexter, after years of discussion by the city government.

The action came at the regular Monday night session of the Dexter City Council.

The Council agreed to forward $2,500 in the Dexter Park Board, which hopes to begin construction of the courts yet this fall.

The plans, explained by Park Board president W. F. Webb, call for two lighted, concrete courts, which will be in the East City Park. Webb explained to the Council that the price estimate for one court is $3,218, with the total cost probably approaching $6,500.

Webb explained that the Park Board has been saving money for the project for some four years, and in addition, a few civic groups have donated money to the court fund. The Park Board president asked the Council to advance $2,500 to the Park Board, which will be repaid as the Board has extra money. No time limit was placed on the repayment.

The courts will be a few feet short of championship size, and Ward Two Alderman Lehman Godwin pointed out to Webb that he will contact Dexter tennis players and see if they would like to contribute to place the added width on the court to make it full championship size.

Mayor Willis Conner strongly supported the tennis court plan and urged the Council to OK the $2,500 advance, which they did unanimously.

Park Board president Webb also read a thank you letter from the Fram Corporation, thanking the Park Board for cleaning up the City Park prior to the annual Fram employee picnic held recently.

In other action before the Council, Mayor Conner, at the request of City Attorney Paul McGhee appointed Aldermen Godwin, Lawrence Reaves and Richard Miller to a special zoning committee. McGhee, according to the Mayor, felt the zoning report submitted by the City Planning Commission was too lengthy and complicated. Conner reported that McGhee had suggested that the appointed committee meet with a regional zoning specialist from the Bootheel Economic Council soon to determine if a more suitable zoning plan can be formulated.

The zoning report from the City Planning Commission was submitted with the Comprehensive City Plan earlier this year. Chairman of that zoning committee was Yewell Camp, with Barney Miller, Percy Clippard, Alvin Smyth, Terry Howes, Gary Dowdy and Lee Trammell, Sr., serving on the committee.

Other business before the Council Monday night included:

An ordinance was passed to pave some additional streets in the Lee Addition.

Molly Campbell, present owner of the Flamingo Bar, appeared before the Council to ask permission to move her place of business to 26 N. Walnut. She is moving from the present site as soon as possible. The Campbell Woman had recently purchased the Flamingo from John Gray, and a letter she showed to the Council members explained the reasons for her moving. The building she is moving to is owned by D. I. Webb, according to the license information. The new name for the business will be the Paper Doll Lounge. The move was OK'd by the Council.

Mayor Conner read two letters to the Council that he had received earlier in the year. One was from the Missouri's health department, explaining that the city's water supply had not met some of the basic requirements in a recent test. The other letter pointed out that the city's water plant was in poor shape and probably should be renovated. Conner noted that this just "points up the great need we have for water system improvements in Dexter."

Police Judge Bill Nelson presented material on auto radar units to Alderman James Williams, head of the Police Committee. The Committee will study the material and report their findings at the next Council meeting.

Mayor Conner reported to Ward Two Alderman Miller and Godwin that a red stop light is being installed at the intersection of Grant Street and One Mile Road this week. The Aldermen had discussed traffic hazards at that intersection last meeting.

Aldermen Eldon Cooper was asked by Mayor Conner to look into the possibilities of purchasing a new police car. Cooper reported that now, because of the auto strikes, it is not a good time to purchase a car, but he will report his findings at the next meeting.

As the final action of the meeting, City Attorney McGhee read a proposed resolution and letter to the Council, from Buchmueller, Whitworth and Foust, an engineering firm, concerning a proposed Flood Plain Hazard Study, to be made here by the Army Corps of Enginers. The lenghty proposed resolution was read to the Council by McGhee. It was decided that since the proposed study was free, the city would OK the plan. The work, or the Flood Plain Hazard Study, may begin soon.

Boy Killed in Unusual Railroad Crossing Accident

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) -- Nine - year - old Andre Moore was killed in an unusual railroad crossing accident near his home in Springfield Wednesday.

Coroner Ralph Thieme said the boy saw a freight train coming and ran to beat it to the crossing.

The boy crossed the tracks in time but ran into an automobile that was skidding to a stop. The car knocked the boy backward onto the tracks and the train ran over him.

The coroner said there would be no inquest.

Diptheria Siege Worst Since 1935

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) -- The diphtheria epidemic has become the worst in San Antonio since 1935.

A boy, 10, was confirmed Monday as the 127th case of the year and 18th this month.

The city also recorded 127 cases in 1935 with 23 deaths. Two children have died in the current outbreak, worst in the nation since 1956 when 141 cases were counted in Detroit.

The worst epidemic on record here came in 1914, when 344 persons contracted the throat infection, which can damage the heart and nervous system.

A Tribute to Sikeston

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is an editorial that appeared in tribute to Sikeston this week in the Enterprise-Courier newspaper at Charleston. The editorial was entitled "Let Sikeston do it."

Most of us were delighted last month when the CHS football team defeated Sikeston. Charlestonians would rather beat Sikeston at the game of football than win any other contest of the year.

But in "real- life matters," matters that really count, Sikeston seems to be taking home all the marbles, and we in Charleston are sitting back and letting them do it.

Take an airport, for example.

Many of our citizens express the belief that Charleston and Mississippi County should not try to build a good small airport facility because "people with planes can land at Sikeston and drive over here." These Charleston people cannot tell us why the "people with airplanes" should not locate their industries in Sikeston, which makes it convenient for them to commute from home office to branch plant.

"Let Sikeston do it" means Sikeston will take the cream of industries to whom airport facilities are important.

Take a hospital, for example.

A report which will be issued soon by a Missouri University study team recommends that Charleston and Mississippi County should not try to acquire hospital facilities because all our needs are being taken care of by Sikeston's hospital.

"Let Sikeston do it for you" is again the cry!

Take retail shopping, for example.

With the opening of its new shopping mall, Sikeston is making a determined bid to take the cream of the retail trade in Southeast Missouri, leaving the 'skim milk" for Charleston, East Prairie, Dexter, New Madrid, and other smaller communities.

We went to see the mall the other night, and it would have been possible to take a census of Charleston just inside the door of J. C. Penney's. A mall provides an attractive, comfortable, convenient (in terms of parking facilities and shopping hours) and well-stocked place for people to do their purchasing.

Are we going to "let Sikeston do it" in this field?

What are Charleston merchants going to do to answer this challenge from Sikeston?

We can conduct business as usual, which is another way of saying "Let Sikeston win", or we can band together to try to combat this latest competition.

Charleston needs a strong retail merchants committee, one that meets regularly to discuss ways of improving our city's shopping image. Most of those who attend the merchants committee meetings of the Chamber of Commerce have been attending for years, and getting very little cooperation from others who are in business in Charleston.

A strong merchants' committee would be a real asset to the community. It would provide a place where all businessmen could trade ideas on how to combat the menace from Sikeston.

You can bet that the merchants located in the two large shopping centers at Sikeston meet at least once a month to discuss problems of mutual interest.

Surely the merchants and businessmen of Charleston could also meet at least once a month for a "think - and- action" session, as opposed to an occasional meeting to plan a specific promotion.

Charleston has the most serious competition it has ever faced-- from Siekston.

Are we going to "let Sikeston do it?" - to us?

Or are we going to try to win this economic battle?

Charleston's football team won its game last month.

Differences Cited Between Firebrats And Silverfish

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Just for the record: The Agriculture Department says there are differences between silverfish and firebrats but that sometimes it's difficult to tell them apart.

To help housewives understand the difference, the department has issued a new leaflet showing pictures of silverfish and firebrats

Oh yes, silverfish and firebrats are insects which have an appetite for a host of items, from cereal to wallpaper and certain fabrics.
